THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

HELEN THURLow

The Promenade

D EAREST ELEANOR:
The season of the summer dance is with us now, and Jack says I am like a happy "kid" again.

Nice of him, isn't it? But nicer still is the dance. My dear, I don't believe I will ever live to be so old that I will not enjoy a dance; but I am afraid poor old Jack was a bit bored with the "hop" at the Bellevue on Saturday. I find he enjoys billiards more than tripping the light fantastic.

I can almost hear you say, "Well, what did you wear?" and I am really anxious to tell you.

But first let me tell you about the dainty little frock Helen wore. The foundation skirt was of pale-colored chiffon cloth, gathered near the hem with a long, full lace band, which fell in a wide loop. When dancing, and had several broad tucks above the wide hem. The bodice and pannier—oh! yes, it was made with panner drapery in quite the most approved style—were of fleur de rose, daintily flowered silk, made with gathering and tiny rose buds upon it.

The little short-waisted bodice was cut with extended shoulders, making a line following the curve of her neck and shoulders, and on this was gathered full short sleeves.

It was made with a deep point in front and back, filled in partly with wide lace, made embroidered with delicate jeté, and a strip of black velvet ribbon was laid across the back of the point.

It opened on the side, was buttoned with long oval crocheted buttons and held in just above the knee with a broad band of black velvet ribbon, which tied in a flat bow.

Now for my own frock. It's a perfect dream! I wish you could see it. Of palest pink chiffon cloth, the short-waisted bodice is cut with a band of flowered taffeta, which, in turn, shows a very narrow piping of black satin on either side.

The banding is brought up high in the center front of the bodice, where it is again used for outline; but this time for a broad folded girdle of black satin. This girdle hangs down, and the taffeta falls from the girdle, and this also has the piping of taffeta, with two other bands stitched on the skirt underneath, the panner showing them veiled with chiffon.

The skirt proper is perfectly plain, made up over pink muslinette. It is a pretty frock, and I don't wonder Jack said I looked like a "kid" with such a dainty new dress on.

We will be so glad to have you with us, dear; then I can show you all my pretty new gowns. Ever affectionately,

MADGE

LASS WAR IN ENGLAND IS RAGING

Thousands Reported Starving in Greatest City of the World.

Social Struggle Waxes Warm and Correspondent Voices Protest.

(By PHILLIP EVERETT.)

LONDON, July 20.—In no country so far between the upper and lower classes is better wages with more personal bitterness today than in England and the unbalanced correspondent is bound to admit that in no country in Europe is such a war more justified than in the front page of a leading London conservative daily paper I read a few days ago first the glaring headlines: "The Gladys Music Hall—three millions roses used to decorate the interior of Palace."

A little further down on the page another set of headlines comparatively small besides those containing the more important announcement catches my eye: "Starvation in the East End—Baby brought to Church for Christening wrapped in Brown Paper."

No headlines contain a scathing arraignment of social conditions in England. These million roses to please the King—a piece of coarse brown wrapping paper to cover the nakedness of workingman's baby.

THOUSANDS STARVE.

Any other country in Europe such divisions would produce a revolution; England they simply cause unrest; the working brains of the English masses are gradually discovering that living is not exactly as it ought to and that even the knowledge of living in a community which can afford to millions on decorations and old-fashioned ceremonies in honor of "good King George," cannot make you over-think that thousands of people whose are at least as well off as that of King starve to death in England every year.

The outside world hears time and again England is sending money abroad to relieve famine in other countries but is hard of the continuous famine in the constant scourge of Eng-

TITLE SEEKERS OF U. S. ARE WARNED

True and False Values of Dukes and Such Are Shown.

Marquis de Castellane Points Out the Alleged Swindlers.

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)
PARIS, July 20.—The interest of a large court of law in the question of titles and on the strength of my title, prompts me to warn American women, desirous of coronets and coats of arms, to be very careful to have the names of titles registered. There are 200,000 persons in France who use titles without being able to produce a single proof of their right to do so. Because they do not care what a man calls himself. Under the republic we have, of course, ducal houses, but a duke has not hereditary seats in parliament. The Duke of Rohan, for instance, does not sit in our senate and is elected to his seat in France, too, we have our feuatory marquises and counts, but the government does not care if they are not in state positions because of their titles. Let me warn my fair readers against another set of titles. Sometimes property, valuable, cheap, is bought for the largest acres of land in Italy or Austria may carry a title with them.

REGULAR MARKET.
In fact, there is a regular market for the sale of such titles. Some impudent nobles used to go about and to sell them. Even the illegitimate sons get titles this way, their mothers having amassed fortunes marry needy nobles and get these last to adopt their sons born of their wedlock. Thus adopted son assumes right to the titles.

Another interesting point in connection with the titles is the use of the "de" prefix to denote a birthright to the family name. For instance the "de" in the Castellane family primarily came from the Castellane country. But the use of "de" in the title of the Marquis de Castellane is a swindle, unless I am referring to the son of the Duke of Magenta, who afterward was president of France. We add in conclusion that the custom of putting crowns and coronets on our note paper, carriages and shirts is becoming obsolete. The best of the nobility now use only the coat of arms and never retain the crown of signing one's title. For instance, the former Miss Mattie Mitchell signs herself Duchess de la Rochefoucauld, whereas the former Cecilia Beaton, full of the English fashion and writer her letters over the signature Consuelo Marlborough.

CLOSES SOCIETY.

The Marquis de Chambrun has closed the most exclusive half social, half religious society called "St. Georges's club." The marquis who is a relative by marriage of the Belamy Storers, is the president of this club, whose Sunday evening services attract the Latin quarter. The Marquis de Chambrun got his kinsman Bellamy Storer, to give the closing lecture.

The death of an American diplomat here, with an attachment to the Latin quarter attracted a large audience. Though at first blush preaching in the Latin quarter looks like an attempt to convert the Moulin Rouge, the young people who were here, the former American minister were clean, concentrated, serious and studious.

Dr. Blane, the new mayor of Aix Les Bains, the Alpine town, has been proclaiming from the housetops that Pierpont Morgan is the discoverer as well as the benefactor of their healthy Alpine town.

ELDEST OF GUESTS.

But Mrs. A. M. Evans, of Albany, easily dispels any such pretensions by proving that she is the eldest "cure guest" of that salubrious spot. Indignant that anyone should try to snatch from her the honor of having been the Columbus of Aix, Mrs. Evans can assure us that she took the cure there even before the late Queen Victoria.

Every year for the past 43 years Mrs. Evans has visited the Alpine region. She in her daily drive that passes tell the hour of the day when they see her sailing forth to take the air. She entered the primitive life of the peasants even to the extent of making a jaunt in a bullock cart. The neighborhood of Aix is one of the few parts of France where such ancient modes of conveyance are still to be seen, though slow way. To the ox carts, the air, and the water of Aix, Mrs. Evans attributes her extraordinary vitality as the age of 81.

Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago, will soon occupy the beautiful villa on the summit of Driethoden hill, near Lucerne. Last year she took this place for the summer. This season Mrs. Field will continue the lavish entertainments of last year.

The villa belongs to Princess di Vicenzo, formerly Miss Lorillard Spencer. The princess is a widow. Her son died this year she is in mourning over the death of her brother, Lorillard Spencer, who was lost on the Titanic.

LOVELORN LAD SHOOTS AT RIVAL

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, July 20.—A boy's infatuation for a young actress was described at the Derby Assizes Court, when Charles Brown, aged 15, was charged with shooting at a 17-year-old friend, named Lawrence Fitchett.

Counsel for the defense said that both lads lived at Melbourne, where a young actress at the local theater, Nelly Payne, aged 20, had aroused the admiration of the boys. On May 8, she was to give a farewell song and dance. That afternoon Brown saw Fitchett buy a ticket of seven and jumped to the conclusion that it was a present for Miss Payne. Later he saw Fitchett and the girl sitting on a settle. Followed by other lads, whom he invited to "see the fun," he crept up and fired an old pistol at Fitchett.

The jury found the lad guilty of common assault and Lord Coleridge ordered him to receive 12 strokes with the birch, following 17 days' detention.

Later, the judge made a curious offer to the boy's father. The boy, he said, could go home for ten days if the father undertook to deliver him at that time for a whipping. If no appeal was to be made the lad could go to goal for time for his whipping, and then be liberated.

FACES FAMILIAR TO PEOPLE OF LONDON

MAGNESIUM DUST IS FIRED BY LIGHTNING

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, July 21.—A curious incident in the total ruin of a large mill in South London is mentioned in the general report of the chief inspector of factories and workmen, just issued by a Blue Book. The report states:

"One of the premises owned by the grinding of stones, and after a visit by the inspector notice was served heavy the defendant the dust was in time to escape, and during a fire, so that the water, which had been thrown on the same combustible terms nitited by lightning. During the process to prevent the diffusion of the dust in the air a number of workers were operating on the premises. One of the workers, a man named John, was not compelled to leave the factory, but he did so, and when he returned he found that the magnesium had entirely exploded, and that the building was in flames. The man, however, was not able to extinguish the fire, and after a long struggle, he managed to put it out. The fire was caused by the magnesium dust, which had been thrown on the floor, and when it came into contact with the floor, it ignited and exploded."

thrown on the magnesium made matters worse."

Several workers refer to the improved cleanliness of factories, which they attribute partly to the greater use of magnesium.

INSURANCE ACT HAS GONE INTO EFFECT

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, July 20.—The national insurance act, the most remarkable, the most paternal measure looking to social reform that the world has ever known, went into operation this week.

Under the creation of David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, ordered broadly that every person between the ages of 16 and 70 in the service of an employer must pay a proportion of his or her wage to certain insurance agencies. The employer contributes and the state contributes to the fund.

In the words of Lloyd George himself: "The workmen's insurance act aims to make provisions for keeping the worker and his wife from pauperism in the black days of sickness which come to every household and to guard against that suffering from lack of employment for which the workman is not responsible."

"This new act has opened the contest between the two classes and provoked the bitterest criticism and opposition from the other."

"It is the first step on that dangerous and momentous question the service of labor."

LOVE LAUGHS AT ROYAL DICTATES

Princesses of Europe Refuse to Marry as They Are Bid.

Grand Duchess Olga of Russia Rejects Kaiser's Son.

BY COUNT VON ELPHBERG.

BERLIN, July 20.—There are enough marriageable princesses in Europe today to compose a beauty school, and there are enough imperial royal and grand ducal aspirants who would make "desirable" husbands for the same princesses to form a company of a king's regiment.

But it is not so easy nowadays to marry off these princesses to these young men. It is not so easy for a chancellor or foreign minister to advise a monarch.

"The marriage of your charming daughter, the son of such and such a king will cement the union of the two nations."

Then there was a perfidious betrothal and presto! the monarch's charming daughter and the king's son were married.

Not so nowadays. The princesses are exhibiting the independent spirit of the day. And like the daughters of the people is declaring that she will marry the man of her heart or no man.

One of these independent young ladies is the Grand Duchess Olga, the 17-year-old daughter of the Czar.

MATCH REPORTED.

When the two Caesars, the Czar and the Kaiser, met a few days ago in the Finnish waters, it was reported in every capital of Europe that a match would be formed between the young lady and Prince Adalbert, the Kaiser's third son, who is 28 years of age.

Prince Adalbert accompanied his imperial father on the visit to Hohenzollern to meet the Czar as a symbol of international news service such an alliance would be of immense political importance.

It would strengthen the bonds between the great empires; France, Russia's present ally, would regard it as most ominous. But the Kaiser's purpose was not solely political. Prince Adalbert has so many young suitors, has a roving disposition, and is always steadfastly toward a pretty actress. To end this infatuation his father had determined to send the prince with the Guards' Squadron which visited New York recently.

But the German emperor who became a great matchmaker, changed his mind and took Prince Adalbert with him to the Baltic.

OBSTACLE IN WAY.

That much has been made public but it has not been fully explained what obstacle stood in the way of the union between the Hohenzollerns and Romanoffs. The Czar, whose wealth is law to tens of millions, could not win his daughter's heart, nor did he try.皇室女皇是她父亲的最爱。

But the young Grand Duchess Olga confessed to her father that she was not indifferent to handsome Prince Adalbert's attentions. But she had given her heart to her cousin, Grand Duke Dimitri Pavlovich, the Czar's uncle. Grand Duke Paul, whose second marriage was the culmination of a passionate romance. And Grand Duchess Olga, who is the same age and Paul 21 years old, and spoken their secret and that she wore hidden a diamond pendant as a remembrance of these words.

So the grand duchess had her way and Prince Adalbert won his.

All of which goes to show how nowadays marriages of those born to the purple are made in heaven and not in the chance of the world.

SOUGHT MARRIAGE.

It is well known here that before the republican uprising in Portugal, diplomats sought to arrange a marriage at least an engagement between King Manuel and Queen Maria of Portugal and King George of England. King Manuel's father, King Carlos, was an intimate friend of Princess Mary's grandfather, King Edward VII. Besides a marital alliance between England and Portugal seemed most desirable. But as the story goes, the young Princess Mary refused to permit herself to be used as a pawn in the European game and in this decision her mother supported her spirit.

Germany also offers another example of opinionated princesses.

Yesterdays' newspaper reports that Kaiser's only daughter has been courted by both the prince of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge, whose wife is the Queen of Spain. Now it was reported she would marry the Prince of Wales; again a young Austrian aristocrat yet again to the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg, who is an intimate friend of her family.

But while she has treated them all with politeness, she remains indecisive as to her choice and that has not yet been made.

Now, as I cabled last week, the intruder was again in the attempt to marry off the second grand duchess, Duchess Maria Adelheid of Luxembourg, who is in one of the greatest catchers in Europe.

Her own, the grand duchess has shown she has a will of her own.

GUIDE BOOK IS CAST ASIDE BY AMERICANS

LONDON, July 20.—The fashion in nightclubs, in dancing, in smoking, and the American and foreigner is no longer content to follow the guide book which puts the emphasis upon artistic places, but insists upon plain, simple, down-to-earth places as well as what he has. Until a short time ago the visitor's list was definite, almost stereotyped, and included St. Paul's, the Abbey, the tower of London, and other places in the center of the city. At the day recently thirty minutes at some of these points produced the following numbers of American and foreign visitors: St. Paul's, 3; the Abbey, 10; the Tower of London, 8; and one gallery, 4. Albert and Crystal, 1. The height of the season when the tourist is here in the greatest numbers is the interests of spreading. It is a matter of personal taste. It is the usual practice of clubs to have one in the center of the metropolis. The result is beneficial to the shops and places of amusement.

INTRIGUE RIFE IN TROUBLED ALBANIA

Turkey Frowns on Interference of Italy in Boiling Country.

Bulgarians Sharpen Teeth for Piece of Macedonian Pie.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 20.—At present all the efforts of the Turkish government are concentrated upon the war with Italy, and hopes are entertained that a definite turn may be given to the wearisome struggle by impending events. "If we could but meet our foe in the field!" exclaimed the minister of war, when asked whether he is quite prepared to receive the Italians in Smyrna. "Let them come!" he said. "I have no apprehension about the results."

There is, naturally, excitement and joy at the news that Smyrna is about to be attacked by the Italians, who will bombard the old fortress, land troops and wage war generally. The Ottoman government has made great haste with the requisite precautionary measures, appointed Abdülhak Pasha to be commander of the troops, and at present 5000 men are being drafted to Smyrna from various parts of European Turkey and Anatolia. Already 65,000 men are distributed over the district to be defended; twice that number can be brought up within a fortnight or three weeks, if necessary. Old forts are in position to be sunk at the entrance of the harbor. The green heights along the coast are occupied by soldiers working hard day and night putting heavy artillery in position, where it is not likely to be noticed by the enemy. Lighters have been chartered by the authorities, gunboats and other little war-craft are being used as transports. And by the time the Italians make their appearance the Turks will have completed their defense.

GOVERNMENT AT SEA.

Meanwhile, everywhere in the interior the joints and girders of the political fabric appear to be crackling and giving way, and the government does not know what to turn its hands to first. The rising in the Yemen, under Said Idris, while being gone on since the war broke out, and, indeed, before that time, is not regarded as critical—not, at least, in its present phase. The Albanian Insurrection, which is being organized by Ismail Kemel Bey and Castrioti, has a much uglier aspect. The resolute go-ahead members of the cabinet, which have no taste to complex problems and would rather cut a knot than "waste time" unraveling it, were for dispatching another punitive expedition to the disaffected country and "wiping out" the rebels. That was the old plan, which had been tried several times and failed lamentably.

This is where the minister of the interior, Hafiz Adil Bey, gave proof of his sound command. "We are approach the problem from a different side," he said. "Suppose we tried to conciliate, instead of exterminating, the Albanians, we might make some headway. I am going to apply my own prescription. I will go, and, by way of proving our good faith, I will take a British representative and a French officer, Foulon, with me. I want the world to see Turkey's hand and to know that she is playing fair."

PERIL IS HEAL.

The cabinet assented. For the peril emanating from Albania is real. Behind the Albanians, as behind the Arabs of Yemen, stands Italy, distributing arms, ammunition, money and programs. All Albania is not, of course, with Italy, but a large percentage of the rebels is. And what they want is no longer just that reform, but a large measure of autonomy under an international guarantee, whereby religions would be proclaimed equal and the official language would be Albanian, written with Latin letters.

Such a change would appeal richly to Turkey. This is the specter which the energetic minister very determined to lay. "We are not according to you for the country," now appealed with the representative Albanians and, moreover, promised with them, set forth all the evils they are bringing on themselves by making common cause with the enemy, and undertook to remedy all their grievances. If they on their side would promise to be satisfied with that and to keep the peace in future. His journey was interesting, braving spear with danger. The attempt on his life, however, was frustrated, and he returned home amply satisfied with his impressions.

When asked whether he considers the Albanian ferment a negligible phenomenon, he said: "By no means. There is a great deal of discontent there, some of which is well founded and some imaginary. When the former is removed in the right way, the latter will, I think, disappear with it."

RIGHT AND WRONG WAY.

There is a right and wrong way of dealing with the Albanians, and I am convinced that if we persist in the right way, which we have already begun, all will be well. Of course, that will take time."

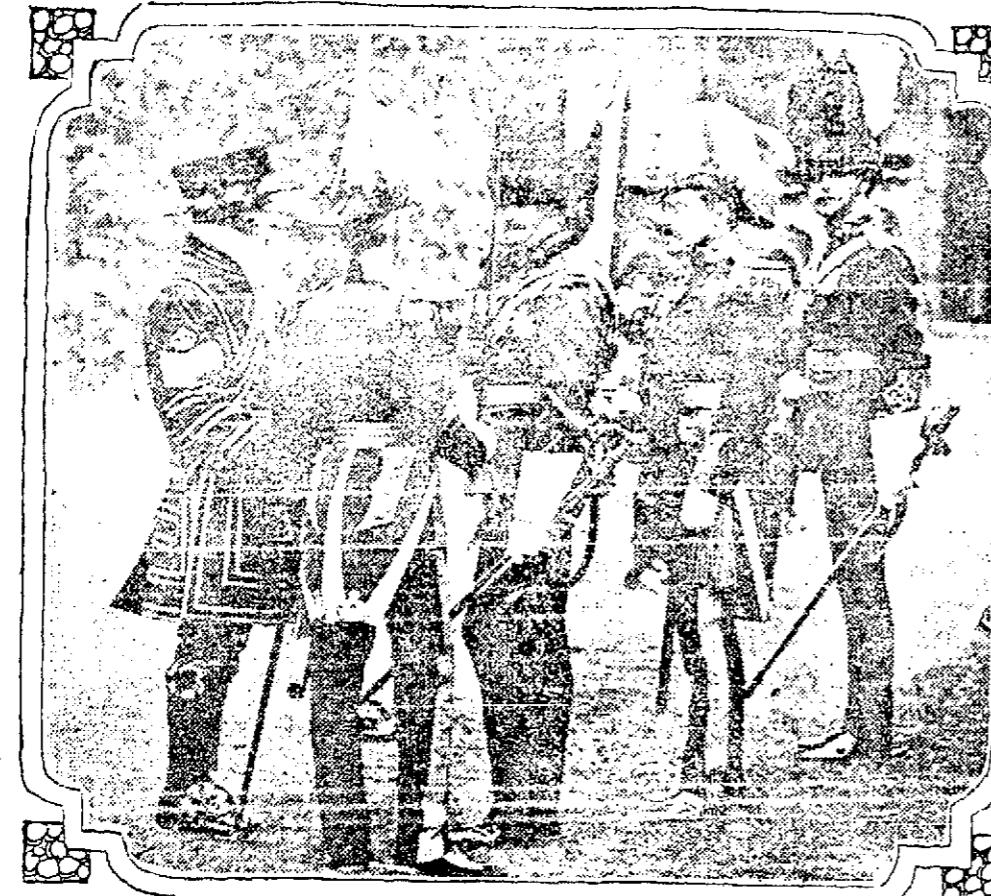

Of all the nationalities in the Ottoman Empire none are more dangerous to the Turkish race than the Bulgarians and the Greeks. Thus rounded one of those day animals that have a taste for bone, which they slowly eat away. A very few have allies outside. That the Bulgarian Tsardom will not rest satisfied until it has incorporated a large part of Macedonia in its own territory is self-evident. But alone against Turkey, Bulgaria can accomplish nothing. Not only are the Turks able to worst them, but the Romanians would spring up as allies to inflict a crushing defeat upon King Ferdinand's army. That is why Ferdinand has turned over a new leaf. He has abandoned Russia and done now business with Austria.

May he go on further. There seems no doubt that as a recompence for services which he expects from the Hapsburg monarchy in the future, he is now making arrangements to serve, to within a foot. A Russo-Bulgarian entente has been concluded under the wing of the Berlin eagle, and there is every likelihood that the policies of the next east, and that it will play an important

TRAITORS SENT TO JAIL FOR 6 YEARS

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

BERLIN, July 20.—Albert Ehlers, a signalman in the German navy, was tried before the Supreme Court of the Empire at Leipzig, charged with having tried to sell naval secrets to the British Intelligence Bureau, including portions of the secret signal book. He was sentenced to six years' penal servitude.

A German policeman named Clausen was charged as Ehlers' accomplice, appeared in court today after having been extradited from England. Clausen escaped from prison in Germany, and fled to London where he was arrested at the request of the German authorities on a charge of theft.

When Clausen was surrendered to the German authorities he was sentenced to six years' penal servitude for theft, and today he appeared in a special dock between two warders as a witness against Ehlers.

The trial took place in secret, as usual, but so far as the press has found out, the identity of either of the victims or of his murderer. Not only had a pistol and marks been removed from the clothing, but a dynamite cartridge had been exploded in the water where the body sank. If the object was to blow the corpse to atoms, and to remove every trace of that crime, the murderers failed completely, but the explosion had the effect of littering the surface of the water with flesh for many hundreds of yards around.

HURLED INTO SEA BOUND TO BARROW

New and Barbarous Form of Murder Practiced at Savona.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

ROME, July 20.—A live man was bound to a wheeharrow with a sailor's scarf and belt, and both were then hurled from the pierhead into the sea at Savona recently.

This new and barbarous form of murder was discovered by parts of bathers, who chanced to see the body and the barrow at the bottom of the sea in twenty feet of water.

The police were promptly informed, but so far as the press has found out, the identity of either of the victims or of his murderer. Not only had a pistol and marks been removed from the clothing, but a dynamite cartridge had been exploded in the water where the body sank. If the object was to blow the corpse to atoms, and to remove every trace of that crime, the murderers failed completely, but the explosion had the effect of littering the surface of the water with flesh for many hundreds of yards around.

The police attribute the crime to revenge. No witness has yet come forward, though the crime was carried out in front of the custom house and must have occupied a considerable time.

EAT EGGSHELLS, IS ADVICE OF SAVANTS

BY PAUL PIERRE RIGNAUX.

PARIS, July 20.—"Eat eggshells, eat eggs. Throw away the yolk, if need be, and spill out the white, if you will, but eat the shells. Then you will be healthy and happy and live to see your grandchild's children."

Such is the earnest advice given by Professors Emmerick and Loewe and published widely here.

The words "eat eggshells" must not be taken too literally. The learned professors have prepared a liquid they call the chloride of eggshells. Like the altruistic economists they are, they have proclaimed the formula for this chloride:

there is no secret about it, nothing proprietary. So perhaps their advice should be worded:

"Drink eggshells."

Professor Emmerick of Munich is world-renowned for his knowledge of diphtheria and cancers. He and his colleague Loewe declare that the matronly and industrious hen is one of the greatest benefactors of mankind, not because she produces eggs, but because the eggs are contained in shells.

These learned men assert that eggshells, taken in proper form, lengthen human vitality, add weight to the body, nourish the brain, strengthen the heart, prevent inflammation and lend courage and energy to the human being.

PREPARE RACE SUICIDE.

Even more important, from a sociological point of view, is the assertion by Emmerick and Loewe that eggshells conduct to fecundity and prevents depopulation. They fed eggshells to four pairs of white mice. Within a given time 50 very small ones were added to the population of white mice. In the same given time, four pairs of white mice who had to do without the stimulating eggshells, were blessed with a progeny which numbered only nine.

Emmerick and Loewe point out that hens cease to lay when their food lacks the elements in which eggshells are so rich. They recommend that a spoonful of the chloride of eggshells be taken three times a day in water. Like human life, which it will prolong, the dose is bitter, but not altogether disagreeable.

Pretty Miss Van Valkenburg of New York, previous to her marriage—known as the ten million dollar widow, has created quite a society flutter here.

Scarcely had she arrived at the Hotel Mirabell in the Rue de la Paix, than Miss Fannie Reed gave a musical in her honor. At this were present the Princess de Hondele, Princess de Puggo-Susa, the Duchess de Talleyrand, Duchess de La Rochefoucauld, Marquise de Talleyrand-Périgord, Countess de Gabrie, Andrée de Fontenay, Ambassadors Javolsky of Russia, Tittoni of Italy, Mrs. Frederick B. of Albany, Mrs. John Monroe of Paris, and Miss Lillian Lawler of San Francisco. Miss Van Valkenburg had taken a furnished suite of apartments next door to Miss Reed in the Rue de la Pompe.

The Celtic idea, it is contended, ought to be the definite incarnation of the French "Fatherland," because it is the only one perfect enough and impersonal enough to unite all Frenchmen without distinction of party.

PROBE EXPLOSIONS.

The series of explosions on French warships which culminated recently in a double accident on the battleship Jules Michelet, at Toulon, has led to a renewed inquiry into the possible causes. The opinion seems to be gaining ground that the cause was an explosion on the Jules Michelet were due like some previous accidents, to an inherent defect in the composition of the powder now used in place of the famous "powder B," which caused a serious loss of life on the battleships Iena and Lübeck. The powder used on the Jules Michelet was sufficiently strong to cause and sustain, during thirteen years, the Gallic Empire.

DISPOSAL OF RHODES PROVES SERIOUS DIPLOMATIC PUZZLE

Neither Autonomy Nor Union With Greece Reported to Be Desired by Inhabitants

ROME, July 20.—The news which reaches Italy directly from Rhodes is rather scanty, and it is only from Italian correspondents who have returned after a visit to the Aegean, to Athens, and elsewhere, that a fuller description can be obtained of what is happening in the islands occupied by the Italian forces.

The Messaggero publishes a long dispatch from its correspondent in Athens containing an account of a visit to Rhodes. That is not without interest. The writer describes the island as tranquilly pursuing its ordinary life and occupations. The administration, postal and customs services, the courts of justice, all perform their various functions without any hitch. The Italian military authorities are paying especial attention to the question of sanitation and are actively engaged in improving the water supply of Rhodes itself; so bad was it, apparently, that many cases of typhus have already occurred among the Italian troops, with fifteen deaths.

M. BERTILLON'S STRANGE NEW PLAN FOR CATCHING CRIMINALS!

BERTILLON, the French detective, who did more than any man living for the prevention and detection of crime by means of his anthropometric measurements, has just discovered a new means of finding the hunted criminal.

Given the color of your eyes, shape of your nose, and formation of your ears, he claims he can pick you out in any crowd, though he has never seen you before and has no other details of your makeup. He has done this marvelous seeming thing again and again to the satisfaction of the Paris police and the results are regarded as so remarkable that his new system is about to supplant both the Bertillon measurements and the finger print system in the criminal record bureaus of the French capital.

The whole thing is done by a process of elimination, more simple to the trained detective than may appear on the surface, and Bertillon claims that error is impossible since the ears, nose, and eyes are never identical in any two persons.

"Le portrait parlé" (the portrait speaks) is the name of the new Bertillon system. In the future perhaps such conversation as the following may displace the usual description giving now done in criminal report giving:

Description of the Future.

"Hello! Send one of your men. There has been a murder in the home of John Brown."

"Any description of the murderer?"

"None worth while. He wore a mask and we know little about his height or probable age."

"That doesn't matter. What were his ears?"

"Oval."

"Yes, good! And his eyes?"

"True blue."

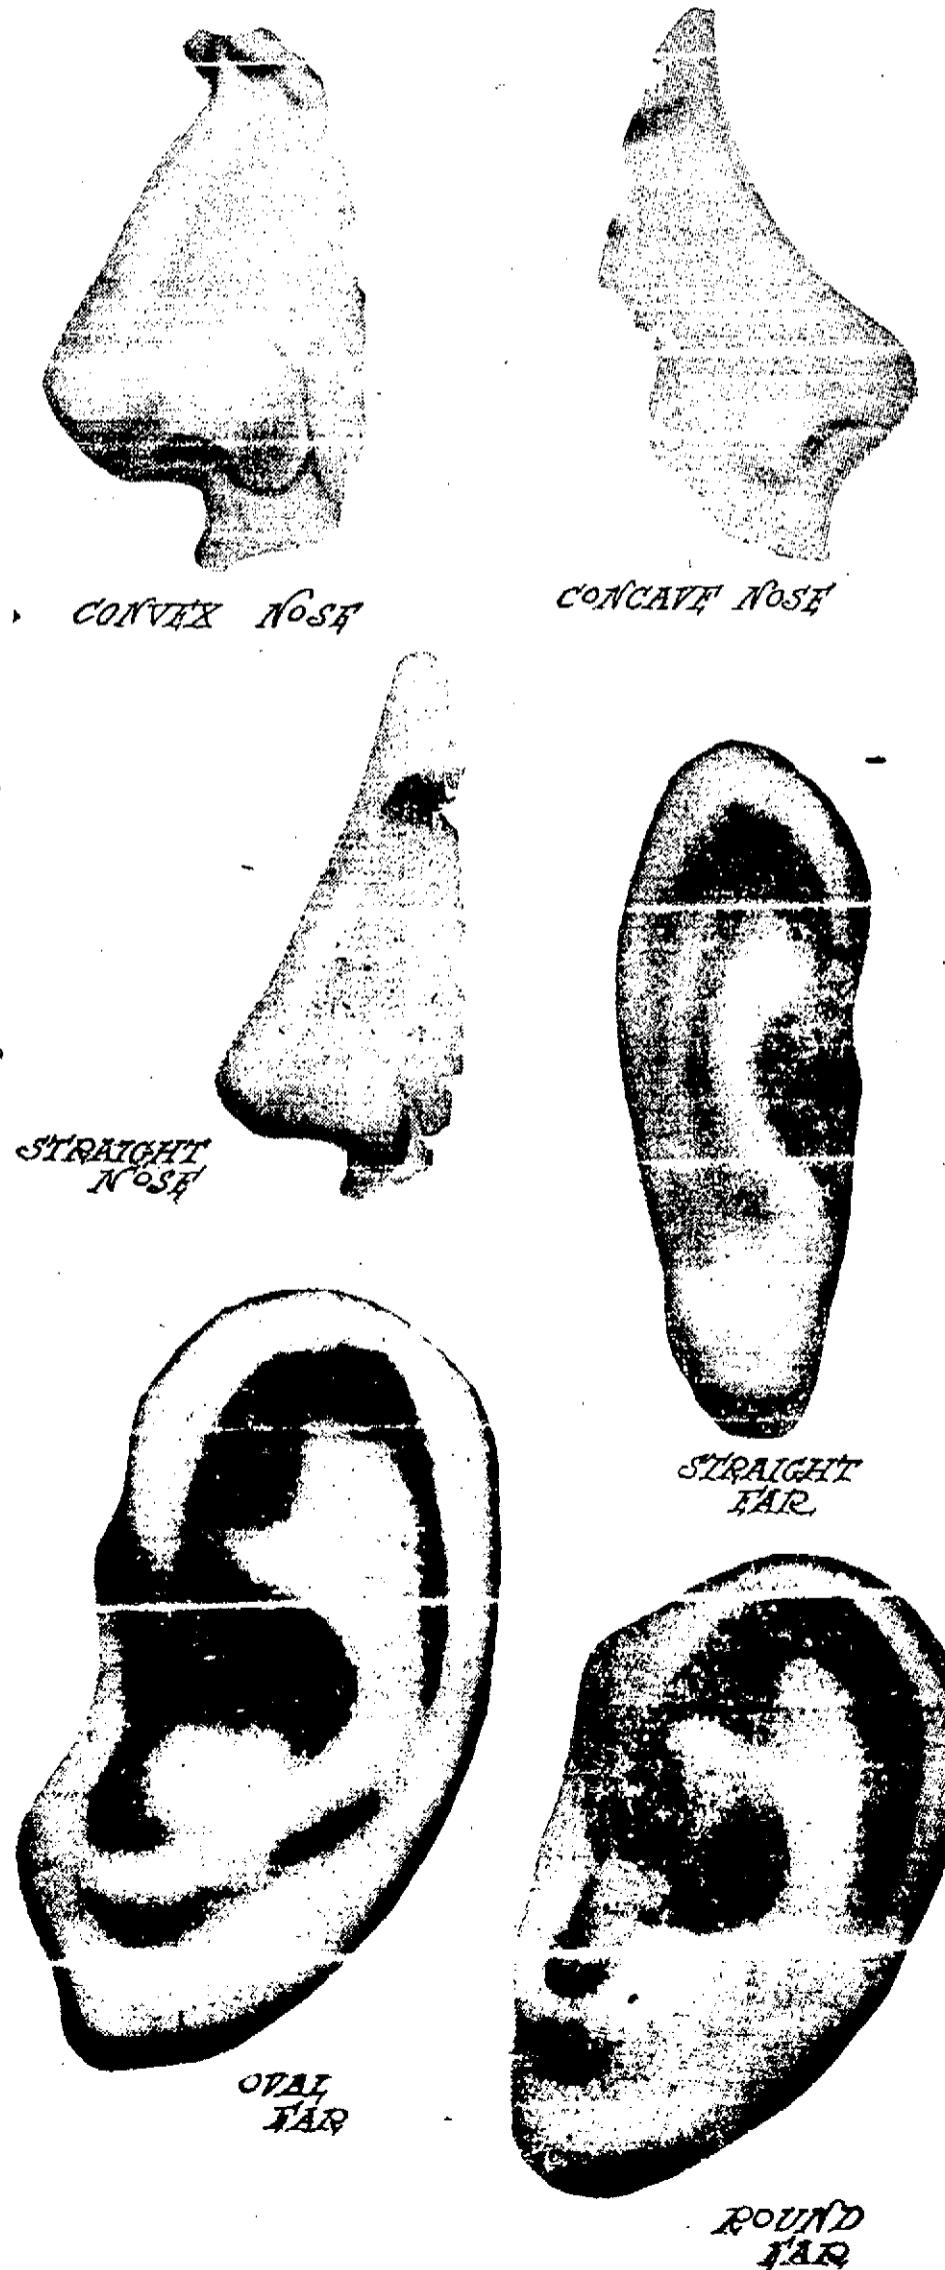

"Better yet. How about the nose?"

"It was flat."

"Well, that's all the description we need and we will have the man."

As a result the detective will go out not to seek a man of middle age, medium build, with black hair and a slight stoop. How often these vague descriptions have caused him to be haled to police stations men who had not the slightest connection with the crime under investigation, how often these men have been subjected to every form of indignity, even to the tortures of the third degree, probably can be better imagined than set down. Half the world is of what might be termed of medium height and build; half the world has hair that might be taken for black or the more frequently used term dark.

But under the portrait parlé system, says

ALPHONSE BERTILLON

NEW IDENTIFICATION SYSTEM

By M. ALPHONSE BERTILLON.

I do not care about stature, general features, sex or age. Identical ears, eyes or nose do not occur again in any two human beings. They may appear to be the same, but my process of measurement will nearly always eliminate the persons not wanted. As a means of criminal identification, once a full record is made of the man, the finger prints cannot compare with this in value. I divide all noses into three distinct classes, convex, concave, and straight. But this plan of exact measurement goes more into measurements of detail. The same rule applies to the ear and its shape, while the eyes are determined by color.

M. Bertillon, all this will be eliminated. If he has accurate descriptions of eyes, ears, and nose he can go into any crowd and eliminate from suspicion every person save him who has the required facial accessories. It is possible that several might be found who had the requisite features in a rough sense, but Bertillon has carried his investigations and classification on to such minuteness that elimination of all but the right person is simple.

Elimination an Easy Task.

Some little while since, when the concealer of the system went to the Paris police prefect with his ideas, he was treated with the deference due a man who already has accomplished as much as he, but his new idea was deprecated, even scoffed at when he was out of hearing. But the final result was obvious. Bertillon was worth listening to and worth proving. As a result a man whose characteristics of nose, eyes, and ears had been carefully set down, was turned adrift in a crowd and told to go on about his business as if nothing had happened.

Bertillon was told the general vicinity in which to search for his man. He walked through the throng, some 3,000 persons, looking keenly into the faces of many and less searchingly at others. Finally he laid his hand on the back of a man. It was the one sought.

The police were naturally both astonished and skeptical. The possibility of a trick suggested itself. Bertillon offered to perform the same feat again. Even more cautious arrangements were made. Again the detective strolled through the crowds and picked out the man. The trial was made a dozen times in all parts of Paris, in all sorts of throngs, with men, women, and children as the quarry, and each time Bertillon came in with the "suspect."

"I do not care about stature, general features, sex, or age," said Bertillon. "Identical ears, eyes, and nose do not occur again in any two human beings. They may appear to be the same, but my further points and measurements will invariably eliminate the persons not wanted. As a means of criminal identification once a full record is made of the man not even the finger prints compare with this."

New Method Most Certain.

It is perhaps hard to understand just how this new system is going to be of definite use or at least of authoritative consequence in identifying men at sight. It is based, of course, on three features which vary most. Bertillon divides all noses into three general classes—convex, rect, and concave, or, as we would say, convex, straight, and concave. These are the general classes, but his plan of identifying by the nose goes on into minute details such as measurements of the nostrils, height, and size of the convexity or depth of the concavity, relative length to breadth and depth and so on.

But it is impossible even at a brief glance to mistake a man with a straight or concave nose for one who is supposed to have a convex prosthesis. Presuming that the number of noses in each general class is the same—a theory which is not true, two-thirds of humanity are excluded from suspicion. The detective strolling through the crowd in quest of his man need not look for a second time at two-thirds of those he meets.

Next come the ears, which are divided into four great groups—triangular, square, oval, and round. Let us presume that the man with the convex nose sought by the detective is likewise known to have the square type of ear. Immediately the detective adds to the two-thirds eliminated by their noses the three-fourths whose ears are not of the square type. Thus eleven out of every twelve men need not be further investigated; either their noses or their ears do not come up to the demands of the description.

Far more difficult is the matter of the eyes. Under the portrait parlé system eyes are graded into seven general groups, so that it may be safely assumed that six-sevenths of all persons met will be relieved of suspicion by the fact that their eyes do not tally with the "information." Suppose, for instance, that the man with the convex nose and squarely formed ears has true blue eyes. Eleven of every twelve persons met are eliminated by the nose and ears and six-sevenths of the balance have the wrong color in eyes. Thus eighty-three out of every eighty-four men the detective meets are eliminated from suspicion.

Actual Occurrences Much Rarer.

In the matter of eyes, however, there is not alone the difficulty of seven classifications, but the trouble in recognizing colors. Light and shade make a marked difference in the appearance of the eye, a fact which frequently has led to the somewhat foolish notion that eyes change color, that they grow darker or lighter, etc. Only one really skilled in judging the color of the orb and in computing the effect of various light conditions would be able to make any clear progress in this particular. This, however, says M. Bertillon, is a matter of training. He feels confident that men can be trained to recognize the true coloring of eyes at a glance.

But, one is tempted to object, the figures eliminate only about eighty-three of eighty-four persons. For that reason every eighty-fourth person would be taken as a suspect, at least until he might be more closely studied in a police station or identification bureau. The answer is that the figures given are merely the mathematical computations based on the number of classifications for each organ, and that, as a matter of fact, the man with true blue eyes, a convex nose, and square shaped ears would occur much more rarely, and so with a man of every other description.

To be sure the portrait parlé system goes much more into detail, and is, as a matter of fact, a marvel of nicety. There are, for instance, five classes of ear lobes, quickly recognizable by any one trained in the work. Thus the man sought might have the square ear, well enough, and the blue eyes and convex nose, but still might be the wrong shape. Thus another four-fifths are eliminated, making the suspect a 1 in 420 shot.

Going further, Bertillon has classified the outer curves of the ear and the tragus, that little projection which shields the entrance to the inner ear.

He has done as much for the eyes, measuring their distance apart, their shape, and the lines and wrinkles their use has formed. These details are, however, for study in the consulting room and not to be readily judged in going through a crowd.

SOCETY

Social Chatter From Suzette's Note Book

HOW can you make a person happy against his will? If you try forever you will not knock any happiness into a person who has not got it in him to be happy."

It was an anonymous author who wrote that, but his name ought to be given to the waiting world. For most people we meet find something to worry about on a vacation. One can, of course, sympathize with the woman who left the gas range going and gas was burning at her expense during vacation hours. Her friends endured the proper amount of anguish in sympathizing with her. Just to be contented on a vacation is the real essence of happiness for one's self and for everyone else. And just to take things as one finds them in happy fashion, and to take people as well, is the real essence of a good time. If we are going to hold up for criticism all the people we meet we can never make friends.

"Our minds are in the stiff, constrained attitude of an English headie, parading through the parish with a self-consciousness evinced by the very set of his three-cornered hat. Either we must encourage an intimacy that we do not want, or offend people capable of making us uncomfortable in their resentment. At first sight it is difficult to judge character. Social standing is still less perceptible. Often the plainest person is of a breed beyond criticism. Dress, looks, voice and manner do, indeed, indicate one's status and degree of cultivation. But the perplexity remains, whether even a person apparently desirable as an acquaintance will prove so upon wider experience.

"On the other hand, by a pride that keeps others at a distance, we risk losing valuable friends. A great part of the pleasure of a vacation is the coming into contact with agreeable people, the hearing new views, and learning new things. How are we to have this pleasure if we are always thinking whether it is best to be intimate, and if it is expedient that we cultivate such a person, or allow ourselves to be cultivated?"

"It is not difficult to withdraw from any undesirable acquaintance after we are again under our own roof-tree. In truth, the trouble is rather to extend than to let go, summer friendships. Many vows made under the impulse of fervid July stiffen to indifference with winter's frost. People meet, talk, thrill toward each other, and are thrown apart by the inexorable fate of different conditions and distance. In great cities they say that 'friendship is an affair of streets,' so seldom do old friends meet."

One can never judge by clothes, for some of the most charming people are the most unobtrusive, and there is no one in the world more badly dressed than an Englishwoman of rank travelling through the country. A pilgrimage in the summer, just to meet all sorts and conditions of people, is a most interesting and amusing way of spending the summer.

The motor car as one of the factors in a summer vacation has changed many things in the social world this season. When in past years families spent June, July and August at some resort, today these families spend their vacations touring the country, enjoying the scenery, spending a day here or a week some other place where trips may be made through interesting country.

It has changed many things in social observances as well. The dinner hour at hotels is now much more informal, for motor travelers must dress simply, and a fresh lingerie waist is the standard of excellence. The motor is a never-failing source of introduction. Our neighbors must give us information of the roads before us; perhaps they have warned us of the policeman, lurking in a shady corner, waiting to pounce upon us, and to quench our joy for the wine being by dragging us to jail. They must surely be our friends forever because of the timely warning. Travelers faring along the highway have always found much in common—there lay the true elements of companionship—and the same thing is true now that we no longer journey slowly, but rush madly down the highway, urged along by that compelling spirit of speed, which drives us in the swiftest motor cars in the world.

MANY PLAN MOTOR TRIPS IN EUROPE.

Many people who go to Europe now arrange for motor trips, and so one's friends this summer are motoring in France, through the lovely chateau country, or in England, spending interesting days in the cathedral towns. The best roads in Europe are to be found in Belgium and Intrepid motorists have been known to cross over to Algiers and motor out on the desert—to the first oasis which was the scene of the remarkable setting of the Garden of Allah.

All over the East there are well-established motor routes and among the most beautiful are those leading through the Adirondacks. Many well-known women in the East are expert automobileists.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay is devoted to motoring and that is her principal recreation in the hills this summer. She has a stable of automobiles and drives runabout over the mountain roads investigating all the country round about Stockbridge, where she has her country home.

Often she drives 40 miles in the early part of the day. Mrs. Mackay will remain at her home in the Adirondacks until well into the autumn, going to Roslyn, L. I., when Mr. Mackay returns from abroad. He went to Paris to visit his mother, Mrs. John W. Mackay, and his sister, the Princess Colonna.

California is bound to be the favored region for motoring, for we are growing more courageous—perhaps more reckless. We have many objective points this summer. There is one trip down South which includes all the old missions. Many people now go to Tahoe by motor, going by way of Auburn, and returning by way of the old stage road at Placerville. Mrs. Bull and the M. J. Laymances have recently taken that trip. Mrs. C. H. King and Joseph King leave this morning for Lake Independence and will motor on to Tahoe. And among those who are taking extensive motor trips this season are the J. R. Burroughs, Robert Knights, the Frank Brighams, the Frank L. Browns, the P. E. Bowles, the Wickham Havens, the Leon Bocqueraz, the Dennis Scarles, the Edward de Lavengas, the Oscar Lunings, the Henry Wilsons, the A. Schillings, the Harry East Millers, the Charles D. Bates, the Josiah Stanfords, the Mark L. Requias.

The mere knowledge that the city is left behind is restful. Then there is the sight of grass that one may get onto; the sweet song of chickens, the lullaby of the dear cows—all the harmonious choruses of Nature, in an open-air theater, where the seats are reserved without extra charge.

"I love chickens. We all love chickens since Rosland explained them to us in that dear play of Chantecler. They are the really high society. It is a privilege to be tained by them to us in that dear play of Chantecler. They are the really high society. It is a privilege to be entertained by them in their own odorous castle yards; to hear their idea of child culture, their expositions upon suffrage. A 5 o'clock, partaken of in company with a few choice Dorking spirits, and perhaps a Black Spanish or White Hamburg Jending affable countenance, is an enlightening experience. One retires from the presence with a sense of superiority, a gentle inclination to patronize acquaintances who have no admittance to select society, no opportunities to acquire the true touch and tone of Nature's Fairground Saint Germain."

WATER COURSES ATTRACT OAKLAND'S SOCIETY.

We are only just beginning to develop the water sports which are such a feature of life on the Atlantic coast. One reason is, of course, our own "afternoon tea." It is to England gave to the world the custom. One reason is, of course, our own "afternoon tea." It is to England gave to the world the custom. Surely they could not be so cruel—just because both of them have digestion—to begrudge the rest of the world the comfort of a cup of afternoon tea. They are quoting the following extensively in London:

"According to a well-known London doctor, the habit of taking a heavy meal between luncheon and dinner is decidedly harmful. Anything in the nature of a heavy afternoon tea is quite unnecessary for a healthy young or middle-aged person," he said, "and it does them far more harm than good."

"Three full meals a day—a hearty breakfast, a light lunch, and an ordinary five or six-course dinner—are ample for the average man or woman. If tea is wanted in the afternoon, it should only be a refresher—say, a cup of tea and a biscuit or a piece of bread and butter."

To sit down at the dinner table in the middle of the afternoon and make a regular meal of tea, bread and butter, sandwiches, cake, jam and pastry, as so many persons do nowadays, is all wrong."

"The only people who do want to make a meal of afternoon tea are old people and young children. They want the extra meal because the more nutriment they take the better."

But that is not the way we have

REQUA HOME MECCA FOR MANY FRIENDS.

However, in spite of all the charm of the country, people are beginning to return to town, and one is meeting in the old way again many prominent people. Afternoon tea in out-of-door surroundings, are our favorite form of amusement. Mrs. Requa has been away only a short time this summer, spending a few days at Del Monte.

Her friends are always happy when she is at Highlands in the summer time, for afternoon tea in her home makes one of the most delightful of summer dates. Sometimes it is served in the shady retreat which the family has named "Chevy Chase," and which is one of the most picturesque places to be found anywhere in Piedmont.

Or sometimes one has tea with Mrs. Requa in the lovely home which has been for so many years a landmark on the hills. One looks out upon rare garden, with gorgeous flowers and vines and trees and shrubs, and views in all the world—the picturesque bay and the Golden Gate. Mrs. Requa is an ideal hostess and afternoon tea in her home has its own rare charm, which tends to the late hours of a sun-

Park, one of the finest public parks in the heart of a city in the world. And in the midst of the park is the quaint old-time residence, with its picturesquely architecture, on the veranda, of which one may have one's afternoon tea, and fancy one were in the heart of an enchanted forest in a foreign land. And one wakes up to be glad that one is in the happy land of California.

The R. G. Browns have been for six weeks at Shasta Springs, but they will be home again very soon, and that means that their friends are welcome on Wednesday afternoons, and that tea will be served on the wide porch, overlooking their quaint, and altogether charming garden.

One finds the most hospitable hostesses always in the Moore home in East Oakland and the afternoon tea given there for the Baroness von Suttner recently made one of the charming dates that shine out in the background of the ever-growing past. Mrs. Wertheimer is another hostess who most generously entertains her friends in one of the finest old homes in the county, and Mrs. Mark Requa is one of the younger matrons who presides beautifully in a lovely and wonderfully attractive home.

It is a great pleasure to have people in for afternoon tea. It does not take up the whole day of the hostess nor of her friends—it simply places a bright hour of close comradeship near the close of a busy day. And afternoon tea was the favorite form of entertainment last winter, hostesses inviting guests for tea at the Palace or the St. Francis. For this coming season we will have our own hotel, as well as the Woman's Exchange.

PHILLIS PARTINGTON COMING TO COAST.

Phillis Partington, who came to the rescue the first night that "Gypsy Love" was presented in New York last winter after Marguerite Sylva had been forced to retire, owing to sudden loss of voice, will sing the leading role in that opera next season, when A. H. Woods sends it on tour to the Pacific coast. Miss Sylva, in spite of a successful season in light opera, has decided to abandon this field of work and will return to the grand opera stage.

It was good news to her friends that Miss Phillis Partington is coming to the coast and there will of course be elaborate entertaining for her here in Oakland, which was her former home. Of "Gypsy Love" one reads:

"Inasmuch as Europe has for some reasons had the advantage over America in its acquaintance with 'Count of Luxembourg' by Lehár it is worth noting that London heard 'The Gypsy Love' by the same composer for the first time June, 1912, when it received a superb production at Daly's Theater. It was a triumph for George Edwardes and all concerned, including the Hungarian actress, Sari von Petras. The soprano sang the rôle sung in America by Marguerite Sylva, who on the opening night in New York was compelled to withdraw after the first act to be replaced by Miss Partington, whose success was one of the topics of the early season."

Lehar wrote "The Merry Widow" and one hears that "Gypsy Love" is much more beautiful. It is said to have a delicious combination of the wild Hungarian flavor and of the Vienna waltz. Inconsistently be it said that "The Gypsy Love" is one of the most beautiful works of its kind, and many people are looking forward to its clever interpretation for them by bright Phillis Partington.

SOCIETY

MISS ALICE EARL and Beverly Wilder will be married in Plymouth Congregational Church in September, and will have a large and elaborate wedding. The bride will be attended by six bridesmaids.

Miss Leslie Manuel will also be a bride. Her marriage with William Edgar Randall will take place at the family home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Manuel.

Miss Mildred Manuel will be her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be members of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Rosamere Mikel and Miss Vern Cope will be married in September also, and will have a house wedding at the Cope family home.

Miss Christine Turner and Lewis M. Foulke plan a September wedding. Miss Foulke has been visiting Mrs. L. M. Foulke, mother of her fiance, who lives in Shleykin country.

Other September brides will be Evelyn Adams, Miss Ruth Casey and Miss Marian Miller.

TO BE AUGUST BRIDE.

Mr. Pleasant W. Hyrd and Miss Helen E. Watson will be married on August 4 at the home of the bride's father, Henry H. Watson, in Berkeley.

Miss Helen Young will wed Milton Farmer in St. Mark's Episcopal Church before a large assemblage of friends, the exact date not being set.

LUNCHEON ON FRIDAY.

Misses M. Vaughan and Mrs. Haskell were hostesses at a handsomely-appointed luncheon Friday, given in honor of their mother, Mrs. Ira Vaughan, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of the latter. The affair was in the nature of a surprise and was greatly enjoyed by the guests who were: Mrs. Catherine Stevens, Mrs. Charles E. Hindman, Mrs. A. Dayton Wagner, Mrs. J. Adams, Mrs. H. F. ## BARITONE AND PIANIST TO GIVE HALF HOUR OF MUSIC

ROBERT M. BATTISON OF OAKLAND, WHOSE TENOR VOICE IS HEARD FREQUENTLY IN ORATORIO AND SOLO WORK.

The Musical and Dramatic Committee of the University of California announces that the half-hour of music in the Hearst Greek Theater this afternoon at four o'clock will be given by Robert D. McLure, baritone, and Miss Stella Howell, pianist. McLure, who has previously given a very enjoyable half-hour in the Greek Theater, is a pupil of Mackenzie Gordon, and has just completed a successful season of teaching and recital work in addition to being a member of the Loring Club of San Francisco and the Orpheus of Oakland, he is solo baritone at the First Baptist Church of Berkeley.

Miss Howell, a Berkeley girl, has received all her training from Hugo Mandolf, and is an excellent vice-president of the Mansfeld Club. She has been heard at numerous concerts and recitals throughout the state. The program that will be presented is as follows: Beier's "Light," Molloy's "The Pavilion," and Schubert's "Ich Liebe Dich." Mr. McLure: Liszt's "Transcription from Verdi's 'Rigoletto,'" Miss Howell: "Tours" "Your Eyes" and "Mother of Mine"; Mr. McLure: Liszt's "Eleventh Rhapsody" and Nicolaus's "Valse Caprice," Miss Howell; and, by request, the prouge to Leocadello's "I Pagliacci," Mr. McLure.

LECTURE INTERESTS.

One of the most interesting lectures of the week was on "George Frederick Handel" given by Professor Thomas W. Surette of the department of music in the summer school of the University of California. Miss Anna Miller Wood, contralto, assisted in the entertainment, together with Bother Wismer, violinist. Professor Surette said: "Handel was the Milton of music. He speaks with Miltonian grandeur. His thoughts music has extraordinary vitality, force and directness. The greatest success was in oratorio, although as a composer of opera he was among the greatest."

TENOR IS POPULAR.

Robert Battison is a local singer whose tenor voice is exceptionally fine and is heard frequently in concert, oratorio and church work on both sides of the bay. He sings at Trinity Church in San Francisco for a few weeks in Monterey county.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Rose of Alice Street have taken a bungalow at Ben Lomond.

J. J. Kekler is at Santa Cruz with his family.

SCHEDULED WEDNESDAY.

Miss Helen Kroeger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claus Kroeger of Vernon street, will become the bride of Ira Palmer Brink on Wednesday, July 31. Miss Hazel, Miss Louise and Miss Annie Kroeger will be the bridal attendants.

RETURNING HOME.

Miss Walton Moore has returned from McFaulk, where she has been spending the past month.

Mrs. Robert Hughes has returned from Brookdale.

Mrs. Albert Burch will return the latter part of next month from an extended European trip.

Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Jordan have returned from a trip to the Russian river.

AT CLOVERDALE.

Mrs. E. Seymour Young and Miss Helen Monique Young are at Cloverdale. Miss Young's marriage with Milton T. Farmer in St. Mark's Episcopal Church before a large assemblage of friends, the exact date not being set.

Gossip About Makers of Books and Their Work

The mention of Zane Grey's "The Heritage of the Desert" will probably serve to bring up vivid pictures before the eyes of all who have read that remarkable story. There is no danger of confusing it in retrospect with any of the familiar varieties of Western romance. Impression of the canyon country of southern Utah and the Colorado Rockies are too fresh to forget. Mr. Grey has now written a second novel, "Riders of the Purple Sage," just published by the Harpers.

Here again plot and scene are unusual and striking: the story is riotously full of adventure and alive with strong feeling. But the real secret of its peculiar charm lies deeper. Not only does the author surprise us with novelty, but he has the power of impressing upon us the natural, fresh, almost simple, elemental things.

In his two novels there is something of the same magic as in "Lorna Doone" and "Treasure Island"—tales which have little in common save this elemental freshness.

The reader who wishes to repeat the sensations left in youth in reading the book that then seemed most enjoyable may be commanded to "Riders of the Purple Sage," not that the theme is of fierce passions; there is much gun-play in it and some killing. It is natural, therefore, to inquire whether the effect is not a little melodramatic. We rejoice in a force of economy of phrase almost Rabelaisque. There are some splendid horserides in the race-like the horses in "Bet-Hur" and there is the sort of race that makes the eyes strain with the breath taken. Mr. Grey's place as a novelist is fully established by "Riders of the Purple Sage."

NOVELS OF THE WEST.

The scene of "Riders of the Purple Sage" is southern Utah; the time is 1871. The people are ranchers and cattle-rusters, Mormons and gentiles. ## MACDONOUGH

There will be a real treat in store for lovers of adventure and natural history when the marvelous Carnegie Alaska-Siberia moving pictures will be seen for the first time at the Macdonough theater for one week commencing this afternoon.

These wonderful pictures were taken by Capt. Kleinschmidt, the fearless Arctic big game hunter, who has spent the greater part of his life among the Eskimos in the land of the midnight sun. The camera shows this most daring tribe of Eskimos at work and at play, harpooning walrus, stalking the ponderous polar bear or pursuing the human-like seal, this unique figure of the north is always interesting. The scenes portray the Eskimo children, and in fact the entire colony, indulging in their favorite games. A moose hunt in Alaska is among the very interesting and thrilling scenes shown by the camera. The great monarch of the twilight land's jungles is seen almost within arm's reach of the camera wounded and at bay in a dense fastness. Herds of mountain goats scurrying across the bleak crags of an Arctic range, primitive railroading in Alaska, totem poles of a hundred or more weird and fantastic designs, manau hampered to a plow and other remarkable pictures are shown on the screen.

One of the most interesting scenes shows barren island in the center of Behring Sea. Precipitous walls of rock 800 feet high shut the granite waste from the sea. There are only two landing points on the entire shore line. At one of these the hills rise at somewhat easier angles and there on the slopes are perched a score or more of Eskimo houses, little round cheese box affairs propped up on drift wood stilts and enclosed with walrus skins. The pictures have created a genuine sensation wherever shown and are declared to be the crowning achievement of motion picture photography.

ORPHEUM

David Belasco's "Madam Butterfly," is the star attraction of the Orpheum bill for this week, opening this afternoon.

The announcement of the appearance of the "Madam Butterfly" company in vaudeville falls with a pleasing effect on the ears of the city amusement seekers. When the announcement was first made by Martin Beck, it aroused a new realization of the dignity of vaudeville. Belasco, in presenting this vaudeville masterpiece, brings out the best there is in him, this being his first experience in preparing vaudeville productions. That the show will be perfectly staged and with a selected cast and chorus, is assured.

The pathetic story of John Luther Long, about the Yankee and his little Japanese sweetheart, is already famous in vaudeville, grand opera and literature. In the former, however, it appears to have attained the zenith of its success.

Another feature of the bill for the week will be Ray L. Royce, a character artist of rare class.

Miss Edna Lubby is conspicuous as a capable mimic. With her art, enforced by her beauty and her deserving popularity, her gift of impersonation is remarkable, but nevertheless she has never claimed to do more than to suggest the subject of her impersonation.

Miss Lubby's work shows earnest effort, careful study and keen intellect. She has the mannerisms and peculiarity of each of the prominent players portrayed at her finger ends as the case may be.

Taking into consideration the character of the entertainment given by Harry Atkinson, the "Mikado," "Madame Butterfly," "High-Society," "Orpheum," high-sounding and inspiring as it may seem, is nothing short of appropriate. He possesses the peculiar faculty of imitating the mandolin, muzette, cornet, banjo, harp, violin (played both pizzicato and with the bow), bagpipes, penny trumpet, and others too numerous to mention. So realistic is the music he produces that it is difficult to believe that it is not from the real article. Reed strings and metallic tones are produced with equal facility, and this will be the more readily understood from a statement of Dr. Orwin, the eminent throat specialist of Weymouth street, London, who says that Mr. Atkinson has a wonderfully large throat at the back, with most powerful vocal chords. The nostrils, too, are perforated and honey-combed, thus acting as a sounding board and rend as well. These sounds are easy to produce and thus singing as a woman or imitation instruments are a pleasure rather than labor, in fact taking hard work to it.

The Kaufman Brothers are credited with having remarkably good voices, if they would take time to moderate them a bit. Their act, however, is not intended to demonstrate the wonderful voices with which Nature's god has endowed them, but to amuse their hearers in the old-fashioned bang-bang style of the coon-shouter. Their act is replete with original wit and humor, and they can come as near to provoking mirth at the depth of the Sphinx's soul as any of them.

Honors and Le Prince, a team of French acrobats, are new to America. They are like most Frenchmen, superior pantomimists and garnish their acrobatics with a running line of comedy. Many of the feats performed by the two are exceptional and they keep the audience laughing throughout the most difficult tasks.

A further feature of great interest in the week's bill will be the appearance of the Flye Piroscoffi. This quintet is composed of three men and two girls, and each is an accomplished juggler. They make what will undoubtedly prove to be the most dazzling display ever shown on an Orpheum platform.

Some marvelously good pictures, and some new music will serve to top off this most extraordinary bill.

BELL

Rural comedy and its quaint old-fashioned truths—always welcome and always "helpful"—is a feature of the new show at the Bell theater opening Sunday matinee.

The Three Bittners—the family, so to speak—present the delightful picture of crossroads life through the medium of the playlet "The Waif." Its lines abound in homely maxims. Its story is one of genuine heart interest and its presentation cannot be more than wished for in such capable hands.

A feature of interest will be the offering of the Grand Opera Trio of the Plaza Opera Co. They are European instrumentalists and vocalists who excel in lighter grand opera selections. They will also introduce popular favorites of the day.

A laughable novelty is contributed by Powell, who with crayon and blackboard evolves cartoons that tickle the funny bone.

SPECIAL 6 p. m. Show Tonight. Out in plenty of time to attend any other diversion you may desire. Matinee daily 2:30. Every evening at 7:30 and 9.

WONDERS OF TERRITORY SET FORTH IN GRAPHIC TERMS

Well Known Oaklander Sends Most Interesting Account of His Journey to the Northern Wilds

(By J. C. GILSON.)

The following interesting letter on Alaska was written for the OAKLAND TRIBUNE by J. C. Gilson, who, for many years has been connected with the public school system of Oakland and Alameda county, having served as County Superintendent and as principal:

We are here in Southwest Alaska after a comparatively uneventful journey from Oakland.

The first object of striking interest was Soda Springs, California, which was reached at 5:30 p.m., on the day of our departure. The clear sparkling water leaping in cascades from ledge to ledge, and beautifully illuminated by electric lights made the scene a magic fairy land.

At Roseburg, Oregon we ran into a rain storm. While our train, the Shasta Limited, was stopping at Salem, three dilapidated looking tramps drenched by the drizzling rain stole out from behind a warehouse and with cat-like steps made for the brake-beams of our car, the Shocco. On our speaking with the conductor about tramps, he replied: "O we have these fellows with us all the time." No attempt was made to dislodge the unwelcome travelers. The railroad authorities probably deem it wiser not to disturb the poor devils unless they become too numerous lest the vagabonds seek revenge. In the past many a tramp roughly handled by the trainmen fought back or sought revenge by attempting to wreck trains.

BOARD THE STEAMER.

On arriving at Seattle we boarded the steamer Alameda bound for Seward, Alaska. Our first port of call was Ketchikan, a thriving little city. It has all of the modern conveniences such as telephone, electric lights and a municipal water system. Here are located some of the largest salmon canneries of Alaska. It is also an important distributing point. The streets as well as the sidewalks are planked.

Walter E. Clark, Governor of Alaska, came aboard here and journeyed up as far as Juneau. We were introduced to him and enjoyed a pleasant chat.

After a short conversation we alluded to his article on Alaska in the last sunset.

He at once began a brief commentary on the condition and wants of Alaska. In a great measure he attributed the present unfortunate condition of the territory to the misleading statements that have been made coupled with the ignorant and vicious legislation of Congress.

Governor Clark is a bright man, very affable and earnestly desires to

DEER FLEEING FROM WOLVES.

Nearly all the way up snow-clad mountains were seen on either side. One morning our vessel nearly ran over two deer that were swimming across the channel in front of our boat. The timid creatures had probably been chased by timber wolves which infest many of the islands of the Inside Passage and to escape their enemies they had jumped into the water. There are two kinds of timber wolves, the black and the gray, both of which are large savage beasts. The poor deer have a hard time. The wolves and Indians kill the adults while the bald eagles kill many of the young fawns.

Only one large whale was seen and he performed his evolutions at a respectful distance from the steamer.

WHAT is the value of your heart? If that seat of the affections is rudely shattered, what damages should you ask?

Opinions differ, as will be seen from the table printed on this page. Every year hundreds of suits demanding money in return for breach of promise to marry are filed in the courts, and the amounts asked for vary from $5,000 to $100,000.

Most of the suits never come to trial, but are settled out of court. The majority of cases which reach a jury are decided in favor of the defendant, but there is always a rare deal of notoriety where the principals are of prominence, and the heart breaker would usually prefer to settle out of court rather than undergo the publicity.

Unpleasant for the Professor.

But breach of promise suits with their accompanying scandal have often resulted in great pecuniary loss to the defendant. The case of Miss Esther Quinn, a Boston stenographer, against Prof. Harry Thurston Peck of Columbia university recently created a sensation throughout the country. Prof. Peck had been at Columbia for many years was known as one of its most distinguished scholars, and was even mentioned for president of the institution when Seth Low resigned.

Enrico Caruso, Dr. to Elisa Ganelli.....$50,000

All might have been well if Miss Quinn had been content to file the suit and allow it to take the usual course through the court. Miss Quinn, however, did not object to notoriety and promptly gave out for publication certain letters of the professor's which were never intended to reach the public eye. In these epistles the Latin scholar displayed remarkable ability in the composition of love lyrics. They were gems of their sort and the tastrophe was aired in the New York courts a few months ago when Russell G. Griswold asked $50,000 damages from Miss Helen

Dr. Daniel B. Hayden, Dr. to Mary Lonergan.....$50,000

Woodruff Smith for refusing to marry him. Young Griswold, who is a bank clerk, 28 years old, accused Miss Smith, who is rich, nearly 50, and divorced, of shattering his young affections at least $50,000 worth.

The largest award in a breach of promise suit on record in Chicago within recent years was given to Miss Mary Lonergan in Judge Windes' court. Miss Lonergan testified that Dr. Daniel B. Hayden had become engaged to her several years ago, but that when she asked him to fix a date for their wedding he always put her off by saying he would "as soon as he had enough money." Judge Windes awarded her $25,000 damages. Fifty thousand dollars had been asked for.

Another instance where damages were awarded was the case of Miss Ethel McKee of Ottawa, Kas., against Prof. G. H. Crain, president of the Ottawa Business college. Miss McKee declared that the professor had promised to marry her, that the date had been fixed, and that she had gone to much expense preparing for the wedding. She asked for $20,000 as balm for her broken heart, and the court decided that $10,000 should be sufficient to effect a cure.

Singer in Court Limelight.

One of the most recent breach of promise suits of worldwide interest is that in which Enrico Caruso is being sued by pretty Elisa Ganelli, a shop girl of Milan. The love affairs and "trial marriages" of Caruso have furnished columns of news to the world's newspapers for years past.

When the famous tenor first came to this country he was accompanied by a woman whom every one supposed to be his wife. She was with him for two seasons and went everywhere as "Mme. Caruso." Finally the truth came out. The lady turned out to be Mme. Gine Betti, wife of a Florentine merchant, and Caruso was made defendant in a suit for alienation brought by her husband.

The trial marriage was suddenly disrupted and at present the tenor is involved in a maze of suits which may not be settled for years. Mme. Betti asks for damages as well as her husband, and various persons have been brought into the case until it threatens to drag on indefinitely.

Signorina Ganelli's suit against Caruso,

Porter S. Stover, Dr. to Grace E. Lewis.....$25,000 which was recently tried in Rome, was decided in the tenor's favor.

Another Case of "Temperament."

A week after meeting Elisa in the Milan shop, it is said, Caruso obtained an introduction to her from the proprietor of the store and immediately asked her to put on her hat and accompany him.

"We will leave here tomorrow, signorina," he said, according to the testimony. "I have decided to give a mother to my children, and you are the chosen one. If I had been so fortunate as to make your acquaintance fifteen or twenty days ago you would have been my wife by this time."

Caruso had to leave for Paris the next day, so the wedding did not take place. But during his absence the tenor bombarded the pretty shop girl with letters breathing undying affection. In these missives, which were read in court, he called her such endear names as "little treasure," "little sugar doll," and "dear, sweet thing."

Male Hearts Occasionally Shattered.

It isn't often that men bring suits for breach of promise, but occasionally some male heart is so badly broken that its owner thinks money the only remedy. Such a ca-

Mrs. Lillian V. Hamer, formerly employed at the Auditorium hotel, became disgusted with William H. Gilbert of Neenah, Wis., last summer because he wouldn't marry her, and went to court to demand $100,000 from the capitalist for heart breaking. The suit was embarrassing to Mr. Gilbert, who had often sued for breach of promise than poor men. When a poor man is the defendant some other motive than desire for money must be looked for in the complainant. Usually it is found that the owner of the broken heart wished to heap scandal on the head of the defendant so that he or she may not marry some one else, and often the method is effective. Lawyers do not encourage such suits as a rule. They point out to the angry litigants that the cases nearly always fail and that the only result will be a bill for costs and whatever satisfaction may accrue from the airing of a scandal.

The thermometer stood at about 196 in the shade. Sheriff Hank Feindt and I sat in the shade of a big boulder and mopped our brows as we waited for the approach of Slim Mannigan, a desperado whom we sought.

Slim was commonly known as the "Walking Arsenal." He toted about all the firearms he could strap on his belt. Within a few moments, a gun in either hand, he came panting along the trail.

As he slouched past I stepped behind him and caught him in a steel grip and held him thus for three or four minutes suspended in air while Hank securely bound him.

Then we sat him down beside a big rock. On top of this rock Hank piled Slim's formidable array of weapons, while I stood by and with a long rod bored a circle of deep holes in the earth.

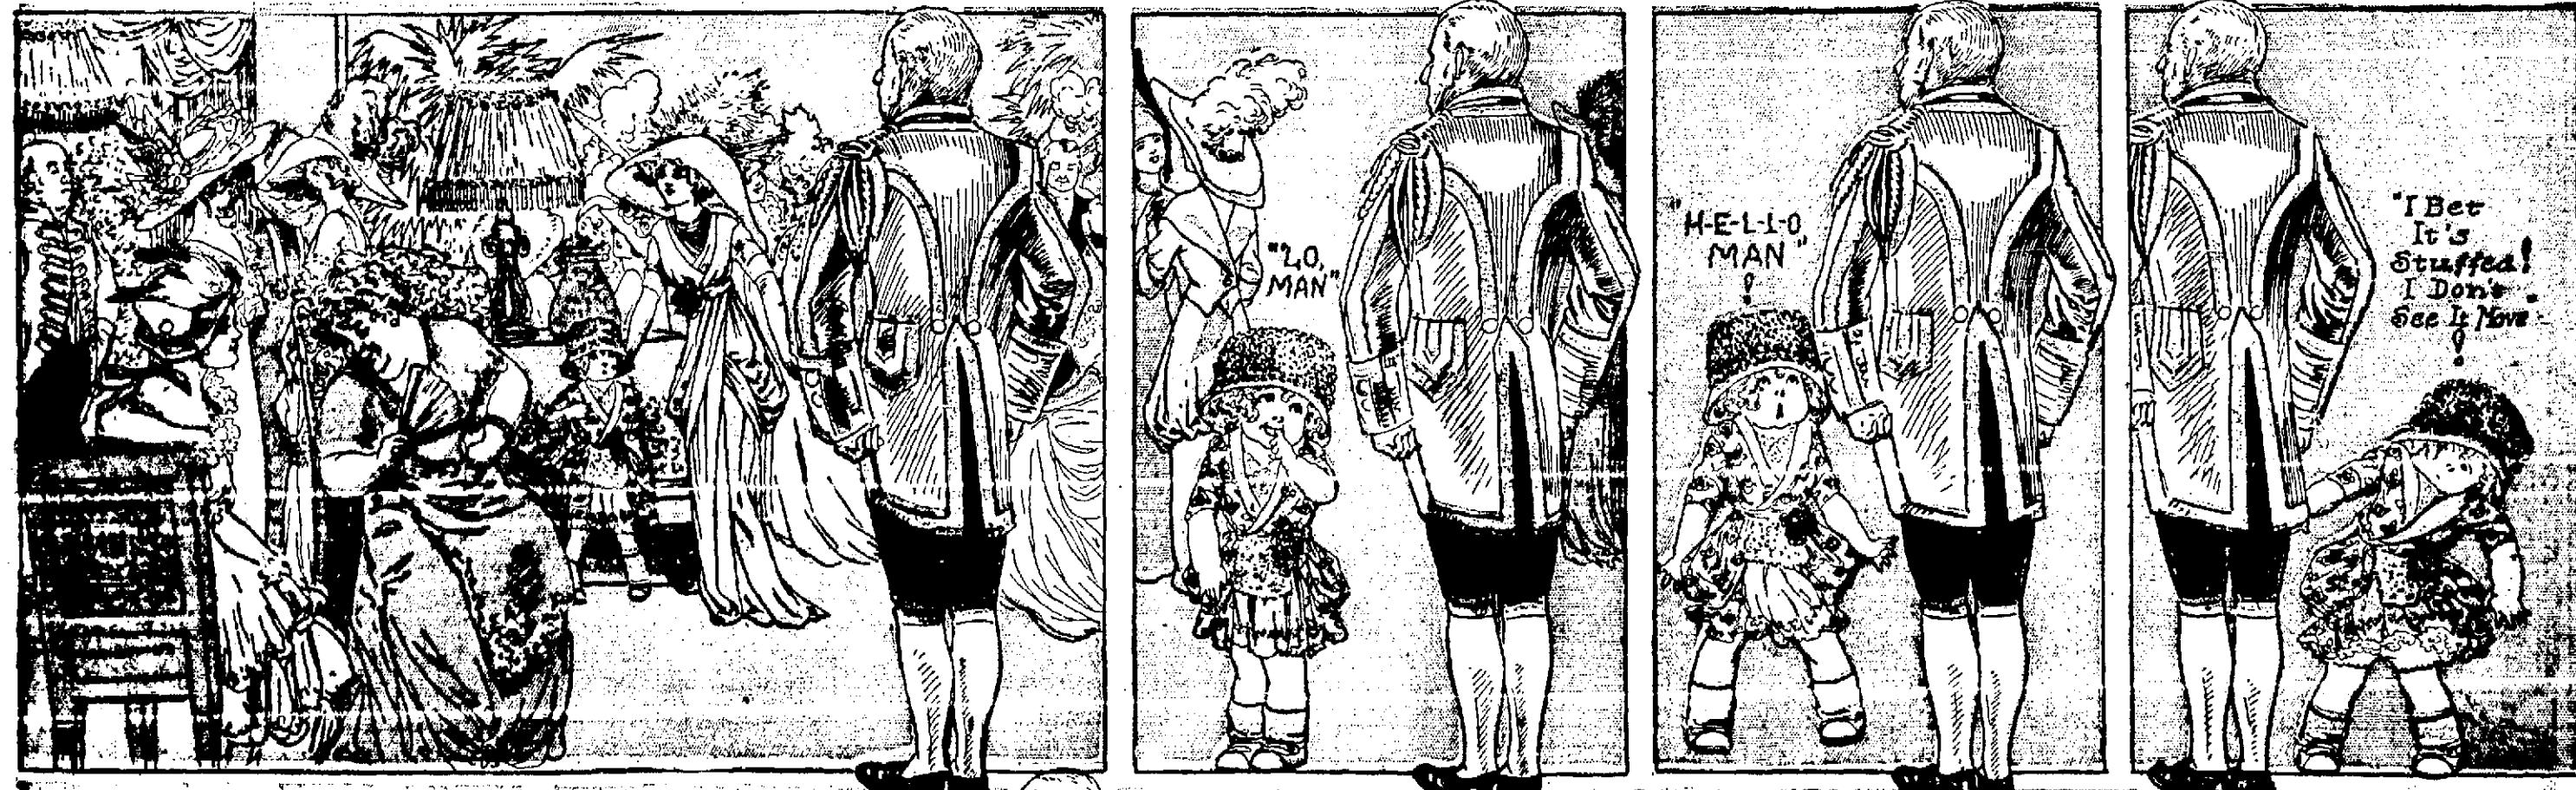

Hank then ran up the side of the mountain and removed a large chunk of overhanging rock which had cast its shadow over the boulder against which the desperado was braced. Mercilessly the sun beat down upon the weapons piled upon the rock, so hot, in fact, that within a few moments it had melted the guns and knives and things and was trickling down the rock and into the holes which I had bored.

When all the metal had run into the holes and had cooled off, while Slim watched us furtively, we dug away the dirt from about the holes, and there before the astonished vision of Hank and Slim stood a large, globular, steel barrel cage formed of the metal formerly in the weapons.

Breaking the bar with which I had dug the holes in two, I swiveled them and thrust them into the ends of the cage. Thus, with Hank on one end and your Uncle Opie on the other, we caged Slim as we would any other wild beast, and in the cool of the evening, when the skies were purpling in the twilight, we rolled Slim into town and soon had him under lock and key. And his arsenal was destroyed.

WORKS' ICY REPLY COOLS INSURGENTS

Senator Is Congratulated, While Progressives Take Second Sober Thought

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Senator Works today received a second telegram from the group of California insurrectionists who demanded his resignation. It was in reply to his letter in which he suggested that the insurgents should take a sober second thought, and it is understood that the tone of the telegram indicates that they have done so.

It is understood to be much more moderate in tone than the snappy first message, and while Senator Works would not discuss its contents, it is believed that the authors of the resignation demand have receded from their suggestion that the Senator should return home.

A reply to the second communication is being prepared by Senator Works and will be sent tonight. It will meet the spirit of the second message, but there will be no recession from the position taken by the Senator in both his articles on the political situation and the letter in answer to the resignation mandate.

Telegrams continued to reach Senator Works from California today in commendation of his course. He declined to give out the names of senders or the contents. One congratulatory message from a suburb of Los Angeles contained 36 signatures.

WORKS CONGRATULATED.

It leaked out over the "grapevine" telegraph at the capitol today that one message received by the Senator congratulated him on his stand against the "pawnbroker and the rest."

Whether this message related to the district legislation on pawnshops, in which Senator Works is interested, as a member of the district committee, and to railroad legislation now pending in Congress, or whether it had merely some local significance, no one undertook to explain.

Rebels Attack Train and Sixty Are Instantly Killed

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—Fifteen hundred Zapata rebels, led by Zapata in person, attacked a passenger train between this city and Cuernavaca, capital of the state of Morelos, sixty miles southwest of here, this morning and killed more than sixty persons. The train, the first one which has been run any distance over the Cuernavaca division for more than seven months, was wrecked by the rebels.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Otto Roeder, proprietor of a moving picture theater at 1111 Railroad avenue, on being requested to remove persons standing in aisles tonight, ejected just one citizen. He happened to be Patrolman William Rakstray, who had tried to protect Roeder, who said he was violating the fire ordinance, and, in consequence, the manager was promptly locked up at the Bay View Station. When Rakstray made his demand that the passageways be cleared, he declares, he was promptly hustled along himself. Roeder was charged with resisting an officer and violating ordinance 1144.

Hunted Suspect Walks Into Arms of Police

Man Sought by Oakland Police Is Arrested in Alameda Station.

In some cases men literally walk into the arms of the police. When J. Schule, a fugitive from Alameda police station last night and asked permission to see his lawyer, a prisoner, he was recognized by Sergeant Jacoby as the man wanted by the Oakland police in connection with several check passing escapades conducted by Schule in this city. He was arrested and brought to the city jail by Detective Tim Flynn.

Schule was arrested in Alameda about two weeks ago on a charge of passing bogus checks. The checks, however, were not endorsed and Schule was wanted in this city on a like charge and is being held in custody now. The police are holding Stever on suspicion of being connected with Schule in his actions.

DOG'S BITE CAUSE OF DEATH

Rabies Contracted and Victim Suffers Tortures From Fatal Wound

Bitten by Pet Six Weeks Ago and Failed to Give Proper Attention

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—A bite received from a pet dog six weeks ago, which did not trouble him until last Wednesday, caused the death from rabies at 5:30 o'clock tonight of John J. Rohrer, a tanner, of 2390 Bryant street.

Rohrer thought nothing of the slight job made playfully by the little canine in his home in the early part of June. The wound healed and he went away to the country with his wife, returning last week. His hands were blistered from the heat and Wednesday he noticed a shooting pain in his arm. He called on Dr. J. W. Gunn, of 2396 Bryant street, who prescribed for him.

He failed, however, to have the medicine made up, and Friday, suffering awful torture, again visited the physician, Dr. Sawyer, and Dr. W. R. Kellogg of 2390 Bryant street, were called in consultation, and heroic measures were adopted. Despite everything that could be done, however, the patient died tonight, and the case was at once referred to the health board.

Rohrer was 50 years of age. An autopsy will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The attending physicians are convinced that nothing but rabies could have caused death in this fashion.

Gomez Kidnaped by Secret Service Men

Other Mexicans Are Also Detained on Charge of Breaking Neutralities.

SAN ANTONIO, July 20.—Emilio Gomez, minister of the interior in the Diaz cabinet and for a week provisional president of the Orozco revolutionary party was kidnapped by United States secret service officers today and up to midnight was held prisoner in the federal building. Simultaneously with the capture of Gomez, Francisco Guzman, private secretary of Gomez, and Dr. E. Ruhe were taken into custody on the street and Francisco Perez and Felipe Mivannon, identified with the Gomez revolutionary faction, were taken from a Southern Pacific train which they had boarded for El Paso. All five prisoners are charged with violating the United States neutrality laws. For days the United States authorities have known of a new revolutionary plot forming here, said to have its base of operations in the states of Nueva Leon and Coahuila, Mexico, across the Texas border. Large quantities of arms and ammunition are known to have been shipped through here from St. Louis, Kansas City and New Orleans, some of it going to El Paso, but the larger portion to Laredo, Texas.

United States Commissioner Edwards at midnight brought all five over for hearing Monday morning. Gomez was held in $10,000 bail and the others in $5,000 each. Being unable to provide the sureties the defendants were taken to the county jail.

Says Deaths Are Due to Mental Telepathy

Detangled Letter Carrier Claims Possession of Strange Power and Surrenders.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The recent loss of life on eastern railroads, the murdering of persons here and there throughout the country during the past few weeks, and all mysterious deaths may be laid to one cause—mental telepathy—according to the confessions of Frank J. Hanley, the Los Angeles letter carrier, who gave himself up to the police here tonight.

Hanley, who is now in a cell at the detention house to hold for examination as to his sanity, declares that he has been killing people all over the United States by merely concentrating his mind upon them. He started his machinations on certain residents of Angelus a week ago and sent a telegram to the chief of police so that it calling his attention to the address given as 144 Fourth street. The message was traced, and the place was found to be the Sherman House, where Hanley was not known.

Tonight the local police were attracted to the case by the letter-carrier's story and desire to have him examined and made more people fall dead through the world's workings of "spiritualism." He goes perfectly sane when he left Los Angeles on a vacation a month ago, and his malady is a strange one.

Despite Mikado's Regaining of Consciousness, Relatives Await End

Crown Prince Is Also Ill in the Palace; Cannot See His Father

TOKIO, July 20.—A surprising change for the better was noted in the condition of Mutsuhito, emperor of Japan at midnight tonight. He was able to take a little nourishment, in addition to regaining consciousness for a brief period.

In the royal chamber the aged empress and the physicians alone are allowed to remain while the princes and the blood royal wait. The momentarily expected word of the emperor's death in an adjoining chamber.

All the ministers and high dignitaries of the realm are assembled here in response to a summons from the empress, who has been advised by the physicians that the emperor's hours are numbered.

CROWDS GATHER

The streets are thronged with thousands of loyal Japanese and there are many meetings, but all are assemblies of prayer asking for the recovery of the man who has ruled Japan for 45 years. The whole nation is praying for the life of its ruler, and through the gates of its residence and the throngs are silent and word of his condition passes like a low sigh of relief ripples across the entire city, but there was no cheering.

The crown prince, Yoshihito, who is almost as well beloved by the Japanese people as his father, is seriously ill in his own palace. He is suffering from chicken pox and his physicians have forbidden his removal to the bedside of his father. He was informed of the emperor's serious illness yesterday and begged to be allowed to go to his father, but the request was refused.

Yoshihito is 32 years old, an admiral in the navy, and a hero of the Russo-Japanese war. His accession to the throne will be hailed with almost as much rejoicing as was that of his father forty-five years ago.

HAS LITTLE HOPE OF RECOVERY.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Viscount Chiyuada, on receipt of a cable message from Tokio today, declared there seemed to be but small hope for the survival of the Mikado. The message said the emperor is suffering from acute uraemic poisoning.

Dr. Cook is a well known citizen of this city and a man of standing in the community. Dr. Cook tells of the occurrence as follows:

"Not long ago I received a letter from William Blackwell concerning whose spiritualistic findings there. It is now so much comment particularly in London.

He was a great friend of W. T. Stead, the late famous spiritualist, and inclosed in the letter a communication he had received from Stead a month ago. It ended with the words, 'I cannot say more, except that I would like to be photographed at the earliest opportunity.'

It occurred to me that it would be difficult to secure a picture of Stead's spirit, because the "spirit" is not a physical entity who have succeeded in taking pictures of spiritual forms. About ten days ago, while at the studio of Alexander Martin, a Denver photographer, I mentioned this to Martin that I felt ill at ease and believed I would die. He smiled and wheeled the camera into place and I sat down in a plain wooden chair and he took the picture. When he developed the plate there appeared just above my right shoulder the spirit of William T. Stead. It was unlike any of the many pictures which I have seen of him. I am sending the photo without comment to Blackwell."

'BESSIE AND I ARE BOTH GONE'

W. L. Mullenix Leaves Open Farewell Note and Eight Sealed Letters

Oakland Woman's Mysterious End Followed by Second Tragedy

THE death of Miss Bessie Young in this city Friday, whether accidental or suicidal, caused Walter L. Mullenix, her sweetheart, to take his life in an Ellis street lodging house in San Francisco yesterday.

Hours of brooding by Mullenix followed the girl's sudden death. He crept into the local morgue, where her body lay and as silently stole away, leaving no word with the officials. Then he made his way to where the dead girl had lived and to the stranger who met him at the door he told of his great grief and his greater love.

Then Mullenix prepared for death. Eight letters to friends and relatives he wrote, addressed, sealed and stamped. An open note lay with his body: "Bessie and I are both gone."

MYSTERY IS SOLVED.

For several hours yesterday the officials were puzzled as to the identity of "Bessie," but through letters found among Mullenix's effects the mystery of the farewell note was solved.

Miss Young, who was employed as a maid at the home of Mrs. M. C. Anthony, at 466 Moss avenue, was found unconscious in her room about 1 o'clock Friday morning. Mrs. Anthony's attention was attracted by the odor of gas fumes and on investigation found that they came from the room occupied by the girl. Opening the door, she found the young woman, attired in a white dress, lying across the bed. The fumes caused by a small gas heater left burning in the room with oil remaining, but out, had so filled the room that the occupant had been rendered unconscious. She was rushed to the hospital, but was dead before aid could be administered.

LETTERS IN GIRL'S ROOM.

In searching the room of the woman for any indication that would point to the fact that she had taken her life, the police found several letters, which were taken to be referred to in the investigation.

With the death of Mullenix and the strange note left by him to the outside world, saying briefly, "Tell William that Bessie and I are both gone," the police linked together their chain of evidence.

Yesterday Detectives Kivis and Green visited the home of Mrs. Anthony and were informed that Mullenix had called at the house on hearing of the young woman's death and seemed greatly grieved over the affair. After telling of his relations with the girl he left without a word of suicide to follow.

Among Mullenix's eight letters was one to his father and mother, who are living in La Harte, Kan. The police have not opened any of the letters.

DEATH TO ASPHYXIATION.

The sentence over the body of young showed, apparently, that death was due to asphyxiating. The stomach was removed, however, and placed with City Chemist Daniels for analysis, to ascertain if the young woman had taken poison.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Among the effects of Walter L. Mullenix, the young tailor who committed suicide today by inhaling gas in a lodging house at 333 Ellis street, were found several letters signed "Bessie."

Among these was the following:

Dear Darling, I arrived here O. K., everything lovely. Folks glad to see us. We're all well. I may come back tomorrow or Friday. I do not think I will stay longer. They are going to have some sort of a celebration here. I guess it'll all be fun. How are you feeling now? I don't know how better. You, too. I am almost afraid to stay for the Fourth. Honey, we'll stay while I am away.

Well, as it is almost dinner time, I have to close. Love and kisses to you from your darling Bessie.

The notes will last 10 days. My box has cost $2.50 in New Orleans, and I'll be back last night and the 22nd where he was found dead.

CARMEL'S 'TOAD' HOPS TO FAME FROM ANCIENT EGYPT

Four Thousand in Greek Theater See Transplanted Mystic Drama

BERKELEY, July 20.—"The Toad," a drama of ancient Egypt, written by Mrs. Bertha Newberry, had its first production outside of Carmel-by-the-Sea this evening, before an appreciative audience of 4000 people at the Hearst Greek theater. Intelligent and poetic lines couched with more than usual excellence among the amateur players who include some of the best known writers and artists of the west, marked the production. Of special note was the Egyptian dance in which the lead was taken by Miss Daisy Fox Desmond. She was assisted by eight other young women and their dance evoked continuous applause. A number of professional players were in the audience, which more than half filled the theater. Among these were David Warfield and a number of the members of his company and De Wolf Hopper heading a party of his players.

NOTED ACTORS THERE.

The great state of the Greek theater furnished ample opportunity for the scenic investiture of the drama. The imposing quality inherent in its lines and setting received adequate assistance from stage setting and lighting. Among the players Perry Newberry, as the Toad, received the major portion of the evening's applause. His characterization of the difficult role approached professional ability. Grant Wallace was an excellent King Manetho, while the part of the Queen Ismar, was played with all of its needed dramatic fire by Miss Sophie Treadwell. Notable among the others were J. Grider, as Ahahmes, the scheming brother of the king, and Joseph W. Hand as Thiro, the drunken inspector of the wall. One of the cleverest gits of work done in the play was the presentation of Cleis by Miss Helen Cooke Wilson. Miss Wilson received applause time and again during the evening for her sympathetic rendering of the beautiful lines furnished her by her part.

STORY OF THE PLAY.

ACT I.

Prince Ahahmes conspires against his brother, King Manetho, and secures the aid of Ismar, the queen, who is in love with him. She intercedes with her royal husband to make him commander of the troops. The Toad, the king's dwarf, opposes the appointment. The King has dreamed of treachery, and Cleis, a princess of Amun, is asked to interpret the dream. She foretells war and danger to the king. The queen having gained the command for Ahahmes, she and Cleis clash over his first order, that the Toad shall be lashed until his tongue is stilled.

ACT II.

Thiro, inspector of the walls, having discovered the conspiracy, seeks to warn the king, but he is slain by Ahahmes' conspirators. Having fallen in love with Pasara, the king's younger brother, Cleis loses her power of foresight and is stilled.

ACT III.

Ahahmes decides to act for himself, seizes the Toad to the royal chamber from Manetho, and kills his brother. He meets Cleis with whom he is secretly in love, and begs her to become his queen. Ismar overhears his declaration and Cleis' curse of the prince, and in jealous rage denounces Ahahmes to the Toad, who is the murderer of King Manetho. He is dragged away to execution. Learning suddenly that his beloved master has been slain, the Toad throws himself in an agony of grief on the steps leading to the entrance hall of the palace where the body of the King lies. The priestesses of Isis take charge of the corpse and the play closes with Father's forbidding Ismar to approach it and drawing the curtain that shut it from sight.

THESE IN THE CAST.

The complete cast was as follows: The Toad, the king's dwarf, Perry Newberry; Ahahmes, the king's scheming brother, John T. Grider; Ismar, Queen of Amun, Sophie Treadwell; Ranofer, an intriguing statesman, J. E. Beck; Moore, captain of the Bishops, Arthur Vachell; Thiro, Inspector of the walls, Joseph W. Hand; Pasara, the king's younger brother, Michael Williams; Thethini, captain of the guards, Fred Leding; Cleis, princess of Amun, Helen Cooke Wilson; Keza, Cleis' tiring woman, Ethel Turner; Amun, King of Acoris, Grant Wallace; Hathor, priestess to Isis, Harriet Bradford; Nemath and Tenuis, soldiers of the guard, F. Austin James and Louis Lewis; Saramon, a bow man, Walter Warren; second bow man, Donald Kehl; Mrs. J. E. Beck; Arista, M. de Neale Morgan; first woman, Luria Stone; assassin, William Overstreet; Edward H. Odell; Xavier, King of Acoris; Egyptian dancer, Diane Fox Desmond; Pasara, Elliot Bock, Dorothy Marston-Graham, Jeanette Hoagland, Alice McLaughlin, Vivian Untermyer, Elizabeth Brydridge, priestesses, Bessie McFarland, Irene Frank, Margaret Cabaniss, Helen Allen, Mansfield Allen, Bunice Allen; guards, Nubian slaves, Egyptian villagers, etc.

WOMEN INDULGE IN ROUGH AND TUMBLE FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Mrs. Emma Weisig, and Mrs. Bertha Agidi occupy adjoining rooms in the apartment house at Twenty-sixth and Capp streets. They are bosom friends but tonight had a falling out, and had it not been for the attaches of the Mission band, Mrs. Weisig would probably have suffered serious consequences. She claimed that Mrs. Agidi struck her, inflicting a wound over the eye, her injury had fared so well she was unconscious from loss of blood when the hospital was reached. Steward Thomas guilky staunched the flow and Dr. O'Connor dressed with hasty. Mrs. Agidi was charged with battery.

Wife of Candidate Blinks At the Light of Publicity

MRS. WOODROW WILSON, WIFE OF PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE, WHO IS WELL INFORMED ON POLITICAL AFFAIRS.

TRENTON, July 20.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of Governor Wilson, Democratic candidate for president, does not like publicity and is essentially a home body. She was Miss Helen Louise Aspin of Savannah, Ga., before her marriage, which occurred in 1885.

The wife of the governor is intensely interested in her husband's career, and is said to know as much about inside politics as many of the cleverest politicians in the country. Governor and Mrs. Wilson have three daughters all grown, into womanhood. Their home life is ideal and the candidate for president is never happier than when he is permitted to escape from the affairs of state to enjoy the society of his home circle.

VIGILANTES FORMED TO RUN DOWN ASSASSINS

New York Citizens Back District Attorney in Rosenthal Murder Case

NEW YORK, July 20.—An old-time vigilance committee, such an organization as made itself a terror for evil doers in the West in the early '40s, has been organized in this city to hunt down the slayer or slayers of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, who was assassinated in front of the Metropole hotel five days ago. District Attorney Whitman and the Burns Detective Agency will do the actual work, but the vigilance committee, formed of leading members of the Citizens' Union, will pay the expenses of the detectives from their own pockets and will aid in every manner the running down of the murderers and the placing of the responsible where it belongs.

FOLLOWS POLICE FAILURE.

The coming of citizens into the investigation followed the failure of the police to arrest any of the leading figures, some of whom have been known since the night of the killing. Aroused by this action on the part of the citizens, Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty today announced that the mystery of the killing of Rosenthal will be cleared up soon and that the solution will exonerate the police department.

SEEK GIRL SINGER.
Detectives of the Burns agency are looking for Miss Artie Hall, who was singing in the dining room of the Hotel Metropole when the music was suddenly hushed by the shot of the pistol that murdered Rosenthal.

Although Miss Hall did not witness the killing, it is believed she could be of great aid in identifying the men who moved in and out of the room while Rosenthal sat there just before his death. Lieutenant Becker of the "strong arm" squad, whose enmity for Rosenthal was well known, has not yet been suspended despite the accusations of graft made against him by Rosenthal and his well-known intimacy with Jack Rose, who hired the automobile in which the men who killed Rosenthal went to the Metropole and then made his escape.

Police Commissioner Walmsley said today that Becker would not be suspended unless some "real evidence" should be brought against him. Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, however, intimated that he was investigating Becker's connection with the affair.

Dougherty practically eliminated "Big Jack" Bell from suspicion of being implicated in the murder of Rosenthal.

These thugs were secured for that purpose by Jack Rose, the gambler, who had intimate relations with Becker and who had been put under pressure by Becker to see that Rosenthal's mouth was closed. Rose was a leading spirit in "getting" Rosenthal, but he had arranged his plans so he would not be present at the actual crime.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty says he knows all the men who have been mentioned or as far as those who may have figured in the plot against Rosenthal. There are some of those names besides the prisoners in the Tombs and the all-important "Big Jack" Bell, "Schoeppe" or "Sheeps" who got into the car with Rose when it met him in front of Shockey's place; Whitley Lewis, Lefty Loewey, and "Gib the Bloots" whose right name is said to be Horowitz. Report has it that some of these have left town. All have been affiliated in one way or another with the Sam Paul Association.

EYE WITNESS FOUND.

Accusing the police of deliberately allowing the man who shot Gambler Herman Rosenthal to death live nights ago to escape, declaring that the uniformed officer refused his testimony and ignored other passers-by who saw the shooting, an eye witness of the killing in front of the Metropole told his story to the International News Service today and will tell it on Monday to District Attorney Whitman.

This man, who had spoken of what he saw to friends, has been threatened with the loss of his position, which is a responsible one, and even with bodily injury, if he told what he knew. He said that remarked that he guessed it was no worse offense than petty larceny, and fined Tony $2 and costs, amounting to $15.

Tony was in a saloon at Birkner. Mr. Hummel lives next door to the saloon. She was sitting on a porch, upon which a window opened from the saloon. Tony was her, peered out through a window, drew her to him and kissed her before she could break away from his grasp.

CAMPAIGN FOR COLONEL BEGINS

Supporters Become Active In Several Parts of the Country.

FARGO, N. D., July 20.—The Roosevelt campaign was formally launched in North Dakota, tonight when a call for a state convention to be held at Fargo Friday, July 26, was issued. The call was signed by more than fifty progressives from all sections of the state. A. Y. Moore, national provisional committeeman from North Dakota, recently appointed, issued the call. Friday's state convention here will elect five delegates to the national progressive party convention, to be held in Chicago August 5.

CHOOSE DELEGATION.
MANCHESTER, N. H., July 20.—Three hundred delegates, representing those who supported Theodore Roosevelt in the New Hampshire primaries, today voted to put Roosevelt electors on the November ballot by petition, and chose a delegation of four, headed by Governor Robert P. Bass, to the bull moose convention at Chicago August 5. The New Hampshire progressives decided, however, not to put a state ticket in the field this fall.

ACTIVE IN MICHIGAN.
JACKSON, Mich., July 20.—The "bull moose" men of Michigan met here in convention today, got orders from Colonel Roosevelt, through the person of Senator Dixon, to put a full third party ticket in the field, according to those terms and organized a national progressive party. About a thousand delegates were present. Roosevelt's orders came in no uncertain terms, and they caused the overthrow of supporters of Governor Osborn, who planned to put only Roosevelt electors in the field and attempt to capture the regular Republican organization for the remainder of the ticket.

"Win or lose, put up your ticket. Pick out men in Michigan willing to be sacrificed if necessary. Don't sacrifice Theodore Roosevelt with a botched electoral ticket in this state," said Senator Dixon, addressing the convention.

BETTER PROSPECTS IN WHEAT MARKET

Experts Report That Crops Will Be Greater Than Expected.

(By JOSEPH F. PRITCHARD)
CHICAGO, July 20.—A total wheat crop of over 700,000,000 bushels, which is 1,000,000 bushels in excess of that indicated by the Government July report, is the estimate of B. W. Snow, the Bartlett-Frazer crop expert.

Mr. Snow has just returned from a trip over both great wheat belts and he has increased his estimate on the winter wheat crop to 400,000,000 bushels because of the favorable weather west of the Missouri river, as shown in the threshing returns now coming forward.

George M. LeCount, another well known crop expert and an accepted authority, in summing up the spring wheat crop, places it at 275,000,000 bushels for the three states. LeCount says that the cool weather of the past few days, instead of proving a drawback to the growing plant, has caused a rapid advance in the price. It has been increased no little consequence. In addition to the above as bearish helps were reports from the Southwest, in which it was said that the threshing returns were much more favorable than looked for even by the growers.

LOWER PRICES NEAR.

Those in the wheat trade who have been claiming that the Southwestern receipts were unlikely to increase last week now see their error, as Kansas City and St. Louis received 715,000 bushels Saturday, which was 446,000 bushels larger than the previous Saturday and 219,000 bushels greater than for the corresponding day last year.

The head of one of the leading commission houses said after the close tonight that the wheat situation, generally speaking, is anything but strong and that it will take continued buying to sustain values around the present level. In case the market conditions are bad, factors of maintaining character, prospects are for lower prices all the way.

Good corn, which had cost west of the river, caused a general liquidation in corn and had not wholly come into the market and bought freely at times, sharp losses would have been suffered. Owing to the high price of corn and the low price of other feedstuffs those who favor the bear side of the market argue that the corn will be given but little attention and that cheaper feed will be used in its place.

OATS SHOW BETTER.

Oats developed a better undertone on terms of wet harvests on which shorts were still buyers. Investors continue to buy the September future.

There was some investment buying of land on the belief that Europe will come into the market at no far distant day. September pork was also a favorite and there was good taking of ribs. Packers sold on the hard spots and caused reactions all around.

Decisions were shown in all of the grain markets, 7@8% for wheat, 7@8% for corn and 6@7% for oats. Provisions were 2@3@10% better.

In summing up his reasons for desiring a decree, Frank says that it would be impossible for him to live longer with his wife.

SULPHUR FINE MOUTH PURIFIER

Germes Enter System Through Mouth.
"The main channels through which disease germs reach the human body are the nose and the mouth," writes a leading physician in a special article which appeared recently in a San Francisco newspaper. He continues: "That is, through the mouth or nose the germs of consumption, diphtheria, typhoid, tonsillitis, pneumonia and spinal meningitis find their way into the human system." Nature has so arranged the working of the chemistry of the blood and tissues that in the absolutely healthy man or woman, when these disease germs enter the body, the channels they are at once destroyed and thus devoured by cells made for this express purpose."

(Read the Booklet.)

Therefore, it behoves all of us to keep our systems, and especially the mouth, in condition to overcome these disease germs.

greatest antiseptic offered by Nature and Sulphur, which is the new Liquid Sulphur Compound, provides an antiseptic of the greatest value to the human race.

Many dentists are recommending Sulphur as an antiseptic wash for the mouth. Dr. Howard states that the importance of the mouth channels in relation to combat disease germs. Sulphur as a dentifrice cleanses the teeth, and the pure Sulphur is often used. Once a day Sulphur should be dropped full strength (with medicine dropper) between teeth and gums, and retain a few seconds. It has proved most effective in cases of tooth decay.

Sulphur as an antiseptic wash upon the tongue, will clean the mouth and remove all the debris left upon the tongue.

BUSINESS BETTER; CROPS ARE FINE

Bank Statement Shows Gain in Surplus Reserves and Money Is Easy.

(By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL)

NEW YORK, July 20.—Grain and cotton went lower today and no changes of importance were recorded in the stock market. Good news kept piling up regarding crops and the business outlook.

The bank statement showed a gain in surplus reserves of $18,084,500 in the average statement and of $8,459,250 in the actual statement of business at the end of Friday. There was an actual decrease in loans of $15,444,000, an average reduction of $22,429,000.

There is an enough position to handle anything that may come in the way of business or speculation. Money is extremely cheap before offered over the end of the year for 4% per cent on ordinary stock exchange collateral. Wall street is getting over its scare about British consols and it does not believe that war will be declared between Germany and England for a week or two at least.

HARVESTER BEST STOCK.

About the only stocks to display much vitality today were Harvester on the exchange and United Cigar Stores on the curb. Both moved up sharply.

The Harvester company is advancing partly through the hope that the government will dissolve it as the Standard Oil and American Tobacco companies were dissolved and on account of the immense harvest.

The Cigar Stores company moved up to a high record price for the year in expectation of an early announcement of the new financial plan. This plan is unofficially said to include a stock dividend of 200 per cent, the 8 per cent dividend being paid on the entire issue. The company is doing business at the rate of $30,000,000 gross annually now, which is 20 per cent greater than the best it ever did in the past.

PREPARE DIVIDENDS.

Some specialities are being picked up in preparation for movements when the market is right. Industrial Alcohol is one of these, the stock being prepared for a 100 per cent dividend, to be declared early in the autumn. Westinghouse is being accumulated in anticipation of a 6 per cent dividend in September. General Electric is expected to net at least 50 per cent in new stock. Canadian Pacific will make a very large stock issue to provide for double tracking the road from Winnipeg to Vancouver, as exclusively announced in this column months ago.

The market is in good technical condition in spite of the rise of the last week.

FRESNO MUSEUM HAS

PELICAN ON EXHIBIT

FRESNO, July 20.—The Fresno Chamber of Commerce is not only displaying exhibits of agricultural, industrial and mineral products of Fresno county, but it is becoming a natural history museum as well.

The latest addition to the collection is a North American white pelican. The bird was presented by W. T. Hollingsworth and occupies a prominent position just inside the main entrance to the building. The pelican was killed about three miles south of Clovis in this county and was preserved here.

About a month ago W. W. Phillips presented the Chamber of Commerce with two mammoth black bass, caught in the Kings river. These bass have been preserved and adorn a big slab of pine at the left of the main entrance within the building.

As quickly as the officers operated word of their coming preceded them along the line. Most of the poolrooms were found closed and padlocks on the outside. The cigar men had transferred their "dope" sheets to hiding places some distance from the scene of their operations, but few arrests were made. A Third-street poolroom was caught in operation and several men were hurried to headquarters by Detective Sergeant Redmond.

In the early evening several officers suddenly came down upon a cigarstand at 2622 Mission street, conducted by Fred Coleman and his brother, Edward. Both were charged with violating section 351 A of the penal code, and Allen Woodward was taken into custody and charged with visiting a gambling resort.

HOUSE WILL NOT ASK DISSOLUTION

Chairman Stanley Says That Report Was Issued to Affect Steel Mart.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Chairman Stanley of the House steel trust investigation committee authorized today a denial of the report that the committee would recommend the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation. Stanley declared he believed that reports given out to that effect had been calculated to affect the New York stock market.

Chairman Stanley declared he would from time to time, give to the public the conclusions of the committee. Stanley is said to feel that leakage from the sessions of the steel committee has aided the efforts of certain persons who hoped to gain by circulation of the report that the committee would rather recommend the dissolution of the steel corporation. The committee, he said, agreed that no recommendation for dissolution would be included in the report when the government suit against the steel corporation was filed.

RECORDS MUST BE OPEN.

Some of the things the Democratic members of the committee really have agreed upon follow:

That hereafter the records of the office of the commissioner of corporations shall be open to Congress.

That they will propose to amend the act creating the Department of Commerce and Labor to make the commerce and labor bureaus accountable to Congress as well as to the President. This determination is said to have been influenced by the refusal of Herbert Knox Smith, former commissioner of corporations, to give to the Stanley committee the facts he had gleaned from the steel trade.

A bill to prevent any stockholders of any locomotive, coal, ore or steel company from serving as a director on any interstate commerce carrier.

A proposed amendment to section 4 of the Sherman Act giving any injured party the right to sue on an equality with the government to enjoin a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

WILSON GREETED BY CONGRESSMEN

Candidate Asks That His Opponents for Nomination Speak for Him.

SEA GIRL, N. J., July 10.—A special train bearing the Democratic congressmen from Washington reached Sea Girl this afternoon and the delegation, headed by Speaker Clark, walked from the station to the governor's cottage.

After a short speech by Speaker Clark, Governor Wilson said:

"It seems to me that the real difficulty of politics in our modern days is that men have not laid their minds alongside one another in having a common interest in what they seek to do. You cannot accommodate interests by having these interests hold off and say, 'We are not going into the common councils.'

"You can, in a common partnership or council, bring all the people of the United States into partnership with one another, and, therefore, it is with particular pleasure that I welcome the opportunity today to meet you. I hope this is only the beginning of a long acquaintanceship, which will be born in a singularly high undertaking."

Several members of the committee proposed that Governor Wilson speak once from the same platform with each of his opponents for nomination.

POOR FLUFFY HAD A TERRIBLE TIME

Woman Leaves Her Pet on the Counter and It Is Wrapped Up.

FRESNO, July 20.—Some woman in Fresno just missed having the surprise of her life recently. And it was caused by a dog.

Into one of the smaller stores of Fresno, one that makes a specialty of women's wear and embroidery and fancy goods, there came a well-dressed woman carrying a little lap dog of the Chihuahua variety. This is not a very common species. They are very diminutive and the particular one that is the subject of this story weighed not more than two pounds at most. He is a pure white little fellow with long, fluffy hair and greatly resembles a lady's muff.

The woman set Fluffy down on the counter amid billows of snowy materials spread out for the inspection of the throngs of bargain-hunters who are making Fresno hunting ground just at present. Fluffy spied a particularly soft spot and lay down in it to sleep.

WRAPPED UP FLUFFY.

Now the goods that Fluffy so discriminatingly chose for his bed had been sold and had been laid aside while the customer made further purchases. These were soon made and were laid on top of Fluffy who made no demonstration, as he used to being coddled anyway and probably thought it just some of his mistress' solicitude for his welfare.

This store is one in which each saleslady does her own wrapping and therefore it was not necessary to disturb Fluffy while the package was being wrapped. His presence was not discovered at all.

But while his presence was not discovered his absence was, and the wall that went up from the owner of Fluffy was heart-breaking. She accused each woman in the store of stealing "her dear Fluffy." Meanwhile the subject of all of this discussion was quietly sleeping undisturbed by all of the clamor caused by his absence.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP.

Search was unavailing and Fluffy's disappearance was still a mystery when the woman who had purchased the goods in the package and who had unwittingly taken the little dog in her possession all of the time was joined by another customer and dropped the package. There was a yell of pain and the bundle began the astonishing gyrations, hopping about like a chicken with its head cut off. Finally Fluffy managed to free himself. It took some time before his owner was convinced that an intentional attempt had not been made to kidnap her pet. With suspicious glances toward other shoppers she took her departure from the store with her treasure clutched firmly in her arms.

But while his presence was not discovered his absence was, and the wall that went up from the owner of Fluffy was heart-breaking. She accused each woman in the store of stealing "her dear Fluffy." Meanwhile the subject of all of this discussion was quietly sleeping undisturbed by all of the clamor caused by his absence.

ATTORNEYS MUST HAVE CLEAN BILL

Affidavits Have to Be Filed in Order to Practice in State.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Lawyers from other states who desire to practice their profession in California by taking advantage of the custom of admission on motion, hereafter will have to make affidavits covering their status in the states from which they come and the states in which they were admitted to the bar.

An order to that effect was published in the District Court of Appeals.

The herald of Guernseys, conducted by Fred Ivet, has just received the best breed of dairy stock from the International Guernsey Association. The object of the investigation was the intention of stocking Mrs. Leland's ranch near this city with the very best cattle to be procured by her.

Under the new rule of the court the application for admission to practice on motion must be preceded by the filing of an affidavit upon which a prosecution for perjury may be brought should the record of the applicant be unclean.

RULE OF COURT.

The rule of the court is as follows: From and after this date all applicants to this court for a license to practice law in the courts of this state, based upon a hearing issued by a foreign country or sister state, must before their application will be heard and considered, sign and swear to written application stating (1) the name of the attorney at law admitted to practice before the court in which he desires to practice; (2) the name of the state or territory in which he practiced law; (3) the name of the court in which he practiced law; (4) the name of the attorney at law admitted to practice before the court in which he desires to practice; (5) the name of the state or territory in which he practiced law; (6) the name of the court in which he practiced law; (7) that he is a citizen of the United States; (8) when and where and in what court the applicant was previously admitted to the practice of law; (9) where he was first admitted, and also at the place where he last practiced law; (10) that the applicant has never been disbarred from the practice of law; (11) that no charges or accusations are pending against the applicant for disbarment; (12) that the applicant has never been convicted of a felony.

TO BUY TIMBER LAND.

PORLAND, July 20.—John Winters, representing Winters Bros. and others, with the cordial interest of President Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation, President Lowell, Secretary Wells and others of Harvard, as well as that of Messrs. Noble and Greenough, the head masters in whose schools Mr. Winters has been master and secretary since 1894.

Incidentally it might be mentioned here that this Boston school has been the leading private school in that city since 1866, with the cordial support of many families of wealth, such as the Astors, the Rockefellers, the Morgans, and many others.

With the experience gained in such an institution Mr. Winters has decided to cast his lot with us. He will open his school at 1227-29 Pacific avenue, on September 15.

No sectarian in its training, besides taking care of the educational side of the boy the school will also provide for his physical development, for with the playground adjoining the school ample opportunities will be afforded for outdoor games and sports under the supervision of the master.

Moreover there will be a primary department for boys from 6 to 10 years of age under

BIRDS VALUABLE AS AID TO STATE FARMERS

Eat Thousands of Weeds During Single Producing Season.

SPARROWS UNRIValed AS SEED DESTROYERS

Rodents and Insects Also Form Part of Their Regular Diet.

By GRETCHEN L. LIBBY
(Educational Assistant, California Fish and Game Commission)

The value of birds on the farm lies in the service which they render in the destruction of weed seeds, rodents and insects.

Some one has said that "a weed is a plant out of place" and if this were true some plants seem to have a well established habit of getting out of their proper sphere and into cultivated land. As a single plant of certain garden weeds may produce as many as 100,000 seeds in a season, if unchecked these would soon become a decided menace to crops.

While the hoe and the cultivator may help to keep down the weeds on the farm, they still continue to increase in waste lands and along roadsides, and from there eventually spread to the cultivated lands. It is in just such places that birds are often most abundant, and they play an important part in checking this increase. In fact the seed-eating birds are among the most effective agents in the warfare against weeds, for they attack these pests in the critical seed period, and thus help to prevent their further spread. While a few seeds are usually scattered by birds, in nearly all cases they are destroyed. Dr. Judd of the Biological Survey, says: "No less than fifty different birds act as weed destroyers, and the noxious plants which they help to eradicate number more than three score species."

MANY WEEDS DESTROYED.

Among the weeds commonly destroyed by birds are tarweed, turkey mullein, alfalfa, pigweed, knotweed, thistle and chickweed. Great numbers of seeds are often consumed by birds even in a single meal. The stomach of one sparrow contained 1000 seeds of pigweed, while two other birds had taken 300 and 700 seeds of various kinds. Professor Seal, of the United States Department of Agriculture, has estimated that the tree sparrows of Iowa will destroy, during the year, 875 tons of weed seeds.

Among the weed destroyers our native sparrows are unrivaled, weed seeds forming more than half of their food for the year. The value of sparrows to the farmer is increased by the fact that during the summer, and especially in the nesting season, they also eat many injurious insects. The young birds are fed almost on insect food, including such pests as caterpillars, weevils, grasshoppers, cutworms and ants.

The one member of the sparrow family which seems to be alike despised by both birds and man, is the imported English sparrow. While a few insects and weed seeds are eaten by these birds, the little good thus done cannot compare with the harm which they do, especially in driving out the useful insect and seed-eating birds. The English sparrows also destroy fruit and grain, and are a decided pest wherever they are found. The distinguishing mark of the male English sparrow is the large black patch on the throat and breast.

WILD CANARIES VALUABLE.

Among the other birds which hold a high place as weed destroyers are the goldfinch or "wild canaries," as they are commonly called. They often destroy certain weeds not usually taken by other birds, being especially fond of thistle seeds. For this reason they are sometimes given the name "thistle birds."

One of the game birds, the mourning dove, is especially worthy of mention as a useful seed-eating bird. While the dove sometimes takes grain, most of this seems to be waste grain taken after harvesting is over. These birds are most abundant, however, in waste lands where weeds abound, turkey mullein forming one of their favorite foods, while turnips, radishes and mustard are also eaten extensively.

The immense numbers of weed seeds destroyed by these birds is shown in the fact that the stomach of one dove contained 9200 seeds of different weeds, while the stomach of two other doves contained 6400 and 7500 respectively. If these doves, at one meal, can destroy 23,100 weed seeds and thus prevent the spread of that many noxious weeds, how much good could be accomplished by the doves on one farm, in one county, or throughout the state?

In the United States alone the annual loss from weeds has been estimated at $400,000,000. In the face of these startling figures we can well realize the importance of protecting the useful seed-eating birds, one of nature's best means of checking just such losses.

LOVERS ARE WEDDED ON RATTLESNAKE'S GRAVE

DETROIT, Mich., July 20.—Charles Comstock of St. Louis was married in a huckleberry swamp as the culmination of a rattlesnake romance. His bride was Miss Claribel Jensen.

Exactly a year ago they met at the same spot, Comstock, then a resident of Chicago, was visiting in the neighborhood. The swamp is at the rear of the farm home. Suddenly Comstock saw a snake. Jensen went there to gather berries for a pie. Suddenly Comstock saw a snake. She was so terrified to do nothing but scream. Comstock rushed through the swamp and made short work of the snake. Then he fell in love. So did Miss Jensen. They dug a grave and "planted" the reptile, agreeing to return in exactly a year and be married. Comstock moved to St. Louis but did not forget to keep his Mount Clemens "date."

Avoid Pasty, Shiny, Streaked Complexions

From Beauty's Mirror)
The author states, "greasy, shiny, streaked complexions are not originally created, and cause the least desire. There's no need for them, however, since the virtues of mercurial soap have become known. No amount of friction will produce any evidence of weariness."

Canada Wants Fees From U. S. Fishermen

OTTAWA, Canada, July 20.—The aboriginal tribes of Canada are asking the United States and Canada to respect their rights in respect to salmon fisheries in the Canadian government and is under consideration now. It is said that under the existing regulations American fishermen make Canadian ports bases of operation without giving any compensation whatever. A license fee of $1.00 a ton for each fishing vessel obtains the privilege of shipping crews, taking on supplies and transhipping the catch at the ports in question.

When the agreement was made originally Canadian fish was admitted free to the United States market but this privilege has since been denied areas with another effective measure treatment—mercurial soap. This is made in the form of a water-soluble soap in 14 oz. bars. It can be used as a face wash.

NOTED PERSONS MEET AT BANQUET

Best Brains of Britain and America Belong to "The Pilgrims."

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, July 20.—The Pilgrims, the society that brings into association some of the best brains of Britain and America, marked its first decade of existence by a dinner at the Savoy Hotel London.

There is not a club quite like the Pilgrims that calls to political men to sit cheek by jowl with churchmen, novelists, "and all sorts, with financier, with diplomatist, and this in the dinner-table spirit of conviviality and good humor. Lord Roberts, General Secretary, was active, and the chairman and men of every sort of eminence crowded the room. There were witty speeches by the American Consul-General, by Dr. W. T. Manning, on behalf of the thirty American Pilgrims who had crossed the ocean to celebrate the anniversary, by Harry Pritchett, the secretary and one of the founders of the club; and by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who sounded the note that marks every meeting of every club when he spoke of the harmony of the two great nations of Britain and America as a guarantee of the peace of the world. For Sir Arthur the evening had a personal jest when Dr. Manning, who is an American clergyman, told him, in one of the leading cities of the United States, he was introduced as "The Rev. Conur Doyle" and requested to say a few words.

Mr. Samuel, the Postmaster-General, in proposing the toast of the club, said, the striking growth of Canada had contributed to the good feelings between Britain and the United States. Canada was now recognized in the United States as being powerful and prosperous, and was respected. He remembered hearing, years ago, of a Chicago woman who was asked how many children she had. She replied that she had two living and one in Canada.

A telegram was sent to the king on behalf of the 800 members present expressing the hope that he would live to see the ties between British and American different drawn even closer than they are now. A telegram of thanks was received from His Majesty.

FOREIGN SHIPPING NOTHING TO FEAR HE SAYS

LONDON, July 20.—One of the officials of a British steamship line which expects to take a leading part in developing the new foreign trade, said today how the opening of the Panama Canal declared that foreign shippers have nothing to fear from the favoring of American vessels engaged in coastwise trade. He believes that the decision to favor the coastwise trade of the United States was dictated by a desire to break up the railway monopoly. At any rate, he contends that foreign shipping interests are not at all alarmed over the decision of the United States government to exempt coasting vessels from payment of tolls. Foreign vessels are not now allowed to engage in that traffic, so they will not be affected by the discrimination, more especially by American-owned boats trading in the waters which will have to pay dues if they load or discharge at any port outside of the United States.

HOP WAREHOUSE TO BE BUILT AT SHELDON

STOCKTON, July 20.—The Central California Traction Company is preparing to erect a big warehouse at Sheldon for the purpose of storing hops. "We will erect a building large enough to store 4000 or 5000 bales of hops," says Traffic Manager Rodenbach. "The hop market is about cleaned up so that most of the hops grown along the Cosumnes River will likely be shipped out as soon as they are received. About 40,000 bales of hops are produced near Sheldon and

AT THE DINNER PARTY

AN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Mr. —— knew his wife looked grouchy the other night while they were dining with a party of ten or twelve, most of whom were their old friends. Without any objection on his part, thank you, he had been placed beside a good-looking and young woman. Probably she was the prettiest and youngest bit of femininity at the evening repast. Just across the table his wife had been paired with a dull, old chap. Mr. —— enjoyed his wife's evening dilemma and appreciated his own favored seat. During the evening he whispered to his pretty dinner companion much after the manner of a doubting Thomas:

"My wife seems to appear to be grouchy, doesn't she? I can't for the life of me see the reason why, for everything is so hospitable here."

"Look me in the face," was her roguish reply. Into her lovely phiz and two deep brown eyes he gazed and a great light came to him.

"Yes," said he; "I can see the reason now."

Famous Savants to Visit Coast

I have not seen it announced yet that Prof. A. G. McAdie of the Weather Bureau, in connection with representatives of the University of California and Stanford, is preparing a program of entertainment for forty of the most noted geographical scientists in the world when they visit this city next September. On their tour of the United States they are to be accompanied by some eighteen similar ranking scientists of this country. The gentlemen are first to be received in New York City early in August as the guests of the American Geographical Society to join in celebrating with that organization the sixtieth anniversary of its foundation. At the conclusion of their tour, they are to be given a banquet in Washington, D. C., by the National Scientific Bureau. The distinguished foreigners will come from fifteen foreign lands, including Russia, Spain and Servia. Prof. William Morris Davis of Harvard University will head this aggregation of world-famed scientists on the American tour. The party will spend three or four days in and around this city. En route by way of Seattle and Tacoma, the savants will make studies of both Mt. Tacoma and Mt. Shasta.

All the Traffic in Sight

E. E. Calvin, vice-president in charge of operation and construction of the Southern Pacific Company, who has just had his authority and duties increased by President Sproule, is the subject of the following tale by an intimate friend:

"Calvin as a boy lived with his parents in Indiana," says this friend. "The father at an early age tested his son's mental inclinations. The test was made simultaneously with an apple, a Bible and a silver dollar. They were all placed on a table and the young boy was invited into the room and asked which of the three things there he preferred, or wanted, most. The father had an idea if his son took the apple he would give promise of making a good farmer or orchardist; if the Bible, then he was most seriously inclined; if the dollar in coin, then he was marked for a business or banking career.

"Can I help myself, daddy?" he asked.

"At a nod of approval from the father, the boy, without more ado, pocketed the money, and, as he began eating the apple, placed the Bible on a chair so as to sit up a little higher at the table.

"Shaking his head, the father remarked: 'Well, boy, I guess you are cut out for a railroad man, for you certainly want all the traffic in sight.'

"It was at 14 years of age in 1873 that Calvin did enter the railroad business as a telegraph operator."

An Ancient Tale Revived

Adolph Ottlinger, who was the last of the railroad ticket brokers to make a fortune out of that business before the United States Supreme Court ruled against it and who is now with the Pacific Mail people as their general representative for their coast lines, has received a letter from friends who want him to join them in a large cat ranch in Colorado. The letter in part sets forth:

"To start with we will collect 300,000 cats. Each cat will average about twelve kittens a year. The skins run from ten cents each for the white ones to seventy-five cents each for the pure black. This will give us a good annual revenue. One man can skin fifty cats per day for a $2 wage. It will take 125 men to operate the ranch. So the net profit can easily be figured out."

"We must have a rat ranch adjoining in order to procure a steady supply of cheap food for the cats. It will thus be seen that the business is self-acting and automatic, as it were."

Ottlinger says he has troubles of his own without going into this kind of "a ketchup and skinned" business away over in Colorado.

Youngest of Nevada Millionaires

B. E. Nixon of Reno, the son of the late United States Senator George S. Nixon of Nevada, is not going to try and contest the will of his father because it specifies that the son is not to get his share of the valuable estate until he reaches the age of 35. Both relatives and friends assert that rumors to the contrary are absolutely unfounded. A liberal income is allowed the son each year and the trustee of the estate is authorized to advance him certain sums for business purposes from time to time. It is said when the Senator's estate is finally appraised and all lawful deductions are made that it will show a net sum of $6,000,000. The widow gets half of this amount, while the other half will eventually go to the son. All the time, however, the son will be drawing annually from his share a most liberal income. He is now by virtue of the will the youngest millionaire in the Sagebrush State and in due time will probably make his bow politically before the people of his State, his friends asserting he is ambitious in that direction.

Death of Ferdinand I. Vassault

The local press said little or nothing some days ago about the death of Ferdinand I. Vassault, one of the examiners for the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C. Vassault was a graduate of the University of California along with Interstate Commerce Commissioner Franklin K. Lane, Attorney Seth Mann, William K. Wheeler, Charles Stetson Wheeler and others of this city who have since made their mark. For the five years preceding his death, he was an examiner for the Interstate Commission and by his ability had won high praise from Chairman Prouty and the other members. It was on the recommendation of Lane that Vassault was got the position and the record shows Lane made no mistake in doing so. Prior to going to Washington, Vassault was for years an able editorial writer on the Argonaut. He was a forceful writer on all public questions and had a wonderful mastery of statistics, compelling attention to them by his interesting and readable presentation. For awhile Vassault also wrote leading and pungent editorials for the Examiner. He also did good newspaper work in Minneapolis.

Honors Come to Franklin K. Lane

The friends of Franklin K. Lane, the member from California and the west on the Interstate Commerce Commission, are pleased to learn that he has been honored with an appointment as a member of the permanent commission of the International Railway Congress. The latter is to hold its next meeting in Berlin in the summer of 1915, on which occasion Lane is down for an address on American railroads and their regulation by the Federal government. Probably no member of the Interstate Commission has made a stronger record than Lane during the last seven or eight years. He was first appointed by Roosevelt at the urgent solicitation of President B. I. Wheeler of the University of California and others. President Taft reappointed him because of his able record. It is known he could have gone on the new Commerce Court along with Commissioner Knapp, but preferred to remain a commissioner. Lane about twenty years ago made a failure as a newspaper owner and editor in Tacoma. His record as city attorney here was splendid. His defeat for Mayor and also his defeat for Governor made many think that his public career had ended. Some few powerful friends got him a larger opportunity at the national capital and it is creditable alike to them, his State, his alma mater at Berkeley and himself that he has "made good."

No Pills for Earthquakes

Did you ever hear the story of Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee for the presidency, and the cub newspaper reporter of this city employed on a minor daily at the time of their meeting?

About two years ago Dr. Wilson visited San Francisco and other western cities as part of the launching of his campaign for the presidential nomination at the hands of the Democratic party. He made an address at a banquet at the Fairmont, and a good one it was, too. Representatives of all the papers met him on his arrival and were well received. Wilson answered many questions readily, adroitly sidestepped others and declined frankly to talk on one or two subjects. It was in connection with one of the latter that the cub scribe tried to shine. Persistently and yet wholly ignorant of how properly to put the matter, Mr. Cub wanted the good Princeton professor, who had been just elected Governor of New Jersey, to tell him what was the only correct solution of the question of labor and capital.

"You ought to know all about this burning and pressing problem, Mr. Wilson, and my paper wants a direct answer from you so that our workingmen subscribers can ascertain just where you stand," the young, ambitious fellow went on to say.

"Just say I have no pills for earthquakes," replied Wilson with a snap of his jaws.

Luncheon Was Too Delicate

He is a private secretary. His prominent employer works him hard and pays him liberally. In spite of this rather favorable combination of work and compensation, an incident happened the other day which convinces the young, healthy, vigorous fellow that in both little and big things "life is just one d—d thing after another."

Smith, the secretary, worked long hours last Tuesday with his boss. From 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. they turned out a lot of pressing correspondence, with no thought of the luncheon hour on the part of Employer Blank. A little after 3 o'clock, however, the latter said to Smith:

"I'll go down to the Palace, Smith, and order a good lunch for two. Meet me there promptly at 4."

Now Blank is a light and finical eater. While Smith knew that Blank has fewer red corpuscles in his blood than he himself, he was not prepared to find out how few he really did have until he sat down to that Palace luncheon after both had been without anything to eat since 8 a. m. He expected something very substantial and tempting. He, however, had to enjoy as best he could muffins, marmalade and tea. The boss thought the repast fine. Smith ate a part of the meal, but vowed his superior is too peculiar as a host and an eater to ever entice him again away from his own meat and drink.

Investing in the Oil Fields

Rudolph and Claus A. Spreckels and William P. Hammon are the latest millionaires to enter the California oil fields as investors. Others equally as rich, if not wealthier, long ago made similar investments. A great many more men, with smaller means, entered the business at the outset some fifteen years ago and even later and are now able to write their checks in six figures. But the business is constantly growing. With the opening of the Panama canal, the market for California oil will be greatly enlarged. It is on this account that the two Spreckels brothers have made purchases of oil lands in the Santa Barbara country. Hammon, with some London friends, has bought into the San Joaquin oil fields. Mining for gold with dredgers on the Feather river laid the foundation of the Hammon fortune. Rudolph and Claus A. Spreckels got rich in sugar fully twenty years ago and San Francisco realty investments later on added greatly to their worldly goods.

Bishop's Fee for Wedding

Bishop William Ford Nichols of the Episcopal Church is said to have received a personal check for $1500 for officiating at the wedding of Malcolm D. Whitman and Jennie A. Crocker in the little, picturesque church at San Mateo on last Tuesday. The rector of the church got a check for $300, he assisting the bishop in the marriage ritual. It was very fitting that Bishop Nichols should have conducted this wedding ceremony for a member of the house of Crocker. The Crockers gave him their loyal support when he first came here from a Philadelphia rectorship to be a California bishop about twenty years ago. Nichols, however, is a strong character, a worker and a diplomat. His ability has won him success and recognition aside from the cordial support of the Episcopalian of all degrees of wealth. After the 1906 fire, the bride of last Tuesday was one of the Crockers who gave to the bishop and the church its single largest gift. Reference is had to the old Crocker homestead block on Nob Hill which was deeded to the church for a cathedral site.

Wealthiest of California Heiresses

Against the Whitman-Crocker nuptials of last Tuesday, a clubman and financier, who should be in a position to know, said quietly last evening that Miss Jennie Crocker is the wealthiest woman in her own right born on this coast who has married an eastern man and will make her home away from here. Some other rich local women, who have done likewise, he mentions in the following order, including last Tuesday's bride:

Mrs. Malcolm D. Whitman, nee Crocker.

Mrs. C. B. Alexander of New York, who was Miss Hattie Crocker.

Lady Hesketh, who was a Sharon.

The Princess Colonna, a stepdaughter of the late John W. Mackay.

The Princess Hatzfeldt, who was a Huntington-Prentice.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, who was Miss Tessie Fair.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr., who was Miss Birdie Fair.

The Princess Poniatowski, nee Beth Sperry.

Lady Bache Cunard, who was a Burke, a niece of Horace W. Carpenter.

He also alluded to one of the Tobin girls who married and went to Paris to live, and to a daughter of William B. Bourne, who married a couple of years ago and is now living as Mrs. Arthur Rose Vincent in Ireland. Some others can also be pointed out, he says, but the ones he specifies are in his opinion the most prominent.

Arranged All Wedding Details

The former Jennie Crocker gave personal attention to most all the details of her marriage. It is known that she did not ask Henry T. Scott, one of her business managers, for any advice, much to the surprise of some of her friends and also of Mr. Scott, in particular, it is said. This does not mean, however, that the young lady and the astute Mr. Scott are not on cordial terms. She did not want any special train to convey the guests from this city to San Mateo and there was none. Why? Simply a whim on her part. She arranged in detail the moving pictures contract for the wedding, exacting a bond that none of the pictures should be given to the newspapers. And they were not. The railroad officials took her orders about handling her private car after the wedding breakfast, and she also perfected the deal for a lease of the McCloud River Country Club's home for the first ten days of the honeymoon. She also insisted on inviting as guests to her wedding some people that some of her close relatives are not particularly friendly with. There is said to have been ten so invited by her. They are splendid men and women and it is to her great credit and good heart that she did not overlook them at her wedding. That event, the most important in any young man's life, can smoothly in all its religious, social and material details and she is to be congratulated on how she managed it. It stamps the pretty little blonde as having good executive ability and opinions of her own, together with good taste and discretion, for all that she has been a pampered pet born in the lap of luxury.

Kent Has New Photographs

Congressman William Kent, who has posed as a reformer, both in Chicago and California and who now is more anxious than ever to be re-elected by his Marin county and other constituents, is having some new photographs taken of himself in the east. They show a radical change in his appearance.

What he is going to do with them is not clearly indicated as yet. Presumably copies will be used on letter heads, cards and other campaign advertising. Several months ago, "Billy," as his intimates call him, informed his associates in business that he would not seek a re-election owing to his desire to help them personally in their joint undertakings. This was just after the Legislature had cut and slashed his old Second District in a way not to his liking. Since then his friends have studied the new combination of counties in the district and he will stand for re-election; and the word has been given out: "Kent can win." This is why he is back in the fight with much ardor.

But to return to the new photos of Billy. Copies have been received here, one with his hat on and the other bareheaded. Both revolutionize him in appearance to his old cronies. In the one with the hat off, his rambling, scrambling head of hair has gone down under the persuasion of a fine and strong-toothed comb into a neatly-parted, close-lying mass, a veritable artistic work of an up-to-date barber. In the copy with a hat on, Billy is seen to have discarded his usual old battered felt covering for a late soft slouch hat of a light color. While a shock to their nerves at first sight, his intimates are pleased with his change of style in hats and the wearing of his hair.

Bishop Hughes Was Misquoted

EDITOR TRIBUNE: A friend has sent me a clipping from your Knave column of recent date, in which reference is made to myself and to my brother, the Rev. M. S. Hughes, D. D., of Pasadena, under the heading, "His Brother was a Bishop." This article, though brief, needs four corrections; but I content myself with one and ask that it be given space in your columns.

The article states that my brother, "together with many suffragists in and out of the Methodist Church, still feels put out over Bishop Hughes' speech in Baltimore some months ago against women as voters. The bishop said in part at that time, or at least was quoted as saying: 'The inferiority of woman's intelligence as compared with that of man is the reason for her failure to become a good voter, or to effect any real reform.'"

Perhaps I should say that the grammatical blunder in the first sentence of the paragraph as quoted belongs to your scribe and not to myself. But I write primarily to say that I never said anything that in the slightest degree resembles this silly statement about the intellect of women. Indeed I said the exact reverse. This most unjust report of my speech has been corrected again and again by the press of the State; and it is wholly unworthy of THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE to repeat it in any form whatsoever. In the first little book I ever published I put myself on record by writing that it was a plain case of male conceit that claimed intellectual superiority for men. No word has ever escaped either my lips or my pen that contradicted that early statement.

So may I not ask that you correct the statement as given out in this belated manner by your unintentional Knave and as given out several months ago by a knave who must have been most deliberate in his misrepresentation? Cordially yours,

EDWIN H. HUGHES,
Resident Bishop Methodist Episcopal Church,
San Francisco, July 19, 1912.

Lost $20,000 in Nuggets

Captain William A. Nevills, the mining magnate and owner of the Rawhide and App mines on the mother lode, near Jamestown, who died a few days ago, led a very stormy career. Having trouble with his partners in the Rawhide, he put his own foreman and men in charge, giving them orders to shoot the first man who came on the property that appeared to them a stranger and a spy. They carried out his orders to the letter.

They shot his son.

While Nevills hurried to this city on legal matters concerning the mine, his son accidentally dropped into that part of the country. Not knowing the orders given by his father and not heeding the warnings of the men, he was the first and last victim. Young Nevills recovered and the orders were countermanded.

When the Palace Hotel burned in 1906 Nevills had $20,000 of gold nuggets in his apartments there. He got excited when the soldiers finally ordered all guests to get out within an hour. Nevills rushed upstairs for his box of specimens. Carrying the box out on New Montgomery street, he gave two strangers $10 each to guard it until he went back after something he had in Cashier Clark's safe. When he returned the men and the box were gone, and that was the last ever heard of the valuable gold specimens.

Several months after the fire Nevills in a moment of anger, accused another man who had been a Palace guest with him, of not being able to control himself in an emergency.

"Why?"

"I saw you the day of the earthquake wandering aimlessly about the Palace hotel corridors giving money away like a fool to anybody," shouted Nevills.

"Well, you gave away a box containing $20,000 of gold nuggets, didn't you? You beat me!"

CRUISER TO BRING MILITIAMEN BACK HOME

Marblehead Will Arrive Today
From Puget Sound.

Windjammers Are Being Taken Off Coast Lumber Routes.

The big United States cruiser Marblehead will arrive here early today from the north and with her will come one of the proudest number of militiamen that ever was turned out from this state. And they have a reason to boast, for according to the muster rolls received here, the "babies" soldiers of Uncle Sam, while up north at Puget sound, made a new world's record for marksmanship.

The boys have been away on their annual target practice for several weeks, and from reports the cruise has proven satisfactory, both to the militiamen and to the government officers. The arrival of the big vessel will be an event among the people of this vicinity and a great crowd is expected to witness the docking of the vessel. According to wireless messages, all on board are well and the accidents which have marred former cruises of this sort are entirely lacking. The "boys" have their sea legs and are behaving in a splendid manner.

SAILING VESSELS DISAPPEAR.

What is probably responsible for the absence of the big windjammer on the round-the-world route is the high charter rates which is now being offered for the carriage of lumber on the Pacific. In former years these windjammers were common in the coastwise lumber-carrying industry, but during the last three or four years they have been slowly but surely taken off these runs for the more profitable foreign-carrying jobs until at the present time there are practically no schooners of any great size operating on the coast lumber run.

This off-shore trade has been the reason for the diverting of most of the ships, although many have succumbed to time and are now barges used for carrying on work in the various ports along the coast, while in many instances they are left to rot. The highest charter rate to be issued for several months on this coast is that of the barkentine Amazanica, which has been chartered at $15,000 per month. This is about thousand feet she handles. At this rate she will make about $14,500 on her run. It is reported that several other windjammers will also be chartered under extra large rates during the coming month.

TAKES BIG CARGO.

The steamer Edith, Captain Kerr, at present under charter to the Alaska Pacific Steamship Company, sailed last night for Seattle and Tacoma with a bumper cargo, consisting of nine cars of car wheels and 500 tons of cement. The heavy shipment of freight from the interior has caused such a congestion of freight at the local wharves that the Alaska-Pacific people were forced to get more facilities for carrying their freight. The steamer Yukon and Watson, of the same company, loaded carloads of the same wheat during the past week, but notwithstanding a large amount of freight still remains in the sheds awaiting shipment. According to the shipping news船員沿岸的船舶从这个港口北上，目前是最重的。它已越过在该处的历史。

Work on the steam schooner at present building at the local yards of the United Engineering Works is being rapidly pushed and the vessel will probably go into commission at the beginning of 1913. Considerable delay was caused by the slow arrival of the paraphernalia to be used in the steamer's construction, but now everything is running smoothly and decided progress is being made daily. The new steamer is being built for Soo-nam of San Francisco and will be used for the coast lumber trade.

ICE TROUBLES SKIPPER.

According to the skipper of steamers arriving at this port from the north much has been in evidence during the first two weeks in July, which have caused considerable annoyance to shipping. The cause for the ice being in the harbor is in a great measure due to the strong northerly winds which have been constantly blowing through the Arctic sea and down into the north Pacific. Numbers of the icebergs sighted were of considerable size. It is reported that during the second week of July Bering Straits were completely blocked by drift ice which made navigation even by small boat impossible.

The steam schooner Nome City, Captain Hansen, sailed yesterday from this port for Puget Sound ports. Included in the vessel's cargo was several tons of freight from local merchants. The investigation of this new direct line several months ago by the Charles Nelson people was greeted by the local merchants as great money and time-saver, but it was formally necessary to take freight across the bar by ferry to the Pacific from whence it was reshipped to its destination on the coast. The merchants are not, however, according to the Charles Nelson officials, supporting the new line and it will probably be disbanded unless more shipping goes through that source.

THREE GARBAGE BOATS.

A new system of handling the city's garbage by barges is proving successful and presents two barges already in the water, while a third will go into commission tomorrow. P. P. Lentz, manager of Pittsburgh, Contra Costa county, in this city yesterday superintended the work of fitting the new barge.

Three boats are to be used in the collection being let to the Hansen & Lentz Company, of which Hansen is a stockholder. The C. A. Hansen Company, which concern has the contract for the handling of the garbage, has the contract for hauling the garbage barges to the Oakland and Tiburon Company. The barges are to take up river to a place near Alameda, where it is dumped. For safety it was taken out to sea by a tugboat. The residents about Tiburon are beginning to complain of floating garbage and it is thought that the city of Oakland will order a new barge.

SHIP SPLENDOR TO ARRIVE TODAY.

Another city of Puerto, Captain Johnson, is scheduled to arrive today from the Puget Sound ports. She will call at Long Wharf, where she will be the first ship of freight and load.

Valencia party will have this party starting for Santa Cruz on the evening of Saturday. The return will return on Sunday. The round trip will cost $10. It is reported that a large number of guests will make the trip.

REBEL FORCES REACH DOLORES

Sixty Federals Holding Position Retire; Villareal and Band Arrested.

MADERA, Chihuahua, July 20.—Without opposition the rebel vanguard bound for the states of Sonora and Sinaloa over the Dolores mountain trail reached the mining camp of Dolores, southwest of here today. Only sixty federals had held the place, and they retired before the rebels appeared.

General Antonio Rojas left Madera today to follow the vanguard of the rebel invading Sonora. General "Cheche" Campon, who had been missing with his command for several days, and who, it was thought, had taken advantage of the government's offer of amnesty, arrived in Madera today with 800 men. General Orozco has ordered him to follow General Rojas into Sonora.

General Rojas, before his departure, arrested Lieutenant-Colonel Marcelline Villareal and his entire band of 30 men, who robbed two of the Modern Lumber companies' stores. Four of the prisoners were executed.

COUPLE ANSWER QUESTIONS HALTINGLY

A blushing bit of humanity, eight months old, convinced James Davidson and Sarah B. Osborn, both of Sacramento, that the common law needed reinforcement and the father yesterday appeared at the matrimony counter in the office of the county clerk.

He was unable to give his prospective wife and young son into the common law moment, he sent Miss Osborn in to answer the questions herself. This she did, but when it came time for the signatures to be affixed to the affidavit, the clerk was compelled to inquire for Davidson. "He's outside in the corridor holding the baby," was the hasty explanation.

There was a few moments of embarrassment on all sides and then a sympathetic clerk went out and held the young youngster, while father and mother pledged it a happy marriage.

Davidson gave his age at 38 and that of his wife as 44.

MAC MONAGLE ESTATE

VALUED AT $250,000

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—A petition for the probate of the will of the late Mrs. Mac Monagle was filed yesterday with the County Clerk by the widow, Minnie Carter MacMonagle. The testator died in Paris on May 12, 1912, leaving a fortune valued at $250,000. Mrs. Mac Monagle is the sole heir, a son, Donald, aged 29, being left to her care. The petition is also signed by Fred A. Morley, the executor.

MARRYING PARSON HAS A BUSY HALF YEAR

SAN DIEGO, July 20.—The Rev. W. H. Crabtree, "marrying minister," holds the record for 109 marriages since January 1. Three of the recent ceremonies took place in one day, Tuesday of this week. On that day at 4 p.m. at Beacon Hills, beyond Encanto, the Rev. Crabtree married Fred Edward Parritt and Miss Mabel Houston, niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Forsythe of that place. All those at the wedding were former residents of Topika, Kansas.

On the evening of the same day, two weddings followed one another in quick succession at the residence of the pastor. At 6 o'clock Miss Sally Henry Wright became the bride of Edward Fairfax Crause. Miss J. E. Wright, a sister of the bride, and Miss M. S. Wright accompanied the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Crause will reside at 1484 Second street. At 8:30 the pastor united Edwin Ray Latta and Pearl Goldie Nichols. Miss M. L. Day and W. G. Latta witnessed the ceremony.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA TEACHERS WILL MEET

WOODLAND, July 20.—County Superintendent of Schools Mrs. Mrs. Henshall has been apprised by S. M. Chaney, president of the northern section of the California Teachers Association, that the annual meeting of the association this year will be held in Sacramento on October 22d to the 25th inclusive.

Mrs. Henshall has decided to hold the Yolo county institute at the same time and place, this giving all the teachers of the county the opportunity of participating in the deliberations of the larger body.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—James Robinson, who lives at Nineteenth and Kentucky streets, was knocked down by a car in front of his home this afternoon and received contusions of the hip and arm. He was removed for treatment to the Potrero emergency hospital.

GRAND COUNCIL AUGUST EVENT

Young Men's Institute of Pacific Jurisdiction to Meet in Vallejo.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The twenty-ninth Grand Council session of the Pacific Grand Council Jurisdiction, Young Men's Institute, will be inaugurated with the annual excursion and parade Sunday, August 18. The city of Vallejo will this year welcome and entertain the visiting hosts and the authorities will join with the members of the local Councils of the Young Ladies' Institute and the Young Men's Institute in making that welcome worthy the occasion.

Preliminary to the gathering, Vallejo Council, No. 12, V. L. I., will entertain on Saturday evening, August 17, at which evening a social reunion and dinner will be given in San Pablo Hall. The first comers will receive a hearty reception, and the streets will be illuminated in their honor. The electric lighting of the streets will be continued during the four days of the session.

Excursion trains with special service and low rates will be run from a number of points to Vallejo on Sunday morning. Large delegations are assured from Stockton, Sacramento and Petaluma. In addition to the very large attendance which will come from San Francisco, Oakland and Alameda.

WILLETT CHAIRMAN.

Past Grand President Charles G. Willitt is chairman of the San Francisco and California general committee, and Arthur J. McDevitt is secretary. The said committee is composed of representatives appointed by the local Councils of the Young Ladies' Institute and the Young Men's Institute. The San Francisco excursion will leave via the Southern Pacific from the foot of Market street at 8 a.m., Sunday, August 17. The price for the round trip is one dollar, and tickets are good for seven days.

The parade will form upon the arrival of the delegations at Vallejo and all the local Councils of both organizations will be represented in line. Many of the bands will have drill teams and special features added incentive is given in this matter. It is due to the fact that the Councils of the Young Ladies' Institute will compete for a very handsome silver cup donated by Vallejo Council, No. 12. The Councils of the Y. M. I. will compete for a handsome American flag given by the Grand Council. The award of trophies will be made by three judges to be selected by the Grand Council committee, none of said judges to be members of the Institute. The presentation will be made during the afternoon at San Pablo Hall.

The mass in the opening of the day's exercises will be held at the conclusion of the parade in the City park. After mass the Catholic ladies of the parish will serve luncheon on the grounds adjoining St. Vincent's church, and accommodations will be provided for seating 2,000 persons.

PLAN OPEN HOUSE.

During the afternoon the various Councils will hold open house at appointed quarters, and a room will be maintained by the ladies of Vallejo Institute, Y. L. I., at Engle Hall.

Opportunity will be afforded for a visit to Marin Island navy yard where there is much to be seen and appreciated. Aside from the large government dry-dock and ship and many naval vessels, there are many relics, such as the figure head and guns taken from the Hartford, Farragut's flag ship; the propeller from the U. S. S. Nippon, which was wrecked in the harbor of Apia, Samoa, in 1885. The plant cutter Jupiter, the wireless station, which is in direct communication with stations at Key West, Florida, and the Pribilof Islands, in Alaska. By electric car one is in easy touch with surrounding points of interest—Napa, St. Helena, Yountville and other points.

The sessions of the Grand Councils will begin Monday morning, August 19, with a meeting of the executive members, following which the Grand Council will be organized and business session continue to the close. On Monday evening will be the annual dinner of the past grand officers and a band concert. The Vallejo Institute, No. 12, V. L. I., will hold a grand ball at the pavilion on Tuesday evening, and the Grand Council banquet will be held on Wednesday evening.

LARGE ALMOND CROPS WILL REDUCE PRICE

STOCKTON, July 20.—Almonds will not be so very profitable crop next year, according to statistics furnished by a large dealer on the front. The eastern market has information that the California crop is enormous this year, being something like 4,000 tons in excess of last year, and on top of this there is a report that the European crop is correspondingly great. This will naturally cause weakness in the market. The almond crop will mature early. Nonpareils will be on the market within ten days. Where the orchards have been irrigated the quality is excellent, but where there has been irrigation the almonds are not so desirable and will doubtless find little demand this year.

VICTIM OF PICKPOCKETS.
SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Charles M. Fitch, of 665 Seventh avenue, fell a victim to a pickpocket who obtained his gold watch while he was riding on the train in the down town section, last night.

WARNING TO USERS OF SO-CALLED SUPERFLUOUS HAIR "CURES"

Every woman must realize that even when a soft fuzz is removed by these so-called superfluous hair "cures," which stimulate the growth after each removal, that it will only be a question of time before she is compelled to shave the hair of the razor, because eventually the hair will become strong enough to remove it without ruining the skin.

Why take the risk of disfigurement by using these unknown and uncertain means for removing superfluous hair? There is such a safe method as DeMiracle—the one perfect, non-poisonous and harmless depilatory that dissolves hair, thereby taking the vitality out of it, consequently retarding and preventing an increase.

Don't be deceived by the imitator and impostor who resorts to copying certain phrases of the DeMiracle advertising to inveigle you into using a worthless, poisonous concoction, the continued use of which will produce eczema or other skin diseases. Don't be deceived, either, to deceive and delude you by alluring and impossible claims tell him that DeMiracle Chemical Company will forfeit Five Thousand Dollars if it can be proven that any so-called superfluous hair "cure" is not as good as DeMiracle.

To substantiate our claim that Dethe public lands office it was shown that the public lands vacant and subject to entry and settlement in California had increased from 30,000,000 acres on June 30, 1911, as follows: Surveyed, $16,061,000, a total of 23,662,964 acres, or 65 per cent greater than New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

In 1850 there were only 72 farms in the state. In 1900, 72,642. The increase in the last 10 years has been 15,655 farms.

The land area of the great States of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Indiana, added together gives a total of 156,043 square miles, and but 231 square miles more than California alone, yet these four great States united support a population of 24,954,483.

California, second in gross area in the United States, has a land area of 155,652, a water area of 2645 or 158,297 square miles in all, aggregating 99,617,280 acres. Its population in 1910 was 2,377,540.

Comparisons are interesting. The six New England States, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have a combined land area of but 8,176 square miles, yet the aggregate of population is 6,652,652.

The land area of the great States of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Indiana, added together gives a total of 156,043 square miles, and but 231 square miles more than California alone, yet these four great States united support a population of 24,954,483.

Prussia with an area of 134,608 square miles, 21,048 less than California, supports a population of over 40,000,000 or over 300 per square mile.

The United Kingdom, England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland combined have an area of 121,391 square miles or 31,261 square miles more than California alone, yet its population at the last census was 45,216,665.

VALUE OF PROPERTY.

The value of farm property in 1900 was $79,527,755. In 1910 it was $1,614,894,584, an increase of 18,000,000 or 102.4 per cent.

California, the state with the largest area, has 1,014,933 acres; unsurveyed, 5,560,061, or a total of 23,662,964 acres, or 65 per cent greater than New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

LANDS UNDER IRRIGATION.

Of these 88,187 farms in the state, 39,252 or 44 per cent were irrigated in 1900.

The acreage reported as irrigated in 1900 was 2,924,000, or 33.4 per cent of the improved land in farms.

The area to which enterprises existing in 1900 were capable of supplying water was 1,898,476 acres, and the total acreage irrigated in 1900 was 2,800,000 acres.

LANDS UNDER IRRIGATION.

In the 1910 farm report California still has left 71,685,836 acres subject to subdivision, occupation or development, an area greater than Denmark, England and Wales, Portugal, Venezuela, Rhode Island and New Jersey. These seven States in 1910 had a total population of 8,449,793, or 6,172,260 more than the entire State of California in 1910.

MILLIONS OF ACRES AVAILABLE.

After deducting land confined in the 1910 farm report California still has left 71,685,836 acres subject to subdivision, occupation or development, an area greater than Denmark, England and Wales, Portugal, Venezuela, Rhode Island and New Jersey.

The improved land in farms reported aggregated 11,388,891 acres, an area greater than that of the States of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

PUBLIC LANDS.

In a statement made by the United States general land office it was shown that the public lands vacant and subject to entry and settlement in California had increased from 30,000,000 acres on June 30, 1911, as follows: Surveyed, $16,061,000, a total of 23,662,964 acres, or 65 per cent greater than New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

STEADY INCREASE.

The census of 1850 gave the population of California as 92,597; in 1860 379,594; in 1870 931,307 or 216,000 per cent.

In 1880 1,231,938; in 1890 2,041,447 or 64.3 per cent; of 1890 1,231,938, a gain of 348,704, or 40.3 per cent; of 1900 1,455,053, a gain of 271,655 or 22.4 per cent.

The increase of the last decade shows that the great resources and possibilities of California have at last been recognized and the tide of immigration turned to this west coast. The census of 1910 gives this state a population of 2,377,540.

STATE INCREASE GREATER.

A comparison of the rates of increase for the state with those for continental United States shows that California has increased more rapidly than Continental United States. The population of the state in 1910 was more than 25 times as great as in 1850.

Population per square mile in 1850 was 15.4; in 1860 29.6; in 1870 43.7; in 1880 58.8; in 1890 74.9; in 1900 89.7; in 1910 101.2.

GROWTH OF CITIES.

California has 100 cities having from 25,000 to 100,000 population, 16 from 10,000 to 25,000, 16 from 5,000 to 10,000, and 160 towns and villages.

Knowland's Good Work for the Harbor.

Oakland is exceedingly fortunate in having so diligent and influential a representative in Congress as Joseph R. Knowland. In the slang of the day, Mr. Knowland is always on the job. He overlooks nothing—neglects nothing.

He has just given fresh evidence of his solicitude for the interests of his constituents and his endeavors in their behalf by getting $30,000 added to the special appropriation of $100,000 for the improvement of Oakland harbor which he had previously secured at this session. There is at present an unexpended balance of $303,937.47 in the Oakland harbor fund, but this sum is covered by outstanding contracts which are yet to be completed. The additional $180,000 is for new work in the channel and harbor basin, to supplement the harbor improvements now being made by the city.

Since he entered Congress in December, 1904, Mr. Knowland has secured appropriations for improving Oakland harbor aggregating $1,263,203.

The new appropriation will carry the harbor work up to March 4th of next year, when another rivers and harbors bill will become a law, providing an additional appropriation under the continuing contract plan which Mr. Knowland induced Congress to adopt, thereby committing the government to a definite scheme for the improvement of our harbor.

In response to requests made by Mayor Mott and the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Knowland is exerting himself to have the government assist in the harbor development the city has undertaken in the Key Route basin. Hitherto all the money expended on harbor improvement here has been spent on the south harbor and the jetties and channel leading to it. Without relaxing in any degree his efforts to have the south harbor deepened and made accessible to deep-water ships of the largest class, Mr. Knowland will endeavor to have Congress make an appropriation to do some dredging in the Key Route basin. His success in the past is an assurance that he will succeed in this enterprise also, providing he is given the solid backing of the community.

But the service Mr. Knowland has rendered his Oakland and Alameda constituents has been duplicated in what he has done for the Mare Island navy yard, for Richmond and for the improvement of the Sacramento river. He has promptly responded to every call made on him, and he has always delivered the goods. He made a hard fight against the eastern Shipbuilding Trust to have government ships built at Mare Island, and achieved some success. His recent efforts to prevent the Panama canal from being monopolized by steamship lines owned by railroad corporations and run in conjunction with railroads is familiar; also his fight to have canal tolls remitted to American ships.

It is comforting to know that we have such a man at the wheel as Mr. Knowland—a man who is familiar with the ins and outs of legislation and who has the knack of getting measures of great importance to his constituents through Congress. Mr. Knowland has been remarkably successful in this Congress, although a Democratic majority pledged to cutting down expenses is in control. Despite the opposition of narrow, partisan economists, he has managed to get the money for improving our harbor. That's the kind of a man to have in Congress, for the longer he stays in Congress the more useful he is.

"The Republican party fell to pieces at a touch," says Chester Rowell. Does that statement justify you in stealing the pieces? In one breath you say the Republican party is dead and in the next you clamorously assert that you have a right to steal its name, livery, emblems and designation on the official ballot. The party is charged with being dead as an excuse for robbing it.

"If A. L. Cowell gets the Democratic nomination in the Seventh Congressional District Oly Needham will be beaten," says the Watsonville Register. And the district will make a poor swap. By exchanging Needham for Cowell, the Seventh District will cast aside ability, experience, force and influence for purely negative qualities. Needham is in favor of protecting the industries of the district, while Cowell is a theoretical free-trader and wants to smash the tariff. His party caucus will vote him against the interests of his constituents, should he be elected. But he will not be elected. The voters of the Seventh District have too much sense to turn down a man who has served them with such zeal and ability as Needham has displayed. Cowell is a good man—to keep at home.

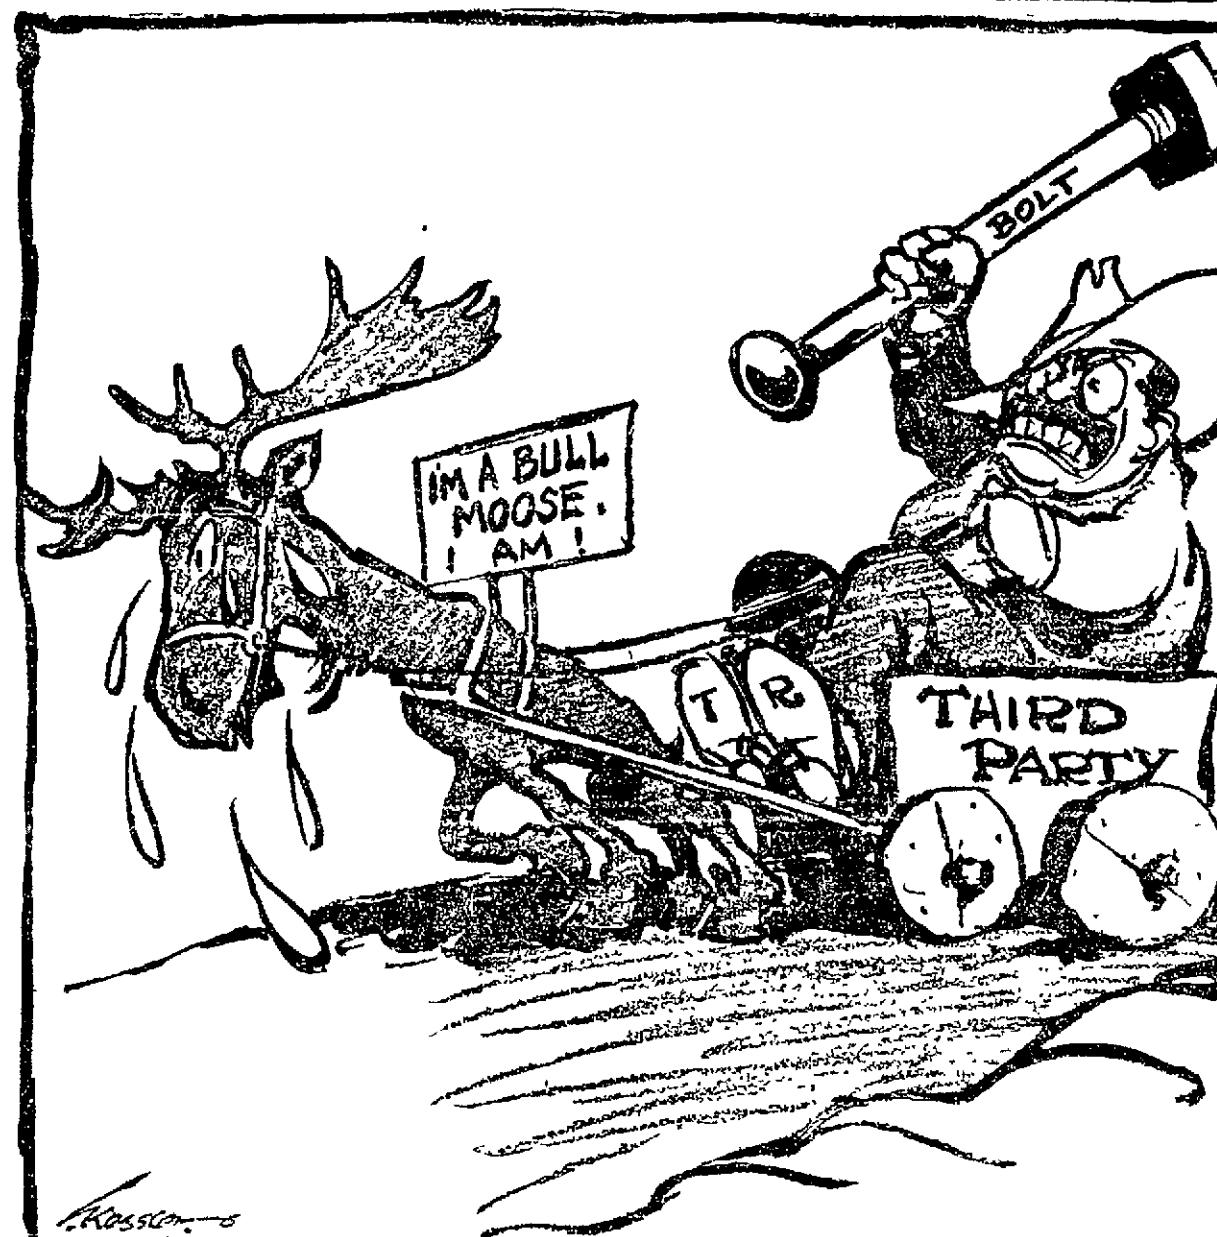

What's the matter with Kansas? We have heard nothing from Red Stubbs for at least four days. What has occurred to stop the cave of the winds known as his mouth? Bill Allen White is still doing a literary suttet by way of testifying to his grief for the fate that has befallen Teddy, but nothing comes from Red Stubbs. Why is Carmine Bill mute? Has he got his foot in his mouth or has Colonel Bill Nelson of the Kansas City Star boarded it up as a dangerous opening? Something's wrong in Kansas, be sure of that, or the jaw of Red Stubbs would be hitting the Philistines with righteous fury. The quiescence along the Kaw is disquieting.

Spreckels Tries to Boss the Democrats.

Rudolph Spreckels attempts to do a little bossing in the Democratic party while rebuking the bossism fastened on the Republican party. He sent a telegram to Senator Works commanding him for refusing to submit to the bossism of Meyer Lissner et al., but also for his consistency it transpires that he has written Woodrow Wilson requesting him to depose the men selected by the Democratic State Committee to manage the campaign and appoint a new set who will be acceptable to Mr. Spreckels. Mr. Spreckels professes to be a Republican, but he has volunteered his services in this campaign, and he apparently thinks this justifies him in dictating how and by whom the Democratic campaign shall be run. He had an idea seemingly that the nominee for president can depose and appoint officers of state committees at his pleasure. At least, that is what he proposes that Woodrow Wilson shall do in California. Perhaps the Democrats of California may deem themselves capable of managing their own affairs without instructions from Mr. Spreckels. His telegram definitely regarding the resignation of Senator Works was not more cheeky than Spreckels' letter to Woodrow Wilson asking him to discharge the present chairman of the Democratic State Committee and nominate Theodore A. Bell. Nor does it possess more of the elements of bossism.

"The Republican party is dead," cries Chester Rowell & Co. "We propose to take charge of the body and wear its clothes." It is not pollution—it is body-snatching!

Luther Burbank's Fame Spreads.

An eastern journal says Luther Burbank, the California plant wizard, expects soon to produce by hybridizing the potato and tomato a plant that will produce tomatoes on the stalk and potatoes under ground. The eastern editor seems to think the project perfectly feasible and hopefully looks forward to its realization.

Perhaps he has been reading of the Fresno man who crossed his bees with fireflies and developed a species of honey-makers that worked every hour of the twenty-four instead of half the time. Each of these hybrid bees carried his own lantern and was equally at home in daylight or the dark. The ingenious apiarist naturally amassed a great fortune and gained wide fame—as a liar.

But Professor Burbank is not devoting his whole time and attention to hybridizing the potato and the tomato. He is developing a fruit tree that will bear peaches in summer and oranges in winter. Also he is crossing the milkweed with the snow-plant with the idea of developing a plant that will produce ice cream. The world is familiar with the famous tree he has propagated to grow dogwood sausages.

If our eastern friend will keep his eye on California he will see some wonderful things and hear of others still more wonderful.

Hetty Green, fortune estimated at $60,000,000, has joined the church. She has discovered that the passage in the Bible saying that it is harder for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven than for a camel to go through the eye of a needle does not apply to women.

Senator Works says there is too much Roosevelt about the third party. Why, it is all Roosevelt. There is nothing else to it. It was started by Teddy for Teddy and is being run by Teddy. The only excuse for its existence is Teddy's desire for a third term.

Where Inventions Will Lead.

Treads now in the footprints of Marconi another Italian inventively inclined. He announces that he has successfully completed an instrument called the "wireless iconograph," by means of which autographs and sketches may be sent by wireless telegraph just as verbal messages are sent now.

Thus does the world proceed on its errand of annihilating time and space. Every month tells us of another step. From great distances to insignificant ones the progress is equally distributed. The dictograph brought us into contact with every part of our office building, with the added advantage which the genius of the lamp bestowed upon Aladdin of being there unseen. The telephone and the telegraph are as much parts of our life as our morning tub or our evening meal. As the telephone has tied state to state and the telegraph nation to nation, the cable and wireless have bound continent to continent. We have every reason for expecting the telescope ultimately to link world to world.

What a wealth of material is here presented to the delighted eyes of the man with an imagination! He can picture the time when a button pressed will garb him in his dressing gown and roll and light his cigarette; when another will lay before his enchanted eyes and ears the grand opera as it is being sung at Covent Garden; when a third will reveal the whereabouts of his son Willie and wield the necessary paddle if Willie is not all Willie should be; when a fourth, while it discloses the arm of Clarence about the slender waist of daughter Gwendolyn, will whisper Clarence's rating in Bradstreet and deliver the toe of a partner! & where most execrable in that rating is lower than "H"; when, finally, a last button will adjust his pajamas, put out the cat, lock the door, extinguish the lights and hurl the alarm clock into the heart of the Argentine republic.

"If we start things this fall, we can have a canal before the Panama canal is finished," says the Fresno Herald. Won't it be rather expensive to buy water to irrigate the canal after you have built it? It will be even more expensive to haul it. A canal, you know, cannot do entirely without water.

FAMILIAR MUSIC

A melody sounds from the tree,

A sweet familiar strain,

Each bird that sings so loud and free

Is just as old as man.

Each finds an ordinary avow,

In the exultant lay,

By which we know him, though unseen.

How carols day by day

"Oh, fellow citizens, beware!"

The predatory hawk

Down with the doves! Have a care

Of sharp, pricking talk

How often in these woods have heard

Thou voice, low and strong

Though it may be a different bird,

It is the same old song.

BOUQUET EATEN TO PROVE NAPOLEON WAS WRONG

The Dramatist Tells How His Grandfather Met the Emperor.

PRESENT TO GENERAL PROMPTLY SWALLOWED

Vaucaire, the Dramatist, Is Also a Clever Story Teller.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service)

PARIS, July 20.—Maurice Vaucaire is a well-known French dramatist. He collaborated with Sardou in a three-act play in verse, "La Jeunesse de Figaro," he wrote "Hans, the Flute Player," and the "Manon Lescout," to which Fuccini wrote the music, and his "Chatterton" to the music of Leoncavallo has become a classic.

He can do more than write plays. He tells a story better than any man in Paris. Here is one of his stories:

"A great many years ago I was a very small boy, and at that happy time my grandfather was fond of telling me how he, when he was seven years old, made the acquaintance of the Emperor Napoleon. My grandfather was a flower grower at Grasse. His father had grown violets and orange blossoms before him and a few days after Napoleon landed from Elba—exactly on March 2, 1815—my grandfather, Jean Paul Bedelle, made the great man's acquaintance. He used to tell the story in this way: 'I will tell it to you in his own words.'

GRANDFATHER'S STORY.

"The Emperor arrived at the Gulf Juan on board the Inconstant. He had Cambonne, Drouot, and Petard with him and 1100 men. He landed at three in the afternoon, and he left for Grasse at midnight."

"The little town, or at all events, the townspeople, wished that he were anywhere else. The townspeople of Grasse did not know just what they ought to do with him. There was no enthusiasm in Grasse for the Emperor Napoleon on March 2, 1815. I remember my father removing his nightcap, and scratching his head, and explaining how badly the townspeople of Grasse were treating the Emperor. I remember how he sprang out of bed and pulled me out of mine. 'Little man,' he said, 'the people of Grasse do not know how to treat Napoleon. You and I are going to show them Put on your best clothes.'

SNOW ON GROUND.

"Ten minutes afterwards my father put a fine bunch of violets into my hand and off we went he in his best clothes in mine. It was bitterly cold there was snow on the ground, and we ran all the way to keep warm. Every now and again my father would shout, 'Vive l'Empereur!' and though I was out of breath he made me do the same. I heard him say, 'We found him, we're standing in the middle of a group of soldiers with the tricolor cockade. Outside the circle of the soldiers stood a crowd of townspeople gazing 'in silence' at Napoleon. 'You know,' said my father, 'slip through the soldier's legs and give your flowers to the Emperor. Be quick. He must not leave Grasse with the bad impression he has got already.'

"I slipped through the legs of a big grenadier, and ran to where the Emperor was standing. I pushed the violets into his hand, and fell on my knees in front of him. I don't know why I did that, but it seemed exactly the right thing to do. 'What does the boy want?' said the Emperor, who seemed in a very bad temper.

DOUBTED WELCOME.

"'Sir,' said somebody—I was told afterwards that it was Drouot—'flowers are the industry of the country. These have been sent you as a welcome.' 'Do you think so?' said the Emperor. 'I don't. Another General, Cambonne, it was, sent the flowers and was going to smell them.'

'Don't do that!' shouted Napoleon.

"'This may be a Bourbon trick. I don't trust these people. Throw the flowers down.'

"Cambonne dropped the violets, and I began to cry. 'Where did you get those flowers, child?' the Emperor growled. I was trembling all over. It wasn't the cold. It was because of his voice. Father gave them me for you,' I said. 'Where is he?' I pointed to him without a word. 'Bring the man here,' said Napoleon, sharply.

"My father faced the Emperor. He was very pale, and looked as though Napoleon's big eyes had turned him into stone. 'You gave the child flowers to throw down,' said Cambonne, stiffly.

"'What is your name?' 'Baptiste Belasco,' my father said. 'I am a dilettante of perfume.' The Emperor stared at him as though he would read his mind.

"'Why did you send me those violets?' he asked. 'As a homage from a humble individual,' my father said.

"Everybody was looking at him, and everybody looked suspicious. 'There is some trick in this,' said the Emperor. 'Trick?' said my father. 'A trick in a bouquet of flowers?'

Napoleon laughed a short nasty laugh like a bark. 'Poison,' he said. 'The thing has been done before. We know the Bourbons.'

EATS BOUQUET.

"'My father smiled. 'Sir,' he said, 'there is no poison in these flowers, and I will prove it.' He snatched up the bouquet and two soldiers leaped forward. 'Leaves him alone,' Napoleon barked.

The two men, my father and the Emperor, stood staring into one another's eyes. My father laughed again. Then, very slowly, with his eyes on the Emperor's eyes, he raised the violets to his mouth and began eating them. He took mouthful after mouthful, eating the petals as though they had been preserved and crystallized in sugar, and his eyes never left the Emperor's face till he had eaten up the bouquet, stalks and all. He hardly choked over the stalks.

"The Dresdner Bank issued a statement that if the money is returned no further steps will be taken. The police, however, are not sure that the letter is genuine.

Wins Prize for Design of New Australian City

WALTER BURLEY GRIFFIN.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Walter Burley Griffin of Chicago recently won the international competition for the design of the site for the new federal capital city of Australia, comprising an area of 25 square miles in what is now wilderness.

The new city is to be called Canberra and is in New South Wales, seventy miles from the east coast.

The value of the prize won by Griffin is $8750. The plan of the new city is of the radial or gyratory type.

There is a principal center from which streets and boulevards radiate to other centers from which in turn thoroughfares radiate to subordinate centers.

The plan is complete in every detail, covering everything the city will include including street and steam railroads.

SENATE CONSIDERS THE CANAL BILL

Sunday Civil Appropriation Measure Also Comes Up at Session.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Senate divided its time today between the sundry civil appropriation bill and the Panama canal bill. The big civil budget was taken up shortly after the Senate met, and the reading of the bill for amendment continued. Only such amendments as might be considered without a vote were taken up, owing to the small number of Senators present.

After the morning hour Senator Smith of South Carolina delivered a speech on the Panama canal bill, discussing the arbitration phase of the question. He declared that to submit any question bearing on the canal to The Hague would mean to call into question the title to the canal.

Senators Lodge, Bacon and Reed joined in the discussion. Senator Lodge stating it is his opinion that it would be impossible to submit the canal difficulty to The Hague because he believes it would be difficult to obtain an impartial hearing.

Herman Ridder, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee of 1908, produced the books of that committee before the Senate campaign expense investigators. Ridder told the Senate he was the largest contributor to the fund of $620,644.70, having contributed $37,000 with his three sons; and that Tammany Hall was the next largest contributor with $10,000. He said the disbursals of the committee amounted to $619,470.05.

The House was not in session today, the Democratic members going to Seagirt to meet Governor Wilson.

POLICE SEEK THIEF WHO GOT $65,000

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service)

BERLIN, July 20.—The police throughout Germany are searching for Bruning, the messenger who fled from the Dresden bank here yesterday with $65,000.

The Berlin authorities have determined to use moving picture theaters in their search for the fugitive. By order of the police 250 picture places in Berlin have exhibited the photograph of Bruning at several performances.

A mysterious letter was received at police headquarters purporting to have been written by Bruning's sweetheart. The letter, which was signed with the initials "O. F.", stated that Bruning and his apoll were both hidden in his sweethearts' house, a villa near Berlin.

The writer said that Bruning was ready to end the moment if the bank promised not to prosecute him. "Please pity him," the letter continued. "He always was honest, and he deeply regrets his mad deed."

The Dresden Bank issued a statement that if the money is returned no further steps will be taken. The police, however, are not sure that the letter is genuine.

BODY BUILDERS PLAN SESSION

Physical Education Association of Coast to Hold First Annual Conference.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, July 20.—The first annual conference of the Physical Education Association of the Pacific coast will be held at the university this week under the auspices of and in conjunction with the summer session. The conference will be held two days, Saturday, July 26 and 27.

The most notable feature of the session will be a demonstration meeting on Friday evening in the Greek theater. Advanced folk dancing, gymnastic drill, dancing for men and apparatus work for men. The conference opens on Friday afternoon with a meeting in Hearst Hall when Dr. Clark W. Hetherington of the Joseph Fels Endowment will speak on "The Invention of the Physical Educator."

There will be public recreation on the playground in the afternoon and a dinner that evening at the Shattuck Hotel. Dr. M. A. Bigelow, professor of Biology in Teachers College, Columbia University, and Dr. W. G. Anderson, Director of the Gymnasium, Yale University, will speak on Saturday morning.

The business meeting will occur after luncheon at the Shattuck Hotel and in the afternoon there will be a demonstration of playground activities on the campus. Professors Ruth and Boone of the university faculty will speak on Saturday evening.

The members of the physical education department in the summer session will participate actively in these conferences. The department is under the leadership of Dr. Beach of Los Angeles and the members number over twenty. Physical education is constituting a notable part of the summer session course. The meetings of this first annual conference will be open to the public.

MISS ETHEL F. MCCLURE

MARTINEZ, July 20.—Frank Bryant and Roy Francis, the two local aviators who have been absent in various parts of the state and Nevada, have returned and are now to be found at their hangar on the Martinez. The men were at San Francisco where they gave several exhibitions. Exhibitions were also given at Santa Cruz, Monterey and other coast places.

Prior to their departure on their tour the inventor-inventors were working on a hydro-aeroplane. This will now be perfected and flights made from the water in this vicinity. The aviators were immensely pleased with their trip. They were warmly received by the Nevada people.

Mrs. Ethel McClure, A. B., University of California, who will direct the children in the Montessori system, has devoted a year to its careful study, finishing with the work in the University of California. The equipment has already arrived from New York complete.

Miss Vera Sturges, B. S., University of California, a graduate of normal and a teacher of four years' experience, and Miss Violet Richardson, B. S., University of California, will have charge of the primary and intermediate grades. Miss Myra Adella Place is a sister of Miss Louise Adella Place of the University of California. Miss Mary Severance Shafter will direct the folk dancing.

Among a long list of prominent people who endorse the school are found the names of Prof. Alexis Lange, dean of the English department in the University of California; Prof. and Mrs. Jos. N. Le Conte, Rev. Edward Lamb Parsons.

Rev. Father Peter C. Works will direct the dedication ceremony. A special choir will render sacred music. A large class of children will be confirmed.

St. Isidore's Church was completed a year ago and is one of the finest to be found outside of the bay cities.

ST. ISIDORE'S CHURCH SOON TO BE DEDICATED

DANVILLE, July 20.—Arrangements have been completed for the dedication of St. Isidore's Catholic Church here on July 24. The dedication ceremonies will be under the direction of Archbishop Patrick W. Riordan of San Francisco. Rev. Father Cummings and Rev. Father J. P. McNally will attend Archbishop Riordan.

The dedication ceremonies will begin at 10:30 a. m. and a solemn high mass will be sung by Rev. Father Dempsey or Riordan. Rev. Father Garvey of San Leandro will be the deacon and will be assisted by Rev. Father McHugh as sub-deacon.

St. Isidore's Church was completed a year ago and is one of the finest to be found outside of the bay cities.

OREGON CAPITALISTS LOOKING UP RICHMOND

RICHMOND, July 20.—Representatives of Oregon capitalists are here considering the investment of large sums of money in Richmond as one of the commercial industrial centers of California. Welby Stevens, mayor of Springfield, Oregon, and A. Perkins, president of the Commercial State Bank of that city, made a tour of the industrial centers. The water-front and other points of interest in order to gain a good idea of the development of the city during the past few years, the magnitude of its manufacturing interests and the possibility for future growth.

They were accompanied on their tour by G. W. McPherson, an old resident of this city, and expressed themselves as being greatly impressed with what they had seen. They were sent here by a syndicate of wealthy men and upon their report will depend whether investments will be made.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, July 20.—Five lectures in the course on "The Appreciation of Music" will be delivered Monday to Friday evenings of next week in Harmon gymnasium by Arthur W. Surette, staff lecturer in music at Oxford University. It is expected the attendance during the coming week will be even larger than in the week just past the first of the course.

From now on Surette will be assisted by Miss Anna Miller Wood, marco-conductor; Miss Elizabeth Simpson pianist; Mr. Robert Hughes, painter, and Doctor Wilson violinist. The subjects announced for the week are as follows:

Monday—Beethoven, Tuesday—Schubert; Wednesday—Schumann, Thursday—Chopin; Friday—Tchaikovsky.

Two public health lectures are on the program for next week at room 101, California Hall. Tuesday evening, Major John C. Bell, Medical Corps of the United States army will speak on "Sanitary Experiences in a Prison Stockade in the Tropics." Thursday evening, Dr. George Reinhard, Professor of Hygiene and Director of the Student Health, will give an address on "Student Health."

The address of Professor Richard Burton, the Chinese of Minnesota, "Robert Louis Stevenson at Hearst Hall last evening was attended by a large audience. The second of his lectures will be given at the same place Monday evening. He taught at the summer session here two years ago.

Professor R. Reed will deliver two lectures on "Contemporary Political Questions" next week, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, at Hearst Hall. His respective subjects will be "The Place of Experts in City and State Affairs" and "State Administration of Education."

Three important addresses are scheduled for next Wednesday evening. Colonel Harris Welshon will speak at room 101, California Hall. The Chinese of Minnesota, "Influence on the Industrial and Commercial Conditions of the Pacific Coast." Professor Reinhard, Ph.D., exchanged professor at Columbia University, will speak at Hearst Hall on "Bismarck." Professor Herbert E. Bolton will speak at room 101, California Hall, on "The Spanish Mission System."

This meeting will be preceded by a lecture on "Spanish Missions" by Dr. Robert Louis Stevenson.

The meeting will be held at the same place Friday night.

Active training will begin on the estuary next week. The boys leave for Honolulu on August 25.

REGATTA CREW TO BE CHOSEN

Last Members of Alameda Club to Race Hawaiians Will Be Picked.

ALAMEDA, July 20.—The final two members of the crew that will row the eight-oar barge of the Alameda Boat Club, Pacific Coast champions, in the great Honolulu regatta will be chosen tomorrow from among the following rowers: H. Nelson, Charles Kiser, H. Bell, E. Kehren and Fred Hackey. The selection will be made after a series of tryouts on the estuary.

The present squad of the four-oar barge will constitute two-thirds of the crew. It is composed of the following oarsmen: Al Brampton, winner of several diamond medals for rowing; H. Hess, holder of single skull championship of crew for three years; Jack the veteran, who rowed with the famous "Spiders" crew, which is now retired; O. Sommers, single scull champion of the coast.

Indications are that the Alameda crew will carry off the honors in the Hawaiian waters, as it has held the championship of the coast since 1908. The crew also defended its title ably in the last race when it retired the San Diego scullers on July 4.

H. (Dody) Kuhn, who for the past six years has held down the stern seat, will be coxswain in the island races. E. B. Thorning, coach and manager, and himself an expert oarsman, will accompany the crew.

SHIP BUILDING SITE IS WANTED

RICHMOND, July 20.—A. DeBretville, brother-in-law of Adolph Spreckels, manager and one of the principal owners of the Main Street Iron Works of San Francisco, spent the day yesterday in Richmond, accompanied by the secretary and treasurer of the company, Austin Sperry, also of the Sperry Flour company, in search for site for an iron works and shipbuilding plant.

Nothing could have occurred to show more forcibly the need of the inner harbor than the visit of DeBretville and Sperry. Both men looked longingly on the site of this artificial basin and said without hesitation that if it were finished, or even if the main channel were dredged, it would furnish an ideal site for the plant they have in prospect.

The visitors were taken in charge by William Brown and John Frick, and conveyed in an automobile the entire length of the outer harbor and to the shipbuilding docks. They were also driven to the Western Pipe and Steel works, Berkeley Steel works, Santa Fe foundry and a number of other manufacturing plants, including three new building, and then visited the upper horn of the Richmond peninsula and speculated on the possibility of dredging there. The Shrimpy camp and other sites impressed the capitalists but the maps showed these to be controlled by the D. C. Stroh Company and DeBretville and Sperry will interview these interests. Both urged the building of the inner harbor at the first possible time and expressed their wonder at the commercial and industrial growth of Richmond. Unless such a site as they desire for their proposed large iron works and shipbuilding concern can be secured according to their desires, they will wait for the dredging of the inner harbor channel next summer, but the location of the plant here is practically assured.

VOTES COUNTED IN RACE FOR QUEEN

Miss Elma Wollitz Is Leading in Elmhurst Carnival Contest.

ELMHURST, July 20.—Miss Elma Wollitz is leading in the floral carnival queen contest. The first count of votes was made this evening. Her nearest rival is Miss Lena Albera with 502 votes to her credit. Miss Wollitz has 567 votes. Miss Lydia Keaton is third in the running, with 478 ballots registered. The lead in the king contest is held by Arthur Vargas, who has secured 340 votes.

The floral carnival will be held in September under the auspices of the local lodges of the U. P. E. C. Society. Many unique features will be arranged for by the general arrangements committee. Civic bodies and fraternal orders from all over the country will be invited to take part in the activities.

SELECT CANDIDATES FOR THE LEGISLATURE

RICHMOND, July 20.—The "progressive" wing of the Republican party in Contra Costa county, at a meeting of the Johnson leaders yesterday in Martinez, selected Sumner Crosby of Pittsburgh as its candidate for the state Senate and Attorney T. D. Johnston of Richmond as its candidate for the state Assembly.

BIG CONTRACT SECURED.
RICHMOND, July 20.—Oil tanks to cost $70,000 will be turned out by the Richmond plant of the Western Pipe and Steel Company for the New Indian Oil Company, which is building a refining plant and distributing station at Martinez. Contract for the work was let today.

RICHMOND NOTES

RICHMOND, July 20.—Bert McCloud of the Enterprise Brewing company is managing Jack Martin, a young fighter, who gives promise of a rapid rise in popularity and who will appear in the main event of the boxing show to be given in Vallejo August 6. Martin will meet Sailor Kirk, who was regarded as the best boxer in the tiny yard town.

For the purposes of becoming acquainted with Rev. Mr. Horn, the new pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rev. Mr. Todd, who recently accepted the pastorate of the Cavalry Baptist church, the members of ministerial union held a short meeting today at which the new pastors were welcomed to the city and extended to them the glad hand of fellowship.

William Smith, prominent in fraternal circles, foreman of the San Pablo Quarries and a resident of the city for the past six years, died this morning at 3 o'clock after the result of an attack of typhoid fever from which he had been suffering for the past week. He was 45 years of age and a native of England.

The Citizens' Progressive club of the annexed district at its meeting last night discussed the proposed formation of a water district for the Santa Fe and annexed sections of the city, and appointed a committee composed of Messrs. Douglas, Summers and Johnston to investigate the matter and secure all possible information in connection therewith.

John Weber, arrested yesterday on a charge of insanity, was taken to Martinez today. He will be held pending an examination by the lunacy board. The local council of the M. I. & T. I. enjoyed some midsummer dancing party this evening at East Shore park, and Santa Clara whilst club held its regular weekly session this evening.

Weber received best treatment by Rev. Dr. W. G. Gaffey from the Boys Scouts, who are camping at Mount Diablo under the leadership of George Roth, who stated that the company arrived safely and is enjoying a delightful vacation.

S. P. MAN INSPECTS NEW RIGHT OF WAY

Company Asked to Erect New and Modern Depot at Richmond.

RICHMOND, July 20.—S. W. Hoover, right-of-way man and industrial agent of the Southern Pacific Company, was in this city today and with John H. Nicholl and H. W. Werner, secretary of the Richmond Industrial Commission, went over the route of the Cutting boulevard franchise and the proposed extension over the Tewksbury estate holdings to the Standard Oil works and around through North Richmond and the Nicholl holdings, looping the city with an electric service.

Any information as to the intention of the Southern Pacific could not be obtained relative to their rumored building of an electric line over the Henderson Richmond Annex tract on Panhandle boulevard to connect with the new Cutting line, but it is generally supposed that Cutting has the Southern Pacific company behind him in securing the Cutting boulevard and Tenth street franchise. Cutting filed a bond of $10,000 to begin work on the proposed line within six months of obtaining the franchise, most of which time is already elapsed.

Hoover and the Southern Pacific company are being urged by the Richmond Industrial Commission to build a modern station here and beautify the grounds of the Southern Pacific reservation. The present depot is not abreast of the development of the city and gives a bad impression to travelers from the trains. The company's business here has become so large that it is believed it will soon make the improvements requested.

ALAMEDA, July 20.—Paul Frick, a member of the local high school, has left school life and the Pacific coast and has gone east to become a log driver, a cruiser and become familiar with all the details of the logging business. Paul Frick is but 17 years of age and will be away for several years, during which time he will endeavor to master the logging business in order to take charge of his father's vast holdings in Washington.

Frick is well known in local society and high school fraternal circles. He was a prominent local amateur athlete and was noted for his great muscular development.

WILL MARRY IN CAGE WITH LION

Public Marriage to Be Event of Long Beach Midsummer Carnival.

LONG BEACH, July 20.—Arrangements are being rapidly completed for the public marriage that is to be a feature of the Midsummer Carnival to be held in this city August 1 to 3, and the bride-to-be, Miss Mamie Shular, a resident of Toledo, will be brought to this city by special train, the Pullman car in which she rides bearing a sign "Long Beach Pike Wedding Special."

The bridegroom, Howard Durbin, who lives in Whittier, will be escorted to this city by the members of the Pike Association in a special Pacific Electric car, similarly advertised.

The marriage will take place in the presence of an enormous crowd on the tennis courts of the Hotel Virginia, where a cage containing an African lion will be erected on a dias. In this cage the actual ceremony will take place. This will be the first such marriage ever performed in the United States to be performed in a lions cage and will attract thousands of visitors. Moving pictures of the event, together with the wedding march, the al fresco dinner that is to be given the couple at the conclusion of the ceremony and of the crowd, will be taken by several Los Angeles concerns.

The special Salt Lake car bearing the bride-elect will arrive in this city on the eve of the marriage, where she will be met by the officials of the Pike Association, the ladies and escorted to the Hotel Virginia, where an informal reception will be held.

SUFFRAGETTE HAS HER SHINS KICKED BY CROWD

LONDON, July 20.—The recent renewal of militant tactics by the suffragettes has caused the indefinite postponement of the reception by the political committee of the National Liberal Club for Mr. and Mrs. Asquith. Mrs. Asquith is greatly disturbed by the systematic attacks on the premier and by the anonymous and threatening letters she is receiving.

Militant tactics and those that follow them receive scant sympathy from the public. At a public meeting in Bristol a few nights ago, Mrs. Dove-Wilcox, leader of the local militant suffragettes, was found in an ante-room disguised as a man, wearing a soft felt hat, a dust coat and trousers. She was discovered by the police and ejected. She was afterwards followed in the street by a large crowd of people. Her hat was removed and she was roughly treated, being kicked about the shins. Eventually she got away in a street car.

LONDON SOCIETY DEFIES PRIM QUEEN

Loads Itself With Jewels on Occasion of Whitelaw Reid's Function.

AUSTERITY GO HANG! IS SLOGAN OF RICH

By CHESTER OVERTON

LONDON, July 20.—Whether by a politic conspiracy or because of reversal to the great principle of personal adornment, society is determinedly breaking away from the austerity and primness of the court.

One striking illustration of this lies in the fact that after the transient interest in the coronation, the duchess of Marlborough at the Londonerry, the chief topic of conversation in social circles this week was the wonderful display of jewels made at a ball given by Whitelaw Reid at his residence.

Mrs. Reid herself wore only diamond thimbles and a few jewels but some of her company were decked out in gems.

Miss Josephine Shuler, for instance, wore a set of immense emeralds and a wonderful train and loops and groups of the same stones with immense diamonds all over her corsage.

HEAVILY WEIGHTED.

Mrs. Bradley Martin was heavily weighted with her famous Marie Antoinette diamonds. But the English women of the guests were determined to be outdone and Lady Londonderry, the newest member of the royal family, had an immense triple row crown of diamonds while her gown was covered with huge diamonds and ropes of pearls.

The most beautiful jewels in the room, however, were the diamond and gold bracelets given by the Queen Mother.

They were rubies of great size and wonderful color and belonged to the Winburne family of which her husband is representative and heir to the title.

Mrs. John Astor has completed her plans for her motor tour with her son Vincent. They will start from Paris and in a leisurely manner through the famous Alpine passes and the Rhine, where they will travel through the out-of-the-way districts in Italy and return through Germany. Mrs. Astor will pay a brief visit to Newport in the late fall but will return to London for the winter. Next season she will entertain at her home in Grosvenor Square, which is still incomplete.

SURPRISES HOUSEHOLD.

Queen Alexandra becomes more and more regal every day. A more elaborate party which she gave for the Red Cross luncheon she stood under a great Indian canopy of red and gold which was supported by a dozen of privates and aristocrats upon shaking hands with more than a thousand people. In spite of her lameness she absolutely declined to sit down.

The original intention was to present perhaps a dozen people and allow the rest to pass, but the queen mother, who was very excited, refused to hear to it.

She is exhausting herself in her determination to keep well to the end of her life.

King George is becoming worried about his mother and her refusal to retire into the background.

But weeks ago it was reported that the millionaires' daughters had agreed to bring matters to a head by arson and even murder and recent events have given appearance of truth to this astounding statement.

SUFFRAGETTE'S PAY.

In spite of official denials explosives were recently found in the possession of the only excuse for the denial is that one of the junior officials in this department was being paid in part of the extreme suffragette and the name secret society wished to avoid any scandal.

The attempt to set fire to Nuneham, the beautiful home of the Harcourts, came as a great shock to Louis Harcourt, whose passion for the house was unbroken, with priceless works of art, only exceeded by that of his wife, who is in need of Pierpoint Morgan. Mrs. Harcourt has done much to beautify the place with the aid of that check for $250,000 which her uncle presented her with a few years ago.

DE SABLA JEWEL SUSPECT 'SWEATED' IN VAIN DETECTIVES QUESTION RIESE

Alleged Robber of New York Broker Is in San Francisco Prison.

Connection With Famous Robbery at Palace Hotel Is Doubtful.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—In custody of Detectives Leigh and Russo, of the New York police, and enroute to New York, Charles I. Riese, alias Frank Yates, was taken to the city prison from San Diego late this afternoon. Within a half hour he was swatted by Superintendent Fields of the Pinkerton detective agency, specifically retained by Eugene de Sabla to search for the jewels stolen from Miss Vera de Sabla in her apartments at the Palace Hotel on the morning following the May 21 bank at the Fairmont. Detective Sergeant William Proll, who has also been working on the De Sabla case, took a hand in the questions with which the young man was bombarded, but after two hours little tangible information was gained. It was only as an accommodation to the authorities, and as a courtesy to the Pinkerton people, that the New York officers brought their prisoner this way. They are to start tomorrow for New York.

Following the session with Riese in the detective room in the prison, the police would not admit that they had been helped in their quest of the thief who so successfully covered up his tracks following the De Sabla robbery.

THINKS HIM GUILTY.

"It is my candid opinion that this man knows nothing whatever about that crime," said Detective Proll. "We have tried him on every angle, and we have traced his movements, and I am convinced that he knows nothing of this matter."

Superintendent Fields, several of whose men have worked night and day trying to fathom the mystery and solve the riddle of the open door to the sumptuous apartments at the Palace, by which the thief escaped, was not so outspoken. He is being brought along by the Pinkertons, and knows something they were unwilling to divulge even to the local detectives working on the same case. They were undoubtedly given information by the De Sablas themselves which was not confided to the local authorities. In consequence they are unwilling to say exactly what information they have which makes them so anxious to force a confession from Riese. From distant agencies and operatives in other fields the Pinkertons have received clues from time to time, every one of which has been ruled out. They have been given a free hand as far as expense is concerned, and have interviewed every prisoner arrested by the local police, who, in the remotest way, might have been implicated in the crime itself or in the disposal of the loot.

BIG JEWEL ROBBERY.

These, whose real name is believed to be Yates, according to the departmental detectives, has been practically cleared of any other offenses in California save the three thefts in the Grant Hotel in San Diego. The fact that the Collier jewels were stolen there and were of immense value, was originally responsible for the idea that the big jewelry robbery here might also be laid to his door.

Riese was originally taken into custody by a local detective and later a companion, J. B. Adams, also known as Maud Adams, was apprehended. It was while he was in jail in this city that the information was gleaned that he was one of the two men who knocked down an aged broker in New York and stole $85,000 in currency. The money was taken suddenly from an unsuspecting citizen and a similar looking package, prepared by the thieves, was hastily handed him when he made an outcry. Apparently satisfied that his money had been returned, he went to his destination, giving the culprit time to get away before discovering his loss.

The circumstantial evidence of the New York authorities obtained extradition papers and persuaded the San Diego police to give Riese up.

The detectives are taking no chances with him, two men having been sent to the coast to guard him on his return trip. One of them will sit beside him throughout the day and he will be watched by the other, in addition to being handcuffed in his berth at night.

Captain of D electives Walter Peterman of Oakland, accompanied by T. Louis DeBartolo, a member of that city's vice commission, visited the city prison with Riese. The object of the visit was to satisfy the police that all of the jewelry pledged by Riese with the pawnbroker had been accounted for. About $1500 worth of valuables were recovered. Riese maintained there were more jewels. Tonight both were brought face to face and the articles were checked up, the prisoner admitting that every bit of jewelry and precious stones disposed of by him had been handed over to the officers.

Holding been assigned a thickly populated route, where there are a number of rooming-houses, the record made by young Nelson is considered phenomenal.

M'QUAIDE SUICIDE CAUSED BY BANKRUPTCY WORRY

Saloonman's Friends Assign Cause for Self-Destruction

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Heart broken at the failure of his fortunes and worrying over the publicity given to his disagreement with former Chief of Police John B. Martin, Frank McQuaide, the local saloonkeeper, killed himself in his office, 2008 Mission street, this afternoon. Sitting before a table on which lay a heap of cards with which McQuaide and several of his closest friends had just been playing, the liquor man calmly took a revolver which he had removed from its place of concealment behind the bar and shot himself through the heart.

McQuaide's tragic end came as the result of a series of experiences which wound up what was thought to have been a prosperous career. He had long been a power in the business world and had moved in political circles. He was a close friend of Frank Corbett of 4184 Seventeenth street, brother of James Corbett, the ex-champion pugilist and actor, and of Robert Swan, an associate for years. The latter sobbed bitterly following the suicide.

HAD BANKRUPTCY EXPERIENCE.

His experience in the bankruptcy court is given as the direct cause for McQuaide's desire to end his life. He stated that ex-Chief Martin had been a general partner when he testified before the master in chancery, but that statement Martin repudiated, although admitting that he was financially interested in the place by reason of loans made to McQuaide. The latter replied to the effect that Martin was a silent partner.

The circumstances of the death of the saloon man today had a beginning when he was around the bar at noon and began to open each of the six drawers.

In the last one lay a loaded revolver placed there in case of a possible hold-up. The bartender, William Blakely, at the Chief of Police Martin at his home, 1203 O'Farrell street, noticed the prisoner searching the drawers, but thought nothing of it when he opened every one. He did this evidently to disarm suspicion of his wife having gone there to visit friends and Martin is commuting daily to the city.

When he came to the weapon. Shortly afterward Corbett and Swan came in, and together engaged in a game of whist.

DRINKERS HEAR SHOT.

"I noticed that Frank's mind was not on the game," said Corbett afterward.

"Later we gave up playing and I did not think any more about it."

Corbett, Swan, Thomas Potter of 227 Fourteenth street, John Clooney and several of his closest friends had just been playing, the liquor man calmly took a revolver which he had removed from its place of concealment behind the bar and shot himself through the heart.

When he came to the weapon. Shortly afterward Corbett and Swan came in, and together engaged in a game of whist.

MUST FIND CANDIDATE.

Between now and Wednesday it will be the duty of J. H. Cregan and John R. Kelly to rope, throw and tie some Democrat in the Thirty-ninth district and convince him that the party needs his services. It was even agreed that the committee would start a hot line of the $10 filing fee.

When he came to the weapon. Shortly afterward Corbett and Swan came in, and together engaged in a game of whist.

JUTTRELL IN FIGHT.

"I noticed Mr. McQuaide looking through the drawers behind the bar at noon. Of course it wasn't until after his death that I realized that he had taken the gun, which was always kept in the last one. He sat down and played cards for a long while. Then he remained alone in his office. There were five or six men at the bar at 12 o'clock.

I heard the shot. He never said a word, but now that I think of it I see that he acted rather strangely."

An effort was made to interview former

Chief of Police Martin at his home, 1203 O'Farrell street, tonight, but it was found that he is residing temporarily in Berkeley. His wife having gone there to visit friends and Martin is commuting daily to

Ex-Postmaster of Nevada Attempts Life With Poison

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Theodore R. Hofer, ex-earn postmaster at Carson City, Nev., and who recently, it is claimed, was forced out of office by political enemies, attempted suicide in his room at the Grand Hotel here today. He is now in a serious condition at the McNatt hospital, but it is believed that he will recover. Hofer, with his wife and daughter, came to this city following his wife's release from the Nevada state merchant community. He has a son and a daughter, and a few days ago he sold his hotel, the Turk and Taylor streets. He had been despondent throughout the morning, and during the absence of the other members of the family from his apartment, swallowed a quantity of bichloride of mercury tablets. He was hurried to the Central emergency hospital and later transferred to the McNatt hospital.

BOXING GAME IS IN NEED OF MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Promoters Should Get Together and Put the Ban on Grasping Managers and Faking Boxers

By BERT LOWRY.

HERE is a dark cloud hanging over the boxing game in California. In the southland a petition has been circulated and it has been well signed, calling for the abolition of ring contests forever within the state. Men who are familiar with the conditions of affairs say that this petition will have enough names to secure it a place upon the ballot at the November election and a majority of the voters will cast their ballots to put the lid on boxing.

For the condition of affairs the promoters and managers and the boxers themselves are to blame. No one else.

"These promoters and managers and boxers, in their lust for the almighty dollar, have cast aside all decency of sport, spilling the great Commodore Vanderbilt who they have spoken as he spoke regarding the public."

Fake fights are no uncommon thing and the confederacy which supports the game has been entirely overlooked while these promoters, managers and fighters were in quest of the dollar.

WHAT HURTS THE GAME.

Many things hurt the boxing game. Fighting fighters have more to do with it than any other, yet the promoters are to be blamed for their part in fomenting these fakers on the public.

Recently a dispatch from New York stated that a western promoter was fighting his Johnson-Ryan fight again to attempt to countenance fakers than that?

Tommy Burns is a self-confessed faker, and Frank Hogan has been branded a faker from one end of the ring to the other. Another dispatch says that New York has raised the ban on Faker Abe Attell and that he can come back there any day again.

Then there is the stench still in the air of the unsatisfactory outcome of the Wolgant-Rivers fiasco and the promoter ready and willing to give these two $100,000 to go through another performance.

It is the condoning of these offenses that is hurting the game.

FIGHTERS OVERRATE THEMSELVES.

The fighters, too, who in most cases are cowards and managers and boxers and stalkers (meaning coffee and doughnuts), for their three meals, are demanding prices for their services that are beyond reason.

Take, for example, recently that "One-Round" Hogan was offered $100 to box 10 rounds in Oakland and he turned his nose up at it. One year ago Franklyn Burns and Willie Ritchie were glad to be paid a flat sum of $1000 to box 10 rounds.

Another recent offer to the same men was also a flat offer of $1200 wouldn't entice Ritchie into the ring with them.

Ritchie was offered a match with Tommy Burns and he accepted and this match fell through. All of these managers and millers had an excuse—a flimsy one but nevertheless an excuse.

For this condition of affairs, the promoters and managers, why, old Abe Attell, together and form a trust to crush these faking fighters and their grasping managers.

Let them offer a miller what they think is worth on what the public thinks is worth and pay him and charge an admission fee in proportion to the value of the fight.

Not for them, no manager wants it all, and so does the fighter, so somebody has to be cleaned to get this all, and that somebody is the poor "boobie," as my friend Tay Fay would say.

COMMISSION IS NEEDED.

Like New York, the boxing commission is needed in California. The faking is carried on there just as it is here, but the faker is occasionally punished and he is out of the way for at least six months, if not a year. Attributed to his bumcombe with "Knockout" Burns.

A good man at the head of this boxing commission here in California could and would save the public a lot of trouble. As a matter of fact, the real Frank Hogan generally found the loophole to evade a bout.

At last, the public became peeved at the actions of Burns, when he was offered a match with Tommy Attell, and they demanded that he accept, and Hogan, possibly thinking he had a soft touch, took the offer.

When the fight came along, Hogan will face a tough customer, little Tommy, who has been sailing through the four-round game barehanded for many rounds now and has not even started to be finished. Each time he comes off the ropes, he runs speed and when he has to stop, he has to stop.

Let the promoters throughout the state that is the big follows like Grancy, Coffey, Kryne, McCarren, Hirschfeld and others, get together and form a committee that will purify the boxing game.

Let them get together and make a list of fake fighters. But the promoters of the Fine, Temple, Pease, Attell, Jack O'Brien, and countless others, on this list, then scratch them off as unfit to box within the state. Pick out those who are to earn an honest dollar. They will find a few—and let these boys supply the heating to the public mind and that performance is

WHITE WINS FROM MORAN ON FOUL IN NINTH ROUND

Britisher Had a Shade in Nearly Every Round, but Would Not Desist Using Elbows When Warned

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—Jack White, the 126 pound boxer of Chicago, was awarded the decision over Owen Moran of England, on a foul in the ninth round of a slow and uninteresting fight at the Vernon arena this afternoon.

The fight was an unsatisfactory one from the start, with both fighters trading hard blows. White in the face times with his elbow in such a deliberate manner that a blind man could have seen it. The referee stopped the fight at once and awarded the decision to White.

Three rattling six-round preliminaries were staged before the main event. Young Joe Thomas won the decision over Percy at the end of six rounds; Jack Clark, a classy looking middleweight, stopped Bob Graham in three rounds, and Jimmy Austin stopped Danny Rooney in the third round of a smashing bout.

White stopped the fight in the sixth round and told the Englishman that if he did not stop his foul tactics he would disqualify himself. Moran fought fair until the ninth.

In a clinch on the southeast side of the ring, White struck Moran in the face times with his elbow in such a deliberate manner that a blind man could have seen it. The referee stopped the fight at once and awarded the decision to White.

DISCUSSES THE LIFE BEARS EVIDENCE OF MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY

Calvin Erb Declares Autos Will Be Used While the World Is Populated.

"I suppose that as long as automobiles are used there will be people who will keep asking how long the motor car industry is going to last. That question has become the classic bane of the automobile business, yet because so many people ask it, I am going to answer it," said Calvin C. Elb of the Pioneer Automobile Company, the local Chalmers agents.

"Automobiles in some form will doubtless be used as long as the world is populated by civilized people who desire to move from one place to another. This automobile plays such an important part in modern life that it would not be possible to eliminate it from the daily routine. Obviously, as long as motor cars are used someone is going to build them and the industry is bound to go right along."

"I want to make a prediction of my own. Five years from now the automobile industry will be very easy for some of us and very hard for the rest of us. Right now the motor car industry is simply a survival of the fittest. The day is past when a company whose only assets are some office furniture and a few blue prints can market an automobile. Some manufacturers have seen the trend of affairs. They are giving constantly greater values. And they are succeeding. Each year sees the elimination of some car which was not a high dollar for dollar value. Gradually the interest of the public is centering on a smaller number of cars, which are coming to be recognized as standard."

"It is inconceivable that any nation of intelligent people should continue year after year to buy any article which does not give adequate service. The manufacturer of standard cars who are winning out in the business are building cars not for this year, or for next year, but for five years. They are building cars for the future. They are building cars which will give adequate service three, four and five years from now."

BREAKS RIBS TRYING TO WIN $50; LOSES

CINCINNATI, July 20.—To win a bet of $50, Harry Orlando, a so-called "handcuff king," undertook to jump from the middle span of the Central bridge over the Ohio river, and, having succeeded, to release his hands while in the water. He jumped, landed flat on the water and sank. Two men who witnessed the jump brought Orlando ashore. Both of his ribs were broken and he suffered from internal injuries.

Can Men Be Fooled On Tires?

Are 200,000 Mistaken?

That is the crux of the question.

Some 200,000 motor car owners have tested out over 1,250,000 Goodyear tires. One-third of all cars are equipped with them.

As a result, No-Rim-Cut tires now far outsell every other tire. And the sale doubles every eight months.

Does this type really save half on tires? Or are all these men mistaken?

Now the King of Tires

No-Rim-Cut tires now hold, by long odds, the topmost place in Tidemark.

The demand today is 12 times larger than three years ago. And a monthly output of 100,000 fails to supply the call.

Just because the hosts of users tell what these tires have done,

What They Save

No-Rim-Cut tires—our patent type—make rim-cutting forever impossible.

Old-type tires may be wrecked in a moment, if punctured and run flat. And under-inflation may lead to rim-cutting.

PRECIOUS STONE INDUSTRY LARGE

United States Yields $343,692 in Gems in the Year of 1911.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—American mines in 1911 yielded $3600 worth of emeralds, $215,213 worth of sapphires, and $44,751 worth of turquoise according to figures just compiled by the United States geological survey. The total output of precious stones in the United States last year was valued at $343,692, the production in 1910 was valued at $255,381.

An important feature of the gemmological industry in the United States during 1911 was the result of prospecting at the Turner emerald mine in the Shoshone mountains of some of the gems and the value of the gem material found in this deposit with a small amount of development work are promising for the output included gems valued at $100 to $200 per carat and emeralds in quality to the average run of the emeralds from South America. During the last three years this one locality in North Carolina has yielded gems worth $10,000.

Many interests have lately been aroused in the moss agate found in Montana, some of which are remarkable for their resemblance to landscapes. By taking advantage of the occurrence of moss agate, dark swarms and dendritic patches, patterns are obtained that resemble moss, sea growth, ferns, rushes, trees and landscapes with water and islands. The cut and polished stones are popularly used in brooches, stick pins, watch fobs, belt buckles and other ornaments. The gems cut from the Montana moss agate or stone command a good price, bringing anything from $1 to $200 or $300 apiece. Some of the smaller stones suitable for stick pins if the mossy or fernlike patterns are particularly delicate and beautiful, bring $2 each.

Most of the gemstones come from Arkansas and California, although accounts have appeared in newspapers of the discovery of these gems in Illinois and Texas. The most important find of the year in Arkansas was a 14-carat diamond—the largest diamond so far found in the State. Another white diamond, of 8 44-51 carats, was also found.

The largest emerald so far discovered in North Carolina measured about one inch by three-quarters of an inch by half an inch. It was about half a crystal split parallel with the length. It weighed 10 carats and contained 20 gems, the largest of which weighs about three carats. This stone has been described as having an excellent deep-green color and as being particularly beautiful at night when illuminated with light, but is slightly foggy in strong daylight.

Considerable business in gems is done among tourists along the coast of California, Oregon, and the beach peninsula and the Pacific Coast, making many and pleasing colors. Some of these stones have been described in terms suggested by characteristic names such as "onyx flower," "wire agate," "egg," and "Japanese eye." One company in Avalon, Cal., has been engaged in cutting these stones for several years. The stone is obtained in all sizes, ranging over six inches thick to small pebbles, but good gem material is not plentiful.

Beach pebbles are collected and cut for the tourist trade along the coast of Oregon, as in northern California. The tourists often collect them to carry off as souvenirs, either polished or in the rough.

'HOBBLE SKIRT' CAR IS A HIT IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 20.—The new Studebaker car, which has met with great favor in New York, and which some facetiously was termed the "hobble-skirt women's delight," has been given its first trial in St. Louis meeting with a unanimous reception from the public according to Richard McCulloch, vice president and managing general manager of the United Railways company. The car was operated as a trailer last night on the Olive-Delave line, and proved satisfactory, it is said.

The architecture is of distinctly new lines, the body being built without any steps, the passenger stepping from the ground to the floor of the car which is 11 inches above street level. The entrance and exists are on the side, the front and rear ends being closed.

The new car may be adopted exclusively by the United Railways if it proves satisfactory to the company, according to McCulloch. Their introduction will be gradual however as a large number of the cars now operating are practically just out of the shops, and it would be too great a waste of money to abandon them to the junk heap at once.

FASHION COLLUSION SCENTED.
"It is very hard," said McCulloch, "for a man to get into a car and therefore the low car should appeal to them."

He could not say whether the hobble-skirt designer collaborated with the builder of the car or vice versa, though he appeared to think there was collusion between them.

It was built in the shape of the United Railways. It is 42 feet in length and 7 feet wide. The seats are placed parallel on the side of the car, as in the old fashioned broughams. The conductor has a small drop nickel in the slot machine and the doors in the side are opened and closed with a lever. The seats are upholstered entirely of steel.

POSTCARD CRAZE IS ON WANE, DEALER SAYS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 20.—The souvenir post card business soon will be only a souvenir of the post card craze, so far as the small jobber is concerned, says Claude M. Corrington, proprietor of a post card jobbing house at 1110 Olive street, and defendant in bankruptcy proceedings begun in the Federal Court by a group of New York creditors. Unscrupulous persons have entered the business, heavy importations have glutted the market, and manufacturers are selling to retailers at such low prices the jobber can make nothing, Corrington says.

"I will let the creditors take the business and see what they can get out of it," he said. "I think my liabilities are about $6500 and my assets about $3000. Through the business is overdone. Not 1 per cent of the salesmen I sent out made good."

The biggest claim against Corrington is that of $289, presented by Raphael Tuck & Sons. The others who sued are I. Stern & Co., Elm Bros., Paul Bendix, E. W. Gustin & Co. and I. Gottlieb & Co.

Two more illustrious names have been added to the group of experts who have assembled under the Flanders banner C. A. McGee, general controller of the General Motors Company, and one of the most important factors in the recent successful reorganization of that concern, has resigned and formed a connection with the Flanders Manufacturing Company.

The other is also a former General Motors officer, and one who dates back several years before the merging of the various individual concerns into that corporation—namely Ford Hawes, for ten years chief engineer of the Cadillac Motor Company. Mr. Hawes was the father of all Cadillac models since 1909 and has long been recognized as one of the big men of the engineering field, as well as one of the "safest" designers of whom the industry could boast. Mr. Hawes' hobby—if he has any—has been attention to details. Not only mechanical details, but little and seemingly unimportant matters of finish and equipment that are so dear

COMPLETES TRIP OVER CONTINENTS

Stoddard Motorists Tour Europe and Now Journeying In United States.

Through the Standard Motor Car Company comes the report of a wonderful record of endurance and power made by Dr. Albert D. Bailey, the noted eye specialist of Boston, Mass., who has just completed a trip across both continents in a 10-horsepower Stoddard Dayton Stratford.

Just one year ago Dr. Bailey, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, shipped their car to Liverpool, touring from that city to London, visiting Chester one of the most famous cities of the old world, en route. Thence the party motored to Stratford-on-Avon, the home of Shakespeare continuing on over the finest drive in England to Warwick Castle, and thence to Kenilworth, Leamington, and Dunchurch, from whence the car was shipped across the channel and driven to Paris.

After a week's stay in the gay city the car was driven to Switzerland and two delightful weeks spent motoring over the Swiss Alps, the Rhine and the Alpine. Of all roads on either side of the Atlantic the doctor says that none can compare with those in Switzerland. There one can climb to an altitude of eight thousand feet on highways surpassing our finest boulevards and the ascent being over grades ranging from five to nine per cent.

After leaving Switzerland the itinerary included stops in Germany, Belgium and Holland. Sailing from Hamburg, arriving there May 3, and leaving on the 5th, the party for a day stopped at Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver, Cheyenne, and crossing the desert arrived in San Francisco July 17.

The speedometer registered over six thousand miles for the entire trip.

In speaking of his long journey the doctor says that with all the various cities of climate, geology and road, the car acquitted itself in a most creditable fashion and is the only car to his knowledge covering both continents within a year. But for the racking of tires caused by roads across the American desert, no trouble of any description was experienced.

After a short visit with friends in San Francisco the party will drive to Los Angeles, their objective point.

To the hearts of fastidious buyers, which in the ensemble add so much to the general appearance and attractiveness of the car.

HANGER IS NOW HAYNES MANAGER

General Manager Names New Head for Local Branch Salesroom.

Following the announcement of the direct factory branch of the Haynes Automobile Company, F. W. Hanger has been appointed manager of their Oakland branch at 205 Twelfth street. The Haynes people have increased their facilities for taking care of owners of their transbay territory, with factory men in their service department and with their new and spacious quarters, nothing has been overlooked to still advance the well-known reputation of the Haynes car. They want to impress all owners and prospective purchasers that their Oakland organization is a direct branch and not an agency.

Hanger has had three and one-half years' factory experience in all departments, as well as three years on the coast and always has in mind the extreme satisfaction of all owners.

In speaking of the outcome for the coming year, he says, "It will not be a question of selling the Haynes line, but of the factory being able to take care of the demand. They are branching out into the forest field and the direct factory branch idea in this country has made the Haynes car greatly in demand for owners as well as prospective purchasers."

After coming to the United States for the first time, Hanger found the market for the Haynes car greatly in demand for owners as well as prospective purchasers have come to realize that it is the only source through which they can purchase cars and be protected for the life of their guarantee.

Now is the Time to Buy a Studebaker

This is just the season of the year when motoring can be enjoyed to its fullest extent.

And the car that will give you this motor enjoyment unhaunted by doubt, misgivings or the bogey of high upkeep cost is the Studebaker "20."

You can buy a Studebaker blindfold. The name has been a synonym for quality for over 60 years and eliminates any element of chance.

The quality of the Studebaker "20" is equal to that of any car built, irrespective of price.

We know because every part of Studebaker cars is manufactured in our own plants—guaranteeing to us what we guarantee to you.

The good appearance of your car is another essential to motor enjoyment.

Note the just pride that every Studebaker owner takes in the style and good looks of his car.

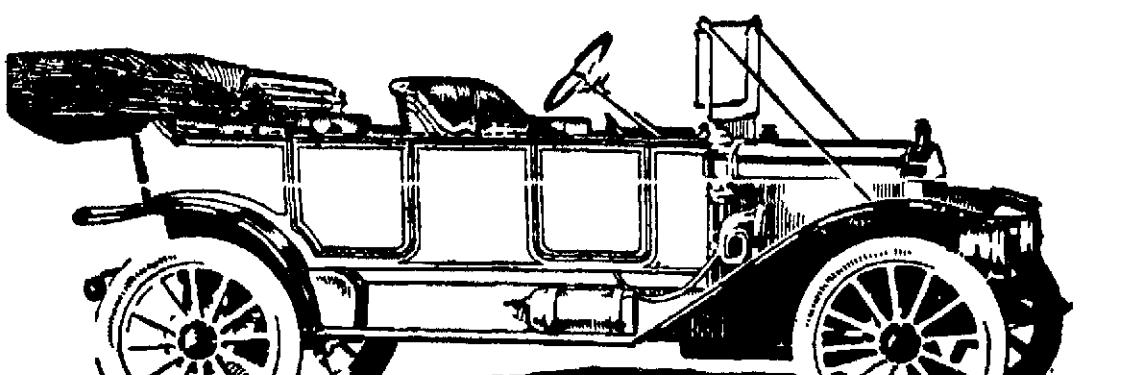

You can always pick a Studebaker. Beauty and mechanical perfection distinguish them.

The Studebaker system includes the largest and best equipped factories in the world. Hundreds of automatic machines manufacture parts for Studebaker cars with superhuman exactness and at lowest cost. A corps of engineers and inspectors direct the work of 10,000 skilled mechanics.

Because of our enormously increased factory facilities made necessary to cope with the constantly growing demand for Studebaker cars, we are now in position to make prompt deliveries.

75,000 Studebaker cars in use with every owner satisfied, are convincing proof of Studebaker supremacy.

SEATTLE WILL SEND DELEGATES

Big Party of Motorists Coming to Pacific Highway Convention.

Judge I. T. Ronald, president of the Pacific Highway Association, has announced definite plans for the advance party of motorists who will tour to San Francisco to attend the third annual Pacific Highway convention, August 6, 7, and 8.

According to the schedule laid down by Judge Ronald, the first party will leave Seattle July 29. A day or two later will be made at Chehalis. Next morning, July 23, leaving Chehalis, Portland will be made that night. Mr. Samuel Hill has invited all who care to visit him at Maryhill July 24. The party will go to Maryhill because of the fact that it leaves the station at Elizabethtown at 10 o'clock. Mr. Hill will show the visitors the roads he has built at Maryhill. The return will be made during the afternoon by train. Next morning, July 25, the delegation will leave Portland and drive via Eugene to Cottage Grove, some will stop at both places, as the hotel accommodations at Cottage Grove are not sufficient to take care of everybody. July 26th, leave either Eugene or Cottage Grove and drive to Grants Pass, July 27th, leave Grants Pass and drive to Shasta Springs.

STOP OVER AT SHASTA.

Stop over all day Sunday at Shasta Springs. July 29, leave Shasta Springs and drive to Red Bluff. July 30, leave Red Bluff and drive to Sacramento. July 31, the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce will entertain the delegates and at 4 p.m. when all will go to Stockton to stay overnight which is a distance of fifty-two miles over hard surface road. August 1, drive from Stockton to San Francisco by way of Livermore Pass. Those who expect to ship their boats which will practically cut in half the elapsed time absent from Seattle. Several may not care to arrive in San Francisco as early as this and they can follow this same schedule a few days later.

A day may be cut off of this schedule by going from Redding and Red Bluff direct to Vallejo ferry and taking a thirty-five-mile ferry trip from Vallejo or Benicia to San Francisco. The run can be made from either Redding or Red Bluff to the ferry point in one day and an evening ferry can be caught which will land the visitors in San Francisco, which cuts off two days from the other schedule, including stop-over in Sacramento.

Arrangements have been made with all railroads running into San Francisco for special fare and one-third rates on the certificate plan. This means that all delegates who go by train will be required to pay the regular one-way fare and take a receipt for same which will probably be demanded by the transportation of the association will be good for the return trip when accompanied by one-third of the regular rate.

SKEETER IN DAKOTA WORSE THAN JERSEY'S

New Jersey has a brand of mosquitoes that is infamous. The "skeeters from Woodrow Wilson's native state have acquired a reputation that is not enviable. Their stinging propensities are likened to the deadly thrust of a barbed dart, carrying a torture with every puncture. But there is a new star in the insect firmament shooting burning rays into the helpless wanderer.

North Dakota has a species of mosquitoes that makes the New Jersey "skeeters" appear as tame pests when compared with the hordes of tormentors that exist in the sloughs of the Dakotas "badlands." That the prairie kind of "skeeters" has New Jersey backed off the ranks is testified to by A. L. Westgate, field representative of the A. A. A. and U. S. office of good roads, who is making three transcontinental tours in a Pathfinder "40" in one touring season.

KISSEL DRIVER EXPERT AT CATCHING ROOSTERS

Driving fully a half of a mile with a live rooster impaled upon the radiator of his Kiszel Kar, was the novel experience of Dr. R. B. Colter of Marinette, Wis. Doctor Colter had run through a flock of chickens near Lake Winnebago and, while sure that he had killed none of them, was considerably non-plussed regarding a rooster which he had noted among the flock as he was coming upon them, but which he did not see on either side of the road as he passed. The doctor was in somewhat of a hurry and thought little of the matter until, about a half mile down the road, he stopped his car. Then, to his astonishment, Mr. Rooster dropped from the radiator, apparently unharmed, though very much frightened. The suction had held him fast the entire distance.

FREAK DANCES IN DISFAVOR HERE

Stork Hop, Goat Bound and Fox Dance Frowned Upon by Milwaukee Dancers.

MILWAUKEE, July 20.—Nix on the stork hop, the goat bound, and the fox dance, say Milwaukee dancing masters. These are the startling suggestions for new dances next season in the drawing rooms of two hemispheres, according to Maître Lefort, Paris. Dancing masters in Milwaukee declare they will never become popular in this city.

The stork hop is to be danced with many couples together, imitating the flight of the long-legged bird. In the goat dance the dancers imitate the graceful bounds of a goat. The fox dance is to replace the double Boston, according to Maître Lefort.

He says drawing room dancing is now much regarded as a light and frivolous amusement, whereas he considers that it should be expression of philosophical art, based on profound psycho-physiological knowledge.

"Where can there be any difference in the fox, goat or stork dance and the grizzly bear, bunny hug, Texas Tommy and the others?" asked A. C. Wirth, a Milwaukee dancing master. "Where is there any grace in the bound of a goat or the leap of a fox when it is sped by?" We should draw our ideas of grace from fairyland—in the dancing of the fairies or the graceful movements of angels."

He believes the dances proposed by Lefort are outgrowths of what he calls some of the present vulgarities, including the grizzly bear, Texas Tommy and the bunny hug. They will never find favor in Milwaukee, he is certain, but "they may be taken up in the east for a time."

The aviation giddy and the Boston are due for their inning next season, say dancing masters in Milwaukee. Both are said to embody graceful movements that are not vulgar. The one-step will find favor with some, but its slow movement is too suggestive of the bunny hug, grizzly bear and others of that kind, says Wirth.

"The so-called vulgar dances that have had a run during the last few years are due for the scrap heap. People are tiring of them and even New York society is becoming opposed to them."

"The trouble with the average American," said Wirth, "is that he or she doesn't want to take the time to learn difficult dances. They are satisfied to take up something that is easily learned and frequently vulgar."

MAN IS FINED FOR TRYING TO HANG SELF

RACINE, Wis., July 20.—White temporarily crazed by drink, Peter Jensen, a roomer at the Essex Hotel on State street, attempted to commit suicide by hanging himself with a bed sheet from the rings of the door in his room.

Attracted by noise from the room, Albert Jensen and James Bauman, who were in the hotel, broke down the door and cut Jensen down just in time to save his life.

Jensen has been stopping at the hotel for about three months, and has been drinking nearly all that time. The other day he was overtaken by the delirium tremens and was carried to his room.

Hospital noises issuing from Jensen's room, the two men in the hotel thought something was wrong, and immediately ran upstairs. They found the door locked, but putting their combined weight against it, broke it down.

They found Jensen hanging from the top rings of the door with a bed sheet around his neck. When they cut him down he was unconscious and was blue in the face, and it was thought he was dead. A physician was summoned and brought him to again.

Jensen was taken into custody and when haled before Judge Snodgrass was sent to jail for 10 days, the charge of drunkenness being preferred against him.

CANARY BIRD ACTS AS GUARDIAN OF CHILD

N.Y., July 20.—Bringing home a canary in a cage, Yankers man gave it to his wife. His interest in the songster was established in the lady's boudoir, not far from a crib in which the household baby took daily naps. The tot immediately became interested in his new neighbor and the bird would fly against the bars of his brass prison in efforts to get nearer the child. But the pair got better acquainted when baby began to crawl and the bird had its fingers thrust inside the bars. For such occasions the canary would perch on the baby's hand and gently peck at the tiny, dimpled digits.

After a few weeks the bird was often released and permitted to spread its wings in the room. Later it was given the freedom of the house, but although it flew into various rooms, it would not long remain absent from the boudoir or the crib. Baby and bird became intimate friends and the bird would hop on the baby's head and hands, but carefully avoid being clutched in the fat little fingers.

When the infant goes to sleep the canary perches on the foot of the crib, sits on the edge of the crib and keeps a sharp eye open. And if a small sentinel, for if anyone approaches the sleeper it begins to sputter, ruffle its feathers and otherwise manifest symptoms of alarm.

Motorboat Is Expected to Beat 1904 Long Journey Record

THE DETROIT, A 35-FOOT MOTORBOAT, WHICH IS CROSSING THE ATLANTIC ON RECORD TRIP.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The motorboat Detroit left New York a few days ago with Commodore Thomas Fleming Day in charge, bound for St. Petersburg, Russia, via Queenstown. The Detroit is manned by a crew of four including Day. They expect to make England in 21 days, which would be in 14 days less than the present record, made in 1904.

Attracted by noise from the room, Albert Jensen and James Bauman, who were in the hotel, broke down the door and cut Jensen down just in time to save his life.

GIRL IS LEFT TO BURN ALIVE

Assailant Builds Fire of Tattered Clothing He Tore From Her.

CUMBERLAND, Md., July 20.—Leaving his victim, Frances Wintermeyer, aged 16, whom he had attacked within 100 yards of her home in Cash Valley, three miles from Cumberland, beside a fire made of her garments, it is thought that it was the intention of the assailant that she meet death by burning. The girl was unconscious when the fire was badly burned. She was aroused by the flames creeping over her and, exhausted, she found her way to the house and gave the alarm. The man used his knife to divest the girl of her clothing, except her top dress.

Miss Wintermeyer is pretty, the daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Wintermeyer, a widow. She had been in Cumberland. She saw a man approaching in the road, and when he came upon her he said: "Hello, pretty baby doll." She kept going, but he seized her from behind and dragged her into a clump of bushes. He brandished a long-bladed knife over her, threatening death or she screamed. The girl fainted, and was awakened by the flames. She had a $4 gold piece and a $1 bill and a ring, which her assailant took. Miss Wintermeyer thinks the man was a foreigner, about 30 years of age.

The knife, which Berry was using in the breaking up of the dynamite, was heavily blunted at the tip, with parts of it being lodged deep under the skin in Berry's face and

WAR ON AGAINST CHILD MARRIAGES

CHESNUT BLIGHT HARMFUL TO GAME

Presbytery to Investigate Increasing Number of Unsuitable Weddings.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The increasing number of marriages of persons under age of 16, particularly those who go to Washington, swear they are of age and are married by ministers, has stirred the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

The committee on public morals of that body will make an investigation of the subject and will report its findings next fall.

Believing that the ministers in Washington, which has grown to be the "Gretna Green" of this city and surrounding towns, can exercise a supervision over the marriage question and prevent many cases of undesirable matings, the ministers and laymen comprising the committee will endeavor to find some means of curbing what is believed to be a serious evil.

"It is an easy matter for a minister to determine whether the persons before him are fit to be married or not," said the Rev. Dr. William F. Paxton, pastor of the First Presbyterian.

"I know that when a young-looking pair appears before me, I question them before performing the ceremony. It should be the duty of a minister to marry a young pair to inquire into the circumstances."

"When they appear before me, he should ask the ages of the pair, and then for the address of the parents. Next question would be as to whether the parents of the pair approve of their marriage, and the parents could be communicated with. In this case, it would be enough to prevent the marriage and also the breaking of the hearts of the parents."

"It is a terrible thing for a mother to have her daughter 16 years old, come home and tell her she is married, and it is as bad for the father. By cutting down on the marriages a great deal of unnecessary trouble is avoided."

There are two ways in which the committee can go about its work: One is to present a law to the Delaware legislature so that legal opposition to the marriages can be enlisted. The other way is to enlist the interest of the ministers who are in position to perform the marriages. It was because of the popularity of church bodies that many ministers who formerly performed marriages for divorced persons have ceased the practice.

It is pointed out, there are very few ministers in the state who will marry divorced persons, unless the persons to be married are the innocent parties in what are known as bilateral grounds.

The committee on public morals of the Presbytery is composed as follows: The Rev. Henry E. Jones, chairman; the Revs. George B. Bell, H. Alfred Boggs, George W. Gray, William Y. Brown, and John M. Fulton; Charles Young, Samuel C. Henry, F. Wells, Allan Sutherland and H. W. Lambirth.

OHIO MAN SUCCEEDS AS A BREEDER OF BEARS

WASHINGTON, July 20.—An interesting dissertation on bears appears in a publication just issued by the Smithsonian Institution. It deals in part with the remarkable success of W. R. Large, proprietor of a summer resort in Northern Ohio, in breeding bears. They rarely breed in captivity, but that this Buckeye has raised 66 cubs in 21 years is a statement made by assistant superintendent Baker of the National Zoological Park in this city.

Speaking of ten hibernation of Lodge's bears, Baker, who furnished the material for the Smithsonian publication, says:

"In the fall of the year, when the bears are about to retire for the winter, they become very fat. As cold weather approaches, large quantities of leaves are thrown into the pit and are carried by the bears into their dens. Much of their time is spent there, but they come out for an occasional meal until the advent of cold weather, when they finally retreat to their dens for the winter. Generally they come out of hibernation early in March, having remained in seclusion for about three months. The bears always come out after hibernating for a good condition, in practically as good condition as when they went in, none of them showing thinness, despite the fact that they have eaten nothing during that time."

WIFE FEIGNS DEATH WHEN HUSBAND FIRES

SCRANTON, Pa., July 20.—Woman's wit saved Mrs. William Lesavie of 710 Monroe avenue, from being murdered by her husband. Believing that the two bullets which he had fired at her at close range had brought death, the husband went into the yard and fired two bullets into his body, bringing instant death.

The husband came home from work and charged his wife with infidelity. He drew a revolver and fired two shots at her. She feigned to die without a word, closing her eyes as the husband came toward her. Shrieking that he had killed his wife, Lesavie dashed into the yard and killed himself. The Lesavies lived at the former home of Mrs. Hopkins, who committed suicide with a shotgun recently.

EFFICIENCY IS AN OAKLAND VIRTUE

Business House Acknowledges Worth of Make; Show to Be Economical.

The high efficiency of the Oakland motor car is one of the features of its construction that has brought it into public favor in the short time that the factory coast branch has been established.

The excellence of the Oakland car is being acknowledged by the business houses of the coast. Manager Henry I. Sternberger has received word from the Seattle representative that the Seattle Brewing and Malting Company has purchased twelve of the Oakland cars for the service of the company, after thoroughly testing out the several makes that were offered by the different agents up north.

In keeping with the reports of the good work that the Oakland car is doing, the local office has received a report from J. J. Wirtner, seven-passenger Oakland touring car, and also one of the Oslo roadsters for his business use. Wirtner believes that everyone should have two cars, if for nothing else but for economy sake, as he says that to drive a big seven-passenger car around the city is too expensive.

In speaking of the economy of his big 45-horsepower Oakland, Wirtner said that he has received wonderful mileage from his car to the gallon of gasoline. On one trip from the city to Mountain View he covered a distance of forty-one miles with seven people in the car on two gallons of gasoline.

Wirtner leaves this week on a fishing trip to Bass Lake, near Big Pine, which is a little way from Fresno. He will be accompanied by Jack Kuliman.

Wirtner has also ordered the first 1913 Oakland, which will be delivered to him next fall.

FEWER CHILDREN BORN?
LARGER NUMBERS DIE?

Officials Declare They Feel No Concern Over Present Conditions.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Are fewer children born? Do larger numbers die per million of population now than twenty years ago? Is the average length of human life materially increasing?

These are questions suggested in the introduction of the statistical report of the United States Bureau of Education for 1911, following the statement that the percentage of the total population enrolled in the schools in 1910 was less than in 1900.

It is pointed out that important methods of gathering statistics account for a part of the loss, but on the other hand other authorities note that compulsory education laws and like social agencies are bringing a greater and greater proportion of children to the schoolhouse door. The introductory statement to the education bureau's document says in part:

DECREASE IN POPULATION.

"There was an apparent decrease in the percentage of the total population enrolled in the schools as a whole from 22.54 in 1890 to 21.54 in 1910. The loss may be given in numbers as $19,723. In other words, the grand total of school enrollment in 1910 would have been 20,731,645 if the percentage of 1890 had been maintained, in place of the 19,811,922 grand total."

"All this loss and more is suffered by the elementary schools, for the higher institutions made substantial gains and the secondary schools show marked increase in enrollment as compared with the total population."

"There is no reason for the belief that the schools have lost ground in reality. This comparison is with total population, not school population, and it is probable that there are relatively fewer children now than formerly."

"If there are not so many children proportionally, there will naturally be proportionally fewer pupils. Furthermore, it is well known that the constant improvement in statistical methods has resulted in the elimination to an increasing extent of duplicate enrollments. The decrease that results is apparent only and must be counted."

WOULD MAKE UP LOSS.

In further support of this contention, figures are cited which show that had the apparent relative decrease of $19,723 in enrollment been real, the loss would have been more than made up in the increased efficiency of the common schools, for the per cent of average daily attendance increased from 88.61 in 1890 to 91.80 in 1910; the average length of school term increased from 134.7 days to 157.5 days between the same dates. At the same time the average number of days attending received by each child of school age increased from 59.2 in 1890 to 68.5 in 1910, while the average number of days attended by each pupil enrolled increased from 86.3 in 1890 to 111.6 in 1910.

BAKERSFIELD, July 20.—The William S. Tevis mansion at Stockdale, which has been building for the past two years, will not be ready for occupation before the first of the new year. It is stated that the mansion will cost in the neighborhood of $500,000. It replaces the old Stockdale home.

Sensitive Teeth Can Now Be Filled Without Pain

I am the only living dentist who can actually fill and crown sensitive teeth without an entire absence of pain. That's because I am the discoverer of the only known method of deadening the feeling in a tooth.

I can bore into a sore and painful cavity without hurting you the least bit. The whirling, buzzing drill no longer causes the least discomfort. In fact, I can dig right down to a live nerve and remove it without even a suggestion of pain.

Terrysthesia is what I call my remarkable preparation that eliminates all pain in connection with dental operations. It takes me but a couple of minutes to numb the worst tooth—the rest is easy and comfortable. Terrysthesia is absolutely harmless to everyone, and it produces no bad effects. I've used it in the most difficult cases without a failure.

The only trouble I have is getting people to believe that I'm telling the truth in my ads. My method seems so impossible, and the term "painless dentistry" has been abused so often, that a great many are reluctant about being led to me for fear of being deceived.

Four years ago when I first advertised by the Alveolar System of replacing missing teeth without plates or bridgework, people were just as skeptical. However, I fulfilled every promise, with the result that thousands of partial plate wearers are today enjoying the benefits of Alveolar teeth. These people will tell you so.

Those who cannot call should write for the free book explaining my Terrysthesia and Alveolar methods.

TAXPAYERS' COLUMN

All communications to the editor of THE TRIBUNE intended for publication must bear the names and addresses of the writers.

THE ISSUES AT STAKE.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: As a citizen and taxpayer, I will submit this as my campaign contribution, and will state that regarding the present situation in this line of duty, I am not a politician, nor do I seek or desire my office, nor admit that I have strong opinions, but I have strong feelings, and I have made and I still think so. However, I know that it is largely a question of opinion, and may be sometimes only a very slight one, but I sincerely hope for, and that is that it is I who am wrong.

Now a word to the "other side." My friends who always point out the advantages for his side argue, I have always believed and still believe, that he is quite fairly dealt with. I feel that in proportion to a man's financial ability, he is given a less amount of responsibility, but a larger share of the taxes into which it falls, and I seemed not to trouble you with my troubles, for you have more important things to attend to, but I do not believe that it appears that possibly for the sake of the educational enterprise which the University of California is undertaking, that I didn't say anything about President Wilson, but I would get the impression that Mr. S. could get the impression that the University of California's chief concern in its summer a year ago was the guard of independence.

Now a word to the "other side." I have no way of knowing whether the public has been told, or not, that that, but, of course, I have no way of knowing that that was to want a few platters of bacon to me the day of conservatism in the times of unrest. I was, as far as the French revolution, and the sympathy some young Englishmen had with the larger aims of the revolution, although I am not sure that they knew what they were.

When I made them Governor Wilson had not been nominated for the presidency and at that time it seemed that he would be elected, but when I saw him again, he was not so clearly.

Now, I may be mistaken, but I think that the theory that what seems true to us is true, do we not? So I made some very recall of her officials because of their recall of a greater man. That is the disadvantage of being related to a conspicuous man. I have realized that for many years in mere educational matters. But you see, I labor under two difficulties.

Editor TRIBUNE: We stand in no fear of recall. We are absolute in our belief that the public will not be so easily swayed by the machinations of the man himself, but I am not so sure that the public will not be swayed by the man or woman who labors.

To my mind the effect on the part of the office holder is the most unsatisfactory and also the most unjust proposition that has ever come to my attention. The realization that the taxpayers of our city are to put up such an enormous expense, and can and good reason to gratify such an ignoble ambition is beyond my comprehension.

The recall was never designed nor contemplated to be used as in this proposed. Should the efforts succeed that fact alone will go a long way toward hastening the time when the "recall" will itself be recalled. The public no longer supports anything which by its misuse, works an injury or even a nuisance.

Yours very truly,

STOCKTON AXON.

WHERE THE DANGER LIES.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: We stand in no fear of recall. We are absolute in our belief that the public will not be so easily swayed by the machinations of the man himself, but I am not so sure that the public will not be swayed by the man or woman who labors.

To my mind the effect on the part of the office holder is the most unsatisfactory and also the most unjust proposition that has ever come to my attention. Should the efforts succeed that fact alone will go a long way toward hastening the time when the "recall" will itself be recalled. The public no longer supports anything which by its misuse, works an injury or even a nuisance.

Now let us suppose (and it takes a long stretch of the imagination to even suppose) that the recall is successful, and the new mayor of the City of Oakland refuses to enforce the very law the enforcement of which having caused this unhappy effort. Then what? Is not the public to be blamed? The disgruntled petty politician who would hook his soul for the Presidency, the man who labors.

This effort is not only degrading to the good name of our city, not only degrading to the integrity of our city, but still it is the effort to "back out" of a very weak argument, the weakest of all, something that was claimed to have been done long before we had the recall.

For the sake of the thousands of workers and for the sake of the recall itself, let every man and woman see to it that he, or she, votes and vote early to avoid the recall.

In this campaign I look for the greatest result from the efforts of the women, they will not only vote themselves, but what is better still is the fact that they will make the men vote especially, the man who "never cares how he looks" the man whose interests are in San Francisco. The woman will convince him that a man who takes no interest in the town in which he lives is not a good character, men of power are beginning to realize just what Oakland has to offer.

They are going to be of little this time, and will not be able to change the outcome. The danger doesn't lie in the fight itself, but in the size of the victory.

Mayor Frank K. Mott knew he would be defeated, but he began to poke the fire, and then it got out of control.

He wasn't sure the things he did would make him popular with the most people, he did the things that had to be done to ever design to serve.

For the sake of the thousands of workers and for the sake of the recall itself, let every man and woman see to it that he, or she, votes and vote early to avoid the recall.

How can this recall scheme be beaten?

Answer—by every fair-minded man and woman voting on August 6. It would be a wise and safe course to vote for the recall, but I am not so sure that the public will not be swayed by the man or woman who labors.

BUILDING COST FOR YEAR IS EIGHT MILLIONS

CITY'S RECORD
FOR 1911-12
NOTABLE

Increase Over Previous Fiscal Year More Than One Million.

Forty-Seven Per Cent Gain for June Compares Well With Largest Cities.

The building record of a city is an index to power development. The creation of business structures and residence means the growth of population and mercantile activity. In both of these lines Oakland has shown great advancement during the year, and one of the best confirmations of this statement is the fact that the cost of building for the fiscal year ending June 30 last totaled nearly eight million dollars, the exact amount being $7,995,482.20. This is an increase of considerably more than one million dollars over the previous year. The cost for the fiscal year 1910-1911 was $6,370,215.47.

This creditable report is made by Max Martz, of the municipal department of permits and licenses. Of the sum expended $7,145,722.50 was for new construction and $850,765.70 for alterations, additions and repairs. The new construction for the fiscal year 1910-1911 was $5,409,270.82.

Of the brick and steel structures, some of the most important were the Sixteenth street passenger depot, costing $217,000, and the new city hall. Numerous business buildings costing more than $100,000 are included in the list.

RECORD FOR JUNE:

It was expected that Oakland would take gain in the cost of building for June over the corresponding month of 1911 and, as usual, Oakland has not disappointed those who boast of the city's enterprise.

The building increase for last month was 47 per cent which exceeds the gain of other cities as follows: Los Angeles, 30 per cent; San Francisco, 5; New York, 9; Kansas City, Mo., 4; Rochester, 29; Indianapolis, 21; St. Paul, 26; Memphis, 3; San Diego, 4; Springfield, Ill., 7; Toledo, 2; Albany, N. Y.; Peoria, 4; Grand Rapids, 3; Jacksonville, Fla., 19; Houston, 23; Berkeley, 10; Sacramento, 24; Davenport, 5; Lincoln, Neb., 34; Harrisburg, 23; Stockton, 4.

Chicago is reported to have gained 50 per cent; Washington, D. C., 102; Milwaukee, 178; Buffalo, 129; Detroit, 51. Increases are credited to several other cities. A growing list of leading cities shows increased activity in building construction in comparison with the corresponding month a year ago.

HOMESTEAD TRACT WILL BE IMPROVED

J. Cairn-Simpson Property to Be Subdivided for Bungalows.

The sale of the historic old home located at Adeline, Thirty-second and Magnolia street will stir old citizens into the recital of many interesting reminiscences and anecdotes. It is a far cry from 1872 to the present day and in the forty years that have elapsed since its construction the old house has been a mute witness to many marvelous changes which have obtained in the growth and upbuilding of Oakland. This property, at one time almost isolated, is today the center of a fast growing district, within a few minutes walk of the Southern Pacific locals and two blocks from the Key Route.

J. Cairn-Simpson, the former owner, is well known on both sides of the bay as a race-track man, horse lover and trainer and old timers will recall the miniature race track used as a training course by Simpson.

It is the intention of new owners to subdivide the property and develop it into a bungalow district. The unusual interest which has been manifested in the sub-division and modernizing of this particular tract may be traced in part to the fact that the city of Oakland is negotiating for the purchase of a parcel of land in the immediate vicinity, Thirtieth, Thirty-second, Union and Peralta streets, to be used for park purposes.

Destruction of the old buildings and the construction of a number of modern bungalows will commence immediately. This deal was consummated through the office of George W. Austin.

The purchase of eight lots, beginning at the northwest corner of Clifton and Manilla avenues, in the Claremont Villa tract, by Price Bros., well known Berkeley contractors and home builders, is reported by the office of George W. Austin.

Price Bros. announce their intention to commence at once the construction of eight thoroughly modern bungalows.

Lewis W. Farwell of 48 Kearny street, San Francisco, has purchased a $4000 residence in the Claremont Villa tract and will occupy the same in about two weeks.

E. M. St. Claire, coast representative of the Anaco company, with headquarters in San Francisco, has acquired a holding in the same tract and given a contract to E. Masberg, formerly a well-known Los Angeles builder, for a $3800 bungalow to be completed on August 1st.

That the older sections of Oakland are rapidly falling in line with the city's general spirit of progress is the enthusiastic belief of Harold J. Cowdry of the leasing department of Geo. W. Austin. In support of this statement Cowdry cites the fact that plans and specifications have been prepared for a two-story brick building to be located on the north side of Ninth street, between Franklin and Webster streets, and that the structure is already leased. The property is owned by A. O. Schmidt and the builder is John Andersen. The number of buildings under actual construction and contemplated south of Twelfth street demonstrates a very healthy condition. Cowdry reports negotiations practically closed for two more buildings to be constructed for tenants already secured.

584 12TH ST. NEXT ORPHEUM THEATER
30 YEARS IN CALIFORNIA
TRANCE CLAIRVOYANT AND

I was born with a strange and remarkable power—power not meant to gratify the idle curious, but to direct, advise and help men and women who are in trouble and suspense concerning the every-day affairs of life.

RIDINGS 50 CENTS.

REDUCED FEE FOR THIS WEEK ONLY.

WHAT I DO FOR 50 CENTS:

I call your name, tell your age, your occupation, tell what condition you are in, need for you to prove it, tell you about your wife, husband, sweetheart or lover and how to win the love of any one you desire. I tell you of any move, journey, speculation, position or change of any kind which may be before you and how to meet it. I can tell you about your enemies, what your acquaintances think of you, who to trust and who to shun. I tell you whom and when to marry, if at all, and give their name, age, occupation and disposition. In short, I tell you everything you care to find out, and that too without asking you a question or you speaking a word.

Reunites the separated. Teaches you how to fascinate and control any one you desire. Causes happy and speedy marriages. Directs the most successful investments in the world, have any intent whatever. If I do not succeed as above stated I ask no fee for my work and time whatsoever.

Hours, 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. every day. Special readings for a fee of 50 CENTS.

584 12TH ST. NEXT ORPHEUM THEATER.

Cut this adv. out as it does not appear daily.

ANY poor girl in need of a friend, a home or advice, is invited to call or write the matron of The Salvation Army Home, Beulah Heights, Cal.; phone Merritt 5827.

ANYONE desiring marriage is invited to call or write Mrs. G. Hyde, 2677 Mission st., S. F.

DRINK habit: I was a heavy drinker, averaging over quart of whisky daily; tried many ways to reform, but without success until I found a certain easy method and was cured in three days; then since saved thousands of other victims. Heavy drinker can come or come with or without drinker's knowledge; interesting book (tells how) mailed, plain wrapped free, if you cut this out and write to Edward Woods, 534 Sixth Avenue, 484 B, New York.

MEMPHIS or photographs submitted to the editorial department for consideration must have stamps enclosed to secure the return of same if not accepted.
